Cold, snow bowl way into area

The Northwest suburbs were socked Thursday with eight inches of snow, sending workers home early and traffic backing up as much as five miles on major area roadways.

National Weather Service spokesmen said 30 to 40 mile an hour gusts and drifting winds today will make for icy conditions on major roads.

The temperature is expected to plummet to between zero to 5 degrees tonight, weather spokesmen said. With the wind chill factor, temperatures could hit a bone-chilling 50 degrees below zero early today, the spokesman said.

THE WEEKEND promises to bring sunny skies with highs between eight and 12 degrees, but more snow on Sunday.

Surprisingly, Northwest suburban police departments said the number of accidents during the storm was low.

Officials of the Chicago & North Western Ry. said most rush hour arrivals from Chicago Thursday were delayed about half an hour, with many of the express trains not running at all. Commuters who got off work early jammed trains.

NORTRAN commuter buses also were delayed by the snow. NORTRAN officials said some of the buses traveling from Arlington Heights to Buffalo Grove and Wheeling carried as much as three times their capacity of 45 persons. They said the overcrowding was due mainly to the commuter trains arriving in closer intervals than normal.

AIR TRAFFIC at O'Hare Airport was delayed 30-40 minutes by about 10 p.m., but air traffic controlers said the delays were expected to end.

Northwest suburban parents were advised to listen to AM radio stations, expecially WGN and WLS, for a list of school closings this morning. School officials said Thursday they would wait until this morning to decide on school closings.

St. Alphonsus Catholic School in Prospect Heights will be closed today because of wind and snow.

Most schools Thursday remained open for a full day although many canceled after school activities. Those that closed early Thursday included Schaumburg Township Dist. 54, Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization, St. Hubert Catholic School in Hoffman Estates, St. Zachary Catholic School in Des Plaines and Queen of the Rosary Catholic School in Elk Grove Village.

Board of education meetings were canceled in East Maine Dist. 63 and Schaumburg Township Dist. 54. Both have been rescheduled for Monday night. The meeting of the Citizens Advisory Council in Elgin Area Unit Dist. 46 was canceled Thursday, as was the board of trustees meeting at Harper College.

CLASSES AT HARPER, Oakton and Elgin community colleges were canceled Thursday night as were adult education classes in high school districts 207 and 214 and Elgin Area Unit Dist. 46.

Wednesday, Wheeling police responded to six accidents in 10 minutes, but Thursday only six accidents were reported during the entire day. About 12 cars were abandoned in the village.

Rolling Meadows police said they were handling priority calls only while Mount Prospect police had only a handful of minor accidents all day Thursday.

Illinois Tollway police said car spinouts were frequent on all tollways and warned motorists of very hazardous driving conditions early today.

Thursday night harness racing at the Arlington Park Race Track was canceled. A track spokesman said that the track "is OK. We had horses running on it this afternoon." Racing is expected today.

NORTHWEST SUBURBAN postal authorities advised residents to shovel sidewalks and access areas to mail boxes to ensure mail delivery.

"Go out and check the snow plowing on the main roads and intersections in the area," the editor barked. "Find out who does the worst and best job clearing the streets."

That was the assignment. To take a trip over some 50 miles of the best known and most heavily traveled streets in the Northwest suburbs.

The answer came several hours later. There would be no winner in the snow plowing contest. At least not today.

Early in the storm traffic was held to 20 miles per hour. Heading south toward Elk Grove Village, two trucks from the Village of Arlington Heights passed in the opposite direction, plows raised and salt spreaders off.

AH YES, THE first lesson in snow plowing was not clear. Jurisdiction. Arlington Heights Road is a state highway, which means that village trucks accept no responsibility to keep it clear.

Robin Florez at the Illinois Dept. of Transportation in Schaumburg said there were about 91 snow plows assigned to state roads in the Northwest and north central Cook County.

State crews started salting and plowing operations at 7:30 a.m. Thursday, Florez said and worked far into the night.

Driving west to Higgins Road was an eye opener. The road was clear and cars were moving close to the posted speed limit. It looked like a truck had passed this way recently.

The first working plow of the day came up the ramp and on to northbound Ill. Rte. 53 — a big, orange State of Illinois vehicle. But it wasn't plowing. It drove to Dundee Road where it turned west with its plow still up.

Dundee was the worst. Cars were traveling at about 20 miles per hour, sometimes skidding on ice.

Traveling south on Milwaukee Avenue was more of the same. Crossing into Des Plaines, the road condition improved noticeably.

SHEER LUCK because the City of Des Plaines said it does not regularly salt or plow Milwaukee Avenue, another state road.

Northwest Highway through downtown Des Plaines, Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights was an adventure in slipping and slushings.

Farmer strike

Farmers are planning a nationwide strike to drive up commodity prices to 100 per cent parity, the theoretical fair price for farm goods. If the strike lasts to spring, the movement is asking farmers not to plant next year's crops. Major rallies are being planned at state capitals Saturday as a final effort on the eve of the strike. In Springfield, according to Illinois' American Agriculture office, hundreds of tractors and pickup trucks are expected. For farmers, the stalwarts of individualism and free enterprise, the strike is a desperation move. Daily Herald reporter Toni Ginnetti views the issue today on pages 10 and 11.

Sadat hits Arab critics; Hussein predicts peace

by United Press International

Egypt's President Anwar Sadat told a million cheering supporters Thursday that Arab critics of his peace moves are "impostors and pygmies." Jordan's King Hussein conferred in Cairo with Sadat and predicted peace for the Middle East in the near future.

The Soviet Union, meantime, issued its sharpest attack yet on the United States since Sadat's peace initiative and said Sec. of State Cyrus Vance was in "direct contradiction" with the joint U.S.-Soviet statement on Middle East peace.

Hussein's visit to Cairo and talks between Syrian President Hafez Assad and Saudi leaders in Riyadh were aimed at patching up the quarrel between Syria and Egypt one week before the Cairo peace talks with Israel and one day before the start of Vance's Middle East trip.

HUSSEIN, WHO has said he will not attend the Cairo talks, conferred privately with Sadat and then both leaders were joined by aides for a "working dinner."

Afterwards, the Hashemite monarch said the talks covered all aspects of the Middle East conflict, "including the aspirations of the Palestinian people."

Hussein repeated praise for what he termed Sadat's "courageous visit" to Israel and, in indirect backing of the visit, said, "It was aimed at the realization of a just and durable peace in the region."

Hussein said he did "not think the realization of peace in the region will be delayed long."

Earlier, Sadat addressed one of the largest mass rallies in Cairo since the funeral of the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser in October 1970 and said he intended to pursue his peace goals for a Palestinian homeland "despite the bungling of the PLO and its defeatism."

SADAT BLASTED his Arab critics and reminded them it was Egypt who bore the brunt of fighting in four Middle East wars over the past 30 years.

"We fought (in 1973) and we won and gave victory to the entire Arab nation," Sadat told the frantically cheering crowds. "Now we shall seek peace and thereby hand another victory to the Arab nation.

"Just as I once promised to go to war, I promise you today that we shall seek peace based on justice and I am confident God will help us," he said.

"At these historic moments, we shall rise above the pygmies and above the wounds they are trying to inflict on us with their rancor, ignorance and stupidity," Sadat said.

"And as I said before, I shall never bow to anyone except the people of Egypt and I shall never kneel to anyone but God."

IN MOSCOW, the Soviet news agency Tass said there are "critics in the American administration" trying to pressure hardline Arab states into attending the Dec. 14 Cairo meeting.

So far, only Israel, the United States and a representative of the United Nations have accepted Egypt's invitation to the talks.

The Soviet Union, which turned down an invitation, has charged that Sadat was using the preparations for a Geneva conference as a cover for a separate Israeli-Egyptian peace settlement.

"The idea is being persistently circulated in the Egyptian quarters that the foundation for talk on the Middle East should be laid at the Cairo meeting," Tass said.

"Cyrus Vance's statement that the United States is now inclined to concentrate its efforts not on the convocation of the Geneva conference, but on guaranteeing the holding of the Cairo meeting . . . is in direct contradiction to the Soviet-American joint statement on the Middle East," Tass said.

Kissinger 'wrongfully removed' transcripts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge Thursday ruled that Henry Kissinger "wrongfully removed" transcripts of his State Dept. telephone conversations and locked them away from public perusal at the Library of Congress.

U.S. District Judge John Lewis Smith rejected the former secretary of state's claim that secretarial notes on his conversations were "personal working papers" not subject to Freedom of Information Act requests from the public.

"Having been prepared and transcribed in the discharge of his official duties, the notes are property of the United States," the judge said. "The court further funds that the records were wrongfully removed and should be returned to the State Dept."

KISSINGER DEEDED the notes to the United States Dec. 24, 1976, and placed them at the Library of Congress under an agreement restricting public access for 25 years or until five years after his death, whichever is later.

Smith acted on a suit filed in February by the Reporters Committee for a Free Press and other groups seeking access to the transcripts.

After consulting with Kissinger, David Ginsburg, Kissinger's Washington lawyer, said: "An appeal will be taken because Dr. Kissinger regards an issue of principle as being involved."

HENRY KISSINGER

Jack Landau, director of the reporters committee, called the decision "a major victory for the underlying principles of the Freedom of Information Act — that agency documents amassed by government officials no matter how exalted their office belong to the people and are not as Mr. Kissinger claims private property."

"This decision will preserve for the American people for generations to come probably the most valuable group of background documents ever amassed on American foreign policy," Landau said.

Helicopter crash at oil rig kills 17

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)— A helicopter trying to land on an offshore oil rig spun wildly out of control and slammed into the Gulf of Mexico Thursday, killing 17 of the 19 men aboard.

A spokesman for Pennzoil Oil Co., which operates the rig 90 miles southwest of Morgan City, La., confirmed the 17 deaths after crews unsuccessfully searched the Gulf more than five hours for survivors.

Bob Harper, Pennzoil's director of personnel, said 15 of the dead were Pennzoil employees, but he had no word on the other two victims.

The two survivors suffered only minor injuries and were taken to Our Lady of Lourdes Hospital in Lafayette, La. They were identified as Michael A. Peschier Jr., 34, of Lafayette and Robert Berry, the copilot.

DOCTORS AT Our Lady of Lourdes said Peschier and Berry were heavily sedated and would be unavailable for interviews or comments for 24 hours.

Before he was admitted, Peschier said he survived because he was thrown free of the helicopter when it slammed into the platform. Peschier said he heard a loud noise before the helicopter hit the deck of the drilling platform and spun into the waters 130 feet below.

The twin engine, French-built helicopter went down shortly after noon on a flight from Intracoastal City, La., to an offshore oil rig operated by Pennzoil Oil Co. The helicopter was one of 200 PHI uses daily to shuttle 7,200 offshore oil workers to and from drilling platforms in the Gulf.

"(THE CRASH) happened right near a rig so it was discovered right away," said Carl Dougherty, a PHI spokesman. "There weren't any distress calls and none of the wreckage was recovered."

Dougherty said there was only one vacant passenger seat on the 18-passenger helicopter which also carried a pilot and copilot, leading to the conclusion that 19 persons were aboard.

Coast Guard Chief Bob Baeten said PHI had five helicopters and a crew boat at the scene shortly after the crash, but the Coast Guard was not notified about the accident for two hours.

A Coast Guard helicopter, the cutter Point Sal and a fixed-wing aircraft from Mobile, Ala., were dispatched to the scene at mid-afternoon.

- President Carter's son Jeff will receive $10,000 from Life magazine for 10 pages of family photographs he and his wife shot, the White House said Thursday. Mary Hoyt, press secretary to Rosalynn Carter, said the exclusive photos will appear in Life's annual publication Jan. 6, and the money will be donated to various charities. "These are the only plans for publication which Jeff and Annette have," while Carter is in office, Mrs. Hoyt said. The photographs were taken at the White House and in Plains, Ga.

- A small fire broke out in the Manhattan penthouse apartment of Lisa Minelli Thursday afternoon, but the actress managed to leave quickly without injury. Officials said the fire, believed caused by a dropped cigarette, caused little damage.

- Buckingham Palace said Friday Princess Anne and her husband, Capt. Mark Phillips, hâve named their son Peter Mark Andrew — evidently maintaining their position the child should be raised as a commoner. The baby, born Nov. 15 and fifth in line to the throne, will be christened Dec. 22 by the Archbishop of Canterbury.

- A 24-foot Christmas tree arrived at the White House Thursday and Rosalynn Carter said, "I can't wait to get to the decorations." The tree will be put in the Blue Room and be decorated with ornaments made by retarded persons.

- Former Chicago actor Bobby DiCicco will star in "I Want to Hold Your Hand," a Universal Studios movie based on the Beatles' first trip to the United States in 1964. DiCicco played the original younger brother in the award winning play, "All I Want," which ran for a record 16 months at the Victory Gardens Theater on the North Side. DiCicco left the production midway through its run last winter to try his luck in Hollywood.

Woman struck and killed by train

A Palatine woman was killed Thursday when she was struck by a westbound freight train at the Arlington Park commuter station, Arlington Heights.

Linda Raffaella, 28, of 1020 Lilac Dr., was killed at 5:55 a.m. after she stumbled over the tracks while attempting to avoid the train, police said.

arlington Heights Police Capt. Paul Buckholz said Mrs. Raffaella was crossing the tracks to wait for an eastbound Chicago and North Western commuter train, but apparently failed to see the approaching westbound train.

Buckholz said witnesses told police the woman saw another person running across the tracks and apparently thought there was no danger in crossing.

But as she attempted to run, she lost her balance and fell into the train's path, Buckholz said. He said she was hurled about 100 feet by the train, which was traveling about 35 miles an hour.

Mrs. Raffaella's body was identified by her husband, Philip N., a teacher at Maple School in Northbrook, police said. The woman was employed by CNA Insurance Co. in Chicago.

Bunches of snow falling from the sky does something funny to people.

Snowflakes like oversized powder puffs and temperatures that chill the bone put a frosty tinge on windows and spirits. The world is at peace and in chaos at the same time.

And on the 2:30 p.m. Chicago and North Western Ry. train heading out of Chicago to the Northwest suburbs the powerful storm brought out myriad reactions.

"Mommy, there's nowhere to stand," cried a youngster from the back of the car. The train was packed to the brim with moms and their moppets, commuting college students, holiday shoppers loaded down wih packages and executives with bankers' hours. They were together in refuge from the storm.

THEY WERE LINED up in the aisles as a reluctant conductor began making his way through the compartment collecting tickets.

"How's he going to do this?" a young man with school books in his hands asked.

"He's going to push his way through what do you think? This is a big day for the North Western," a friend replied.

"Now, if everyone will just make way for the other people getting out and look for their own stations we'll be OK," a somewhat peeved conductor bellowed. "Now I've got three cars to take care of and if I don't get back here in time to call out the stations, don't blame me."

HIS EXIT WAS hardly graceful. The conductor commanded passengers to move out of his way and to keep their coats on so there wouldn't be so much confusion as people departed at each stop.

Some passengers just stared out the windows to where the determined trudged and plowed through the snow on foot, and where snowbound cars moved very, very slowly, if at all.

"OK, kids, now look out the right side of the train and you'll see it. It's coming up. Just keep looking out the window," a young mother yelled to her brood of five kids who had scrambled to occupy empty seats throughout the train.

THE WOMAN SOON had everyone in the compartment with their noses pressed against the windows in anticipation of whatever it was they were supposed to see.

And then there it was on Northwest Highway.The Mount Prospect Fire Dept. had decorated the station like a giant fireplace, complete with Santa.

A reaction of "awe, isn't that cute," was heard through the car.

"And what do you want for Christmas," one woman asked a child, both holding on to the edge of a seat to steady their balance while the train hobbled from side to side.

Rentschler urges grand jury reform

William Rentschler, a former Republican leader and Chicago businessman who spent nine months in jail for mail fraud, Thursday called for reform or abolition of the grand jury system. "We have come to a point in the life of our nation when our law enforcers — those sworn to uphold the law — break the law with monotonous regularity in pursuit of what they deem to be the bad guys of our society," Rentschler said. "Immunity is granted consistently and quite promiscuously to rich corrupters and confessed lawbreakers — itself a form of bribery — to indict and convict citizens of previously unblemished record.

"The grand jury, once the buffer between kingly oppression and the people, today is a dependable tool of the prosecutor and a weapon for the suppression of dissent . . ." Rentschler said in remarks prepared for delivery to the New Jersey Assn. of Correction, a prison reform group. "We must end the widespread, largely uncontrolled misuse of immunity — and its enormous potential for grave injustice. We must reform drastically, or preferably abolish, the grand jury, as proposed some years ago by the eminent Senior Federal Judge, William J. Campbell of Chicago."

$1.3 billion Chicago budget OKd

The Chicago City Council Thursday approved Mayor Michael A. Bilandic's $1.3 billion budget for 1978 and added $685,000 in amendments that provide legislative aides and other benefits for each alderman. By a vote of 45-0, the council approved the amendments that raise the salary of each alderman's present secretary to $14,268 and create the post of assistant secretary at an annual salary of $9,648. The other amendments increase aldermanic office expenses, double the aldermen's transportation allowance and increase their contingency fund. The total budget was approved by a vote of 45-3 after more than four hours of debate.

You can now adopt a gorilla

The Brookfield Zoo has expanded its Christmas Parent animal adoption program, zoo officials said Thursday. The suburban zoo, operated by the Chicago Zoological Society, originally included two polar bears and a dolphin in the program. But response was great and zoo officials Thursday added Omega, a male gorilla, to the program. Adoption fees paid by Christmas parents — $15 for one parent and $25 for two — help pay for the food the animal will eat in the coming year.

Bunker, a 5-year-old dolphin, has been completely adopted. His adoptive parents have put up the money needed to feed him for the year. But contributions are still being accepted for Omega and polar bears Trisha, 12, and her daughter, Mary, 3, Omega eats about $1,500 worth of sunflower seeds, apples, bananas, oranges, escarole, carrots, celery, bread, horsemeat, monkey chow, milk and yogurt a year. And Trisha and Mary each consume about $1,600 worth of fish, horsemeat, bread, apples and vegetables a year.

Trial set for NIU chief in hit-run

A judge Thursday set Jan. 16 as the tentative date for the trial of Northern Illinois University Pres. Richard Nelson, charged with being the driver in a hit-and-run accident. Kane County Circuit Court Judge John Krause also delayed until Dec. 30 the filing of additional motions in the case. Defense attorneys asked Krause earlier Thursday to strike from evidence identification of Nelson as the driver of a hit-and-run car. He took the motion under advisement.

FBI checking JFK 'tips' covered in next file set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI still pursues "tips" on who killed John Kennedy and the second stack of assassination files, due out next month, will reflect that sort of endless, leftover gumshoe work, a bureau spokesman said Thursday.

Continued scrutiny of the first 40,000 pages of the FBI's Kennedy murder files, released Wednesday, divulged more intriguing but inconclusive tidbits of insight into the 1963 Dallas slaying.

Investigative memos show the CIA assured the FBI Oswald was never "an informant in their organization," for example, and indicated Warren Commission members were satisfied Lee Harvey Oswald could have fired the fatal shots from his sixth floor window perch once they inspected the scene of the crime.

THE FILES also depicted Oswald as a hostile, hermit-like Marine who read communist literature behind locked doors in his barracks room, and Jack Ruby, his killer, as a tough Chicago street kid who might have run errands for Al Capone.

But nothing emerged to undermine the Warren Commission finding that Oswald alone killed Kennedy for motives still unknown, and an FBI spokesman who has helped prepare the files for public release said the 40,000 pages due for release in January won't change that picture.

"I really don't think there's going to be any major new revelations from this new material any more than there was in the material just released," he said. "But, if this is your field, you'll find it interesting.

"Of course, the (conspiracy buff) people who make a business of this will dispute that. I understand some of them are already saying the true stuff is what was never written down.

"WELL, THERE'S not much you can do about that."

Major disclosure of the first batch of files seemed to be that J. Edgar Hoover himself harbored doubts as to whether Oswald acted alone, at least for a few weeks after the Nov. 22, 1963 killing. He had his agents check apparently false leads to a Cuban conspiracy.

In May of 1964, however, Hoover stated he could not find "any scintilla of evidence showing any foreign conspiracy or any domestic conspiracy that culminated in the assassination of President Kennedy."

The initial files have already covered the most active, intensive period of the bureau's investigation. They run through September, 1964, when the presidential commission headed by Chief Justice Earl Warren concluded its probe and issued its findings.

THE NEXT 40,000 pages of assassination papers will bring the investigation up to date — apparently with activities increasingly devoted to checking out wild goose chase tips.

"If somebody jumped up out of a rose bush last month — or let's say last year, since these things are becoming more infrequent — and said he knows who did it, we check that out and that will be included in the material," the spokesman said.

"I'd say it will predominate with that sort of thing."

He said that, although the bureau has technically closed the "active" phase of its Kennedy investigation, "Mr. Hoover, once said, 'this file will always be pending.'

"Well, in a sense, that's true. If someone calls in a tip, we'll run it down."

One of the last memos in the first stack of files, dated September, 1964, indicated just how exhaustive the investigation had been to that point: It reported 25,000 interviews conducted through August, 1964, and said the bureau furnished the Warren panel 1,750 investigative reports covering 17,200 pages.

$2 billion state school budget asked

A preliminary Illinois school budget of nearly $2 billion for next year was displayed Thursday and included proposed changes in the state aid formula that would give local school districts an additional $90 million.

Illinois Schools Supt. Joseph M. Cronin presented the budget for next year, increased 10.7 per cent more than the current budget of $1.8 billion.

The proposed new school aid formula would increase the maximum possible amount of money that schools can receive for each pupil and would make it easier to qualify for those funds. Local school districts this year are getting $1.2 billion from the state.

The present formula, established in 1973, would be changed so that the basic maximum state payment to schools would increase from the current $1,260 per pupil to $1,300 next year.

ELEMENTARY AND unit school districts only would be required to have a school tax rate of $100 of assessed valuation to qualify for full access to the basic payment. Currently a rate of $1.90 per $100 assessed valuation is required to qualify for full access to state school aid.

The changes still must be approved by the Illinois Board of Education and the General Assembly.

Cronin, speaking to the legislative committee of the Illinois Board of Education, also recommended that Chicago should get the biggest share of any money appropriated by the Legislature for desegregation assistance.

He said the state board's proposed budget contains $15 million for assistance to school districts implementing desegregation plans and that 75 to 80 per cent of that amount should go to Chicago.

"It should be available to all districts, but the biggest chunk should go where there are the most kids in need of quality, desegregated educations," he said.

Rentschler urges grand jury reform

William Rentschler, a former Republican leader and Chicago businessman who spent nine months in jail for mail fraud, Thursday called for reform or abolition of the grand jury system. "We have come to a point in the life of our nation when our law enforcers — those sworn to uphold the law — break the law with monotonous regularity in pursuit of what they deem to be the bad guys of our society," Rentschler said. "Immunity is granted consistently and quite promiscuously to rich corrupters and confessed lawbreakers — itself a form of bribery — to indict and convict citizens of previously unblemished record.

"The grand jury, once the buffer between kingly oppression and the people, today is a dependable tool of the prosecutor and a weapon for the suppression of dissent . . ." Rentschler said in remarks prepared for delivery to the New Jersey Assn. of Correction, a prison reform group. "We must end the widespread, largely uncontrolled misuse of immunity — and its enormous potential for grave injustice. We must reform drastically, or preferably abolish, the grand jury, as proposed some years ago by the eminent Senior Federal Judge, William J. Campbell of Chicago."

$1.3 billion Chicago budget OKd

The Chicago City Council Thursday approved Mayor Michael A. Bilandic's $1.3 billion budget for 1978 and added $685,000 in amendments that provide legislative aides and other benefits for each alderman. By a vote of 45-0, the council approved the amendments that raise the salary of each alderman's present secretary to $14,268 and create the post of assistant secretary at an annual salary of $9,648. The other amendments increase aldermanic office expenses, double the aldermen's transportation allowance and increase their contingency fund. The total budget was approved by a vote of 45-3 after more than four hours of debate.

You can now adopt a gorilla

The Brookfield Zoo has expanded its Christmas Parent animal adoption program, zoo officials said Thursday. The suburban zoo, operated by the Chicago Zoological Society, originally included two polar bears and a dolphin in the program. But response was great and zoo officials Thursday added Omega, a male gorilla, to the program. Adoption fees paid by Christmas parents — $15 for one parent and $25 for two — help pay for the food the animal will eat in the coming year.

Bunker, a 5-year-old dolphin, has been completely adopted. His adoptive parents have put up the money needed to feed him for the year. But contributions are still being accepted for Omega and polar bears Trisha, 12, and her daughter, Mary, 3, Omega eats about $1,500 worth of sunflower seeds, apples, bananas, oranges, escarole, carrots, celery, bread, horsemeat, monkey chow, milk and yogurt a year. And Trisha and Mary each consume about $1,600 worth of fish, horsemeat, bread, apples and vegetables a year.

Singer won't run for Senate

Former Chicago Ald. William Singer said Thursday he will not run for the Democratic U.S. Senate nomination next year against Alex Seith of Hinsdale, who won the party slatemakers' endorsement. Singer said he based his decision "on personal reasons."

Trial set for NIU chief in hit-run

A judge Thursday set Jan. 16 as the tentative date for the trial of Northern Illinois University Pres. Richard Nelson, charged with being the driver in a hit-and-run accident. Kane County Circuit Court Judge John Krause also delayed until Dec. 30 the filing of additional motions in the case. Defense attorneys asked Krause earlier Thursday to strike from evidence identification of Nelson as the driver of a hit-and-run car. He took the motion under advisement.

FBI checking JFK 'tips' covered in next file set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI still pursues "tips" on who killed John Kennedy and the second stack of assassination files, due out next month, will reflect that sort of endless, leftover gumshoe work, a bureau spokesman said Thursday.

Continued scrutiny of the first 40,000 pages of the FBI's Kennedy murder files, released Wednesday, divulged more intriguing but inconclusive tidbits of insight into the 1963 Dallas slaying.

Investigative memos show the CIA assured the FBI Oswald was never "an informant in their organization," for example, and indicated Warren Commission members were satisfied Lee Harvey Oswald could have fired the fatal shots from his sixth floor window perch once they inspected the scene of the crime.

THE FILES also depicted Oswald as a hostile, hermit-like Marine who read communist literature behind locked doors in his barracks room, and Jack Ruby, his killer, as a tough Chicago street kid who might have run errands for Al Capone.

But nothing emerged to undermine the Warren Commission finding that Oswald alone killed Kennedy for motives still unknown, and an FBI spokesman who has helped prepare the files for public release said the 40,000 pages due for release in January won't change that picture.

"I really don't think there's going to be any major new revelations from this new material any more than there was in the material just released," he said. "But, if this is your field, you'll find it interesting.

"Of course, the (conspiracy buff) people who make a business of this will dispute that. I understand some of them are already saying the true stuff is what was never written down.

"WELL, THERE'S not much you can do about that."

Major disclosure of the first batch of files seemed to be that J. Edgar Hoover himself harbored doubts as to whether Oswald acted alone, at least for a few weeks after the Nov. 22, 1963 killing. He had his agents check apparently false leads to a Cuban conspiracy.

In May of 1964, however, Hoover stated he could not find "any scintilla of evidence showing any foreign conspiracy or any domestic conspiracy that culminated in the assassination of President Kennedy."

The initial files have already covered the most active, intensive period of the bureau's investigation. They run through September, 1964, when the presidential commission headed by Chief Justice Earl Warren concluded its probe and issued its findings.

THE NEXT 40,000 pages of assassination papers will bring the investigation up to date — apparently with activities increasingly devoted to checking out wild goose chase tips.

"If somebody jumped up out of a rose bush last month — or let's say last year, since these things are becoming more infrequent — and said he knows who did it, we check that out and that will be included in the material," the spokesman said.

"I'd say it will predominate with that sort of thing."

He said that, although the bureau has technically closed the "active" phase of its Kennedy investigation, "Mr. Hoover, once said, 'this file will always be pending.'

"Well, in a sense, that's true. If someone calls in a tip, we'll run it down."

One of the last memos in the first stack of files, dated September, 1964, indicated just how exhaustive the investigation had been to that point: It reported 25,000 interviews conducted through August, 1964, and said the bureau furnished the Warren panel 1,750 investigative reports covering 17,200 pages.

$2 billion state school budget asked

A preliminary Illinois school budget of nearly $2 billion for next year was displayed Thursday and included proposed changes in the state aid formula that would give local school districts an additional $90 million.

Illinois Schools Supt. Joseph M. Cronin presented the budget for next year, increased 10.7 per cent more than the current budget of $1.8 billion.

The proposed new school aid formula would increase the maximum possible amount of money that schools can receive for each pupil and would make it easier to qualify for those funds. Local school districts this year are getting $1.2 billion from the state.

The present formula, established in 1973, would be changed so that the basic maximum state payment to schools would increase from the current $1,260 per pupil to $1,300 next year.

ELEMENTARY AND unit school districts only would be required to have a school tax rate of $100 of assessed valuation to qualify for full access to the basic payment. Currently a rate of $1.90 per $100 assessed valuation is required to qualify for full access to state school aid.

The changes still must be approved by the Illinois Board of Education and the General Assembly.

Cronin, speaking to the legislative committee of the Illinois Board of Education, also recommended that Chicago should get the biggest share of any money appropriated by the Legislature for desegregation assistance.

He said the state board's proposed budget contains $15 million for assistance to school districts implementing desegregation plans and that 75 to 80 per cent of that amount should go to Chicago.

"It should be available to all districts, but the biggest chunk should go where there are the most kids in need of quality, desegregated educations," he said.

Temporary lease on North asked

by SHERYL JEDLINSKI

The Chicago-based Roosevelt University has asked to lease North School in Arlington Heights as a temporary branch campus beginning in September.

The Arlington Heights Dist. 25 Board of Education Monday said it would consider the request at its next meeting scheduled for 8 p.m. Jan. 12 at South Junior High School, 314 S. Highland.

Roosevelt Vice President Lawrence Silverman told the board the North School site, 410 N. Arlington Heights Rd., would not be practical as a permanent branch campus, but could be useful as a means of testing how successful a permanent suburban campus would be.

CLOSED SINCE June 1976 because of declining enrollment, North School currently is leased in part to the Northwest Opportunities Center.

Roosevelt officials are asking to lease all of North School for three to five years at an annual rent of $52,000. The rental fee would include utilities, a full-time custodian and building maintenance at least the present level.

Northwest Opportunities Center is renting North for an annual $14,000, but is using only partial utilities and custodial time and less than half the school, Supt. Donald Strong said.

Recognizing the daytime parking shortage in the North School area, Roosevelt officials are agreeing to schedule classes that would involve no more than 105 students and staff at any one daytime period. If this limitation is exceeded, the university will provide additional parking at its own expense, Silverman said.

PUBLIC LOTS near North appear to provide ample parking for evening classes, but arrangements could be made for the use of private parking lots if this were not so, he said.

"Any delay by the Dist. 25 board beyond its meeting of Jan. 12 in the offering of such contract will seriously jeopardize the possibility of our initiating our programs in September," Silverman warned the board Monday.

Roosevelt officials have been negotiating with Dist. 25 since February in the hope of renting Miner Junior High School, 1101 E. Miner, as a branch campus, but hopes for this were dashed because of neighborhood opposition to the plan.

Residents near the school, which is scheduled to close in June because of declining enrollment, said the branch campus at Miner would create tremendous traffic and safety problems for the neighborhood.

Dist. 59 OK of leaflets at issue

Does a parent-teacher organization have the right to send information home with children from school without having it approved by the administration?

That's the question being raised in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 after leaflets concerning a promotion policy were sent home with children by two parent-teacher organizations.

The question will be considered by the Dist. 59 policy committee.

District policy now states that any organization that wants to send information home with children must have that material approved by the superintendent's office.

Administration procedures, however, indicate that organizations including the park districts, High School Dist. 214, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Little League, YWCA and YMCA do not need prior approval from the superintendent's office to distribute information.

THE PROBLEM IS that parent-teacher organizations are not included in that list.

Carol Wirth, representing the PTO at Rupley School, 305 E. Oakton, Elk Grove Village, one of the two that sent the leaflets, said that it "appears an attempt is being made to stifle or censor what is coming out."

Board Pres. Harold Harvey, however, who placed discussion of the matter on the board agenda Monday night, said he wanted the policy clarified because PTOs are not specifically included in those organizations that can send information without having it approved.

The leaflets sent home by the PTOs at Rupley and Salt Creek School, 65 Kennedy Blvd., Elk Grove Village expressed the PTOs concern about a promotion policy recently adopted by the board.

ALTHOUGH THE POLICY was a four-page document, the PTOs printed only part of it and urged parents to come to the next board meeting to talk about it. More than 100 parents, most opposed to the policy, came to the meeting.

Board member Sharon Chavoen, who headed the committee that drew up the policy, said she would have appreciated the PTOs reprinting the entire document rather than taking some parts "out of context."

Mrs. Wirth said the complete policy had been sent home with children at some schools a couple days before, and that it did not seem necessary to reprint the entire thing. Carol Denny from Salt Creek said the reprinted parts were those that "concerned us."

One part reprinted was a sentence that stated children scoring more than a year below grade level on the reading and math portions of the Iowa Test of Basic Skills will not be promoted.

THE POLICY also contained a paragraph that stated other factors would be taken into consideration. That paragraph, which many parents found confusing and contradictory, was not reprinted. Mrs. Chavoen Monday proposed a wording change designed to clarify that the Iowa tests would be only one consideration in a child's passing or failing.

Mrs. Denny said it is in the Salt Creek PTOs bylaws "to provide an opportunity for better communication between parents and teacher regarding the programs and policies of the school, school district and community."

The PTO "would be derelict in its duty" if it did not inform parents of policies that may affect their children, Mrs. Denny said. "Whether we agree or disagree, we have a right to say it."

The board took no action concerning the policy, but referred it to the policy committee, headed by board member Judith Zanca, for discussion.

Village hears plan for 530 houses

Preliminary plans for building 530 houses in the northwest corner of Arlington Heights have been presented to village officials by Kennedy Bros. Inc.

In 1969, former Wheeling Township political boss James Stavros and his brother, August, proposed building an 18-hole golf course and 845 units on the 230-acre site.

The Stavros' Three Lakes plan was approved by the village, but work was never begun.

JAMES STAVROS was sentenced in 1974 to serve four years in prison after pleading guilty to charges of extortion. He was released on parole after serving almost two years.

Kennedy Bros. has a contract purchase agreement with the Stavros brothers for tne site, which is along the future extension of Lake-Cook Road and bounded by Schaefer, Arlington Heights and Nichols roads.

The plans presented this week to the village plat and subdivision committee call for only single-family homes of various sizes and with various lot sizes. The homes will cost between $100,000 and $120,000.

Kennedy Bros. also plans to build a small commercial center on the southwest corner of Lake-Cook and Arlington Heights roads.

John Best of the village's engineering department said the plans probably will be revised because of two "planning problems:" the village's long-range plans to extend Kennicott Avenue through the site; and a 12-acre parcel in the center of the site, which Kennedy Bros. does not have an agreement to purchase.

Village tests may discolor water

Arlington Heights residents may notice discolored water in the next six to eight weeks because of water tests being conducted by public works employes.

"The testing does stir up the system and causes discolored water for a while, but the water is still safe to drink," Donald Renner, superintendent of utilities, said.

An area on the east side of the village between Northwest Highway and Oakton Street now is undergoing tests, Renner said.

Renner urged residents to call him at 255-4717 when they notice the discolored water so the information can be recorded by the public works department.

Local scene

Vandalism survey out

The Zero Vandalism Committee of Arlington Heights Inc. is conducting a survey to determine the extent of vandalism in the village.

The survey appeared in the last village newsletter, which was mailed to households in November. The committee urges residents to return the questionnaire as soon as possible.

Results will be tabulated by the Junior Woman's Club and a map will be prepared showing patterns of vandalism in the village. The information then will be compared with the results of last year's survey to determine whether there has been any change.

The questionnaire should be mailed to the Zero Vandalism Committee, P.O. Box 751, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

How Much is Garbage Service Worth?

In its recent survey of refuse-collection in 21 Northwest area communities, the Northwest Municipal Conference identified the rates paid (as of May, 1977) in each of the 21 communities.

Only 6 of the 21 towns prescribe so-called "back-door" service — the other 15 use curb-service.

Of those 6 using back-door service, the rates varied from $6.00 to $7.00 monthly. 5 of the 6 get collection service only once weekly. In 3 of them, the rate paid is $6.00 monthly — in the other 2, $7.00.

Arlington Heights is the only community of the entire 21 which has twice-a-week back-door service. Here, the current rate is $6.21 per month — thus, actually 79¢ less than in 2 of the communities receiving only once-a-week service, and only 21¢ more monthly, for the extra pick-up, compared to the other 3 towns.

In these days where most costs seem to be going sky-high, perhaps there is a measure of comfort in the knowledge that currently, you're getting a bargain in your garbage service, at least.

Temporary lease on North asked

The Chicago-based Roosevelt University has asked to lease North School in Arlington Heights as a temporary branch campus beginning in September.

The Arlington Heights Dist. 25 Board of Education Monday said it would consider the request at its next meeting scheduled for 8 p.m. Jan. 12 at South Junior High School, 314 S. Highland.

Dist. 59 OK of leaflets at issue

Does a parent-teacher organization have the right to send information home with children from school without having it approved by the administration?

That's the question being raised in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 after leaflets concerning a promotion policy were sent home with children by two parent-teacher organizations.

The question will be considered by the Dist. 59 policy committee.

District policy now states that any organization that wants to send information home with children must have that material approved by the superintendent's office.

Village hears plan for 530 houses

Preliminary plans for building 530 houses in the northwest corner of Arlington Heights have been presented to village officials by Kennedy Bros. Inc.

In 1969, former Wheeling Township political boss James Stavros and his brother, August, proposed building an 18-hole golf course and 845 units on the 230-acre site.

The Stavros' Three Lakes plan was approved by the village, but work was never begun.

JAMES STAVROS was sentenced in 1974 to serve four years in prison after pleading guilty to charges of extortion. He was released on parole after serving almost two years.

Kennedy Bros. has a contract purchase agreement with the Stavros brothers for the site, which is along the future extension of Lake-Cook Road and bounded by Schaefer, Arlington Heights and Nichols roads.

The plans presented this week to the village plat and subdivision committee call for only single-family homes of various sizes and with various lot sizes. The homes will cost between $100,000 and $120,000.

Kennedy Bros. also plans to build a small commercial center on the southwest corner of Lake-Cook and Arlington Heights roads.

John Best of the village's engineering department said the plans probably will be revised because of two "planning problems:" the village's long-range plans to extend Kennicott Avenue through the site; and a 12-acre parcel in the center of the site, which Kennedy Bros. does not have an agreement to purchase.

Village tests may discolor water

Arlington Heights residents may notice discolored water in the next six to eight weeks because of water tests being conducted by public works employes.

"The testing does stir up the system and causes discolored water for a while, but the water is still safe to drink," Donald Renner, superintendent of utilities, said.

An area on the east side of the village between Northwest Highway and Oakton Street now is undergoing tests, Renner said.

Renner urged residents to call him at 255-4717 when they notice the discolored water so the information can be recorded by the public works department.

Local scene

Vandalism survey out

The Zero Vandalism Committee of Arlington Heights Inc. is conducting a survey to determine the extent of vandalism in the village.

The survey appeared in the last village newsletter, which was mailed to households in November. The committee urges residents to return the questionnaire as soon as possible.

Results will be tabulated by the Junior Woman's Club and a map will be prepared showing patterns of vandalism in the village. The information then will be compared with the results of last year's survey to determine whether there has been any change.

The questionnaire should be mailed to the Zero Vandalism Committee, P.O. Box 751, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

NEUROSIS AND PSYCHOSIS WHAT DO THEY MEAN?

Neurosis is defined as a mild emotional disorder in which you might experience feelings of anxiety, make compulsive acts and usually have physical complaints without specific evidence of disease. Psychosis is any major severe form of mental illness.

Most everybody has a neurosis occasionally and sometimes a mild tranquilizer is prescribed to help ease the stress. With a psychosis, treatment calls for strong medication in many cases. There are hundreds of drugs available for mild or severe mental problems. We carry them all in our prescription stocks.

Adventures of your Garbageman
How Much is Garbage Service Worth?

In its recent survey of refuse-collection in 21 Northwest area communities, the Northwest Municipal Conference identified the rates paid (as of May, 1977) in each of the 21 communities.

Only 6 of the 21 towns prescribe so-called "back-door" service — the other 15 use curb-service.

Of those 6 using back-door service, the rates varied from $6.00 to $7.00 monthly. 5 of the 6 get collection service only once weekly. In 3 of them, the rate paid is $6.00 monthly — in the other 2, $7.00.

Arlington Heights is the only community of the entire 21 which has twice-a-week back-door service. Here, the current rate is $6.21 per month — thus, actually 79¢ less than in 2 of the communities receiving only once-a-week service, and only 21¢ more monthly, for the extra pick-up, compared to the other 3 towns.

In these days where most costs seem to be going sky-high, perhaps there is a measure of comfort in the knowledge that currently, you're getting a bargain in your garbage service, at least.

'No doubt' Biko was killed: lawyer

A British lawyer who attended the inquest into the death of Steve Biko said in Pretoria, S. Africa Friday there was "no doubt" that security police beat the black leader to death and then engaged in a cover-up conspiracy. Sir David Napley, past president of the Law Society of England, made the charge in a 31-page report on the 15-day inquest he attended as a guest of the South African Association of Law Societies. Martinus Prins, the Chief Magistrate of Pretoria, ruled at the inquest that no one could be held responsible for Biko's death from brain injuries he suffered while kept naked and chained on the floor of a police cell.

"I was left in no doubt that Mr. Biko died as a result of brain injury inflicted on him by one or more unidentified members of the security police at some time prior to and reasonably proximate to 0715 hours (12:15 a.m. EST) on the morning of Sept. 7, 1977," Napley said. "A blow or blows no doubt intended only to hurt caused brain damages which resulted in death," he said.

Britain moves on firefighter strike

The British government Thursday made a new move to end the 25-day nationwide strike by firefighters, offering a two-stage formula to increase pay and shorten working hours. Home Secretary Merlyn Rees told the House of Commons that the government's 10 per cent pay increase limit must stand for the next year, but it would agree to implement an agreed formula to further boost firefighters wages in 1978 and 1979. The nation's 35,000 firefighters have demanded a 30 per cent increase on their present pay of $118 per week.

Key welfare reform vote taken

A House subcommittee voted Thursday to eliminate nearly all of the $6 billion-a-year food stamp program, endorsing a key concept in President Carter's $31.1-billion welfare reform proposal. Welfare aides for the administration, which seeks total elimination of food stamps in favor of cash benefits for the poor, said the vote was the most important in a series of subcommittee measures endorsing Carter's plan. The special House welfare reform subcommittee voted 16-12 to provide cash benefits, rather than food stamps, for the poor covered by Carter's plan. Food stamps would be consolidated with family welfare and aid to the blind and disabled.

Meany questions stimulus package

AFL-CIO President George Meany declared Thursday that President Carter's commitment to full employment will be meaningless unless he devises an economic stimulus package to create 75,000 jobs a week for the next four years. Meany, 83, in his keynote address to the AFL-CIO's 12th biennial convention, said Carter's full employment program should include billions of dollars more for public works, lower interest rates to stimulate housing construction and protectionist trade legislation. He strongly opposed any tax cuts for business ,but failed to endorse Carter's promise of substantial individual tax cuts.

Meany's speech aroused little enthusiasm but the delegates loudly applauded speeches by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., who called the convention from Washington where he is suffering with terminal cancer. "I'm alive, I'm feeling better, I'm getting rambunctious and restless, and I'm going to live such a long time that people will wish they had never said all those nice things about me," Humphrey said. Brown appeared to be wooing the AFL-CIO when he repeated Meany's complaint about unfair trade competition. He also called on labor to form a coalition with environmentalists, but added that jobs are more important than protecting the environment.

Blasts rip N.J. chemical tank

A series of explosions ripped through a chemical tank in Bridgeport, N.J. Thursday. Two persons were killed and four others were reported missing in the smoldering debris. Three persons remained hospitalized in critical condition with severe chemical burns, authorities said. Fourteen others, including eight firemen, were treated for minor burns and smoke inhalation and released.

Tests set today on bullet used in Weaver slaying

Investigators will begin tests today to determine whether the bullet that killed Larry Weaver, 35, came from his own rifle.

Police said they will try to match the .22-caliber bullet that killed Weaver with bullets found at a target range he had been known to use.

Weaver's rifle reportedly was taken from his Long Grove home Monday by two men who shot him in the head and then set his body on fire.

Weaver's wife, Jean, 34, a physical education teacher at Elk Grove High School, has told police her husband was killed by two men who invaded their home at 99 Lincoln Ave., thinking Weaver was a banker who kept $1 million in his home.

She told police her husband tried to use his .22-caliber rifle to ward off the intruders when he discovered them in the house, but that he dropped the rifle when one of the men grabbed her.

Mrs. Weaver told police she and her daughter, Tiffany, 8, managed to escape from the intruders when their attention was diverted.

Mrs. Weaver Thursday attended burial services in Arkansas for her husband. Weaver was employed as the assistant superintendent of administration in Wheeling Township Dist. 21.

Correction

A story in Thursday's Daily Herald incorrectly said recovery of a missing rifle owned by Larry Weaver, who was murdered Monday in his Long Grove home may be a key element in the search for his killers. Police have not recovered the weapon. The Daily Herald regrets the error.

FIRST'S NEW 7¾% INDIVIDUAL RETIREMENT ACCOUNTS

New Interest Rate
The First National Bank now offers 7¾% on IRA accounts. No financial institution can offer you a higher interest rate for your retirement funds. Compounded daily for 8.05% yield if left on deposit.

A Tailor-made pension
IRA is a special investment account that you may set up with the First as a way of putting away money for your retirement. It is intended for people who cannot, or do not wish to participate in a private pension plan where they work.

You'll pay less taxes
You can deduct IRA deposits from your taxable income, so you will pay less income tax during your earning years. Taxes are deferred until you start withdrawing the money (when you are in a lower tax bracket).

Your own tax shelter
Not only can you defer the taxes on your deposits, you may also defer the tax on the interest that your funds earn. You only pay taxes on the money that you withdraw, at your tax rate at that time. For most people, an IRA is a great way to shelter their savings from income taxes.

A plan for you
It's your plan, and you decide how much you want to save, up to $1500 per year. You do not have to make deposits according to any schedule. You are eligible to start an IRA account if you are self-employed or employed, but not participating in a pension or profit-sharing plan. This is intended as retirement income, so a substantial interest penalty is required for early withdrawal.

Want to know more?
The First National Bank of Des Plaines has personal counselors that are experts in the IRA laws. They will help you set up the IRA account that best suits your needs. Track employe enters plea

An Arlington Park Race Track employe pleaded innocent Thursday to two counts of perjury in connection with an on going federal investigation into race track workers' connections with an electrical union.

Joseph Leone, 63, who sells programs at Arlington Park, entered the plea before U.S. magistrate Olga Jurco. The magistrate set Dec. 19 for a status hearing in the case.

Leone and a pari-mutuel clerk, John A. Russo, were indicted last week by a federal grand jury investigating whether race track employes were forced to make payoffs to the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Local 134 in order to get jobs.

Dems slate Burke for judgeship

Associate Judge Jerome T. Burke assigned to suburban court District 3, has been slated as one of six Democratic candidates to run for suburban judgeships in November.

Judge Burke, who lives in Barrington, was slated after an unsuccessful attempt to win party support to run county wide.

Suburban candidates are selected by Cook County voters outside Chicago. Republicans traditionally win the suburban court seats while Democrats traditionally capture countywide and city seats.

Slated for the other five posts are: Gerald S. Murphy, Glenview; Herbert D. Jones Jr., Oak Park; Marvin H. Ruttenberg, Skokie; Ronald J. Crane, Flossmoor; and Francis P. Butler of Palos Park.

The Democrats made one switch in their judicial slate. Calvin C. Campbell was slated for the appellate bench replacing Associate Judge Willie Whiting who in turn was slated for a circuit judgeship.

Ms. Whiting had been rated qualified to run for a circuit judgeship but not for the appellate bench. She originally had sought slating as a circuit judge.

Track employe enters plea

An Arlington Park Race Track employe pleaded innocent Thursday to two counts of perjury in connection with an on going federal investigation into race track workers' connections with an electrical union.

Joseph Leone, 63, who sells programs at Arlington Park, entered the plea before U.S. magistrate Olga Jurco. The magistrate set Dec. 19 for a status hearing in the case.

Leone and a pari-mutuel clerk, John A. Russo, were indicted last week by a federal grand jury investigating whether race track employes were forced to make payoffs to the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Local 134 in order to get jobs.

Dems slate Burke for judgeship

Associate Judge Jerome T. Burke assigned to suburban court District 3, has been slated as one of six Democratic candidates to run for suburban judgeships in November.

Judge Burke, who lives in Barrington, was slated after an unsuccessful attempt to win party support to run county wide.

Suburban candidates are selected by Cook County voters outside Chicago. Republicans traditionally win the suburban court seats while Democrats traditionally capture countywide and city seats.

Slated for the other five posts are: Gerald S. Murphy, Glenview; Herbert D. Jones Jr., Oak Park; Marvin H. Ruttenberg, Skokie; Ronald J. Crane, Flossmoor; and Francis P. Butler of Palos Park.

The Democrats made one switch in their judicial slate. Calvin C. Campbell was slated for the appellate bench replacing Associate Judge Willie Whiting who in turn was slated for a circuit judgeship.

Ms. Whiting had been rated qualified to run for a circuit judgeship but not for the appellate bench. She originally had sought slating as a circuit judge.

Crane urges U.S. help to get water

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, Thursday called for the creation of a new federal lending institution to help finance construction of Lake Michigan water pipelines to the Northwest and Western suburbs.

Meeting with representatives of those water-poor communities at the O'Hare Hilton, Crane promised to introduce legislation that would provide long-term, low-interest loans for the pipeline construction.

"I think that is something we can get bipartisan support for," Crane said, noting the major obstacle would be from other parts of the country not experiencing water supply problems.

CRANE SAID HIS office has explored other funding alternatives, but found that there is now no agency that can fund the multimillion dollar project under existing legislation.

The pipelines are needed to bring Lake Michigan water to towns with dwindling ground water supplies. Eight Northwest suburbs already have state permission to tap the lake water supply, including Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove, Mount Prospect and Palatine.

Ten western suburbs also have state approval to use lake water.

The Norwest communities were represented by two water groups — SHARE + 3 and DAMP. Cost estimates are over $60 million for the proposed SHARE + 3 pipeline that would connect with the City of Chicago water supply near O'Hare Airport. Local officials say traditional financing sources would place a severe strain on their bonding power.

CHARLES WILLIS, village manager of Elk Grove Village and chairman of SHARE + 3, said it has taken 15 years for the suburbs to get permission to use Lake Michigan water.

"But it may be physically and economically impossible to go that last mile without some assistance," he said.

Crane said he would like to see a national water program developed, but said that kind of legislation could not be passed in time to benefit the Chicago area.

"It could be years and I don't know if the communities could afford to wait that long," he said, noting that money from such a program wouldn't be available until the 1980's.

He said even a modification of existing legislation to provide grant money would be a time consuming undertaking.

HOFFMAN ESTATES Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said none of the towns want the federal government to foot the bill for the project. "We are talking about people who want to pay their own way, and because they want to pay their own way we are having more hassle than if we were asking for it free," she said.

State Rep. Jack B. Williams, D-Franklin Park, agreed saying that long-term, low interest loans would be the most expeditious route.

"We're not talking about all that much money — maybe $400 million," he said. "With the billions of dollars we give away, this is one way to really help these communities."

Irvin and Sharon Wollerman farm 1,000 acres of Illinois' richest land. But their life has gotten rougher lately as costs rise and commodity prices drop. They think a farmers' strike might help.

Farmers want parity; may strike to get it

Stories by Toni Ginnetti

WYANET, Ill. — The "ole boys" start joking when they get together to talk about farming. They tell the one about a fellow who inherited a million dollars and lost it all because he became a farmer.

Then they tell the story about a young farmer from Bloomington who bought a new $70,000 combine last year and had only made one payment on it before it got mired and wrecked in wet ground during harvest. He hanged himself.

That's the way the conversations go these days among Irvin Wollerman and his neighbors. They kid, but they know there isn't much that's funny in farming anymore.

Grain prices are down, costs of nearly every farming essential — from seed to tractors to loan interest rates — are spiraling ever upward, and the men and women of America's Heartland say they can't take much more.

Even in the fertile plains of Illinois, the core of the Grain Belt that boasts of feeding the world, farmers like Wollerman talk of huge debts, crops that cost more to plant than they return in sales and worse days ahead.

And now they are talking, too, of a strike, of "parking the plows" beginning Dec. 14, withholding their goods from market and, if necessary, not planting next spring.

The aim is to drive up commodity prices and attain the mythical quotient called "parity," the theoretical fair price for agricultural products.

For farmers, the stalwarts of individualism and free enterprise, it is a desperation move.

But America's farmers are desperate.

There was a time when 39-year-old Irv Wollerman dreamed about this 1,000 acre farm he runs 100 miles west of Chicago.

Farms surrounded him growing up in the undeveloped lands near Tinley Park in the 1950s, but family needs dictated getting a job at age 16, so Wollerman went to Western Electric and became a telephone systems installer.

"I was only 18 when we got married," his wife Sharon, 33, says. "He decided he wanted to go into farming. He bought some old equipment and would fix it up. We started a farm in Mokena, Ill. We had $12,000 to our name and we paid about $270 an acre. You couldn't touch land for that now.

Being a farmer means caring for $60,000 equipment.

"Then we moved to Marseilles, Ill. and bought a 185-acre farm there. He was still working for Western Electric, working all day and then coming home at night to the farm.

"Finally he said 'it's got to be one or the other' and he chose farming. Everybody said we were crazy, he was giving up a good job and a pension."

Four years ago the Wollermans and their two sons, 14-year-old Mark and 11-year-old Karl, moved to the Wyanet farm, 350 acres of which they are buying and the rest which they rent for prices that run from $150 to $203 per acre.

"I worked day and night for eight years to get going," Wollerman says. And that labor has translated into a family corporation with $200,000 invested in equipment, a $250,000 debt that will probably increase another $50,000 next year, monthly bills that would stagger most suburbanities — and a life he says he wouldn't trade.

Wollerman is part of a diminishing breed. Farmers today make up less than 4 per cent of the country's population, but they produce nearly 90 per cent of the nation's agricultural products. Statistics say they worked last year for a net income of $7,203, a figure $4,524 less than the net income of 1973.

Russian grain deals bring winces from most consumers who see them as red flags for higher food prices. Farmers see them as salvation because when there is a buyer for their goods, surpluses go down and prices go up -- at least they're supposed to.

Wollerman understands the economics. What he doesn't understand is why he's working ever harder for less.

The figures he deals with would hardly compute in even the most modern of math books. It costs Wollerman and area farmers about $2.27 per bushel to produce the corn crop this year. They will sell it for about $2.09 per bushel, according to current average commodity prices.

But in theory, the corn should sell for $3.45 per bushel. That is the parity price, a figure first set during the years 1910-1914 and last adjusted in 1967.

Parity is a watchword in farming. The concept behind it is simple: the price of a bushel of corn should keep pace with the cost of all other goods, and what you could buy with the price of a bushel of corn in the 1910-1914 period you should still be able to buy today.

But farmers, don't get parity for their goods, even though consumer costs have risen. And the better the crop, the lower the prices to the farmers.

That is arithmetic Wollerman is tired of living with.

Sharon Wollerman should be working on the account books today.

There are about $4,000 in bills to pay this month, "and that's not farm costs that's just bills," she says. Bills like health insurance at $100 per month, hail insurance at $6,000 per year, vehicle license plate costs at $2,000 a year, a hired man's wages and machine parts.

But this is a slow month, she says, not like the bigger months when as much as $12,000 in bills can add up. This time the books can wait until tomorrow.

Sharon is used to dealing in terms of thousands of dollars. Running a farm means $67,000 combines, $20,000 semi-trucks, $5,000 pickups, $25,000 planters, and expensive chisel plows and grain plows and field cultivators and tractors.

There is a used, late-model Lincoln Continental on the farm, too, the family car. A city dweller might wonder about that, unless he thinks in terms of a farmer who is used to spending more for equipment than many spend for a house.

Traditional symbols of a modern farm.

"Don't think that all farmers live in as nice a house as we do," Sharon says warming up the coffee in her two-year-old microwave oven. "We didn't always. This house is 142 years old and you wouldn't believe what it looked like when we moved in.

"Our relatives come here and say 'boy, do you have a nice house.' Well, why shouldn't I have a nice house. And we really get irked when people say 'how can you go on that vacation?' Well, two years ago was the first time we ever had a vacation."

Sharon Wollerman never planned to live on a farm. She grew up in Joliet and like most "town girls" thought farmers were country hicks.

Then she met her husband who wanted to be a farmer, an occupation she's learned is complex, taxing and not always profitable.

"The farmer is no hayseed. He has to know about chemicals, the weather, the land, how to keep the books.

"We're up every day at 5 or 6 a.m. and don't go to sleep until about 11 p.m. When we get going at harvest, we keep going. They might work 48 hours straight (to get grain in if the weather is good). If they're working, they don't come in to eat. I never know when they might come in. I usually bring lunch and dinner out to them.

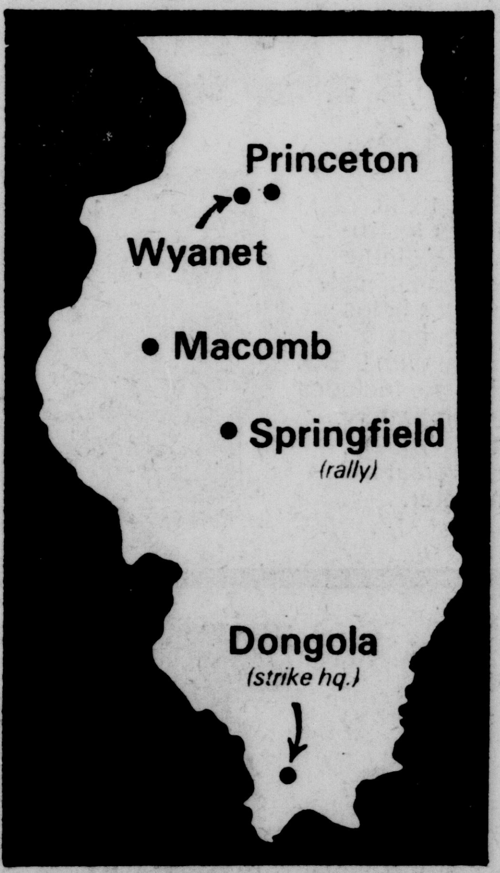
"We work all year round. If we're not planting, we're fixing equipment. And Saturday and Sunday are just another day. I'm not complaining, because my husband won't go back to a city job and I love the country. All we're asking is that we get a little something.

"Farmers look good on paper. I guess we'd be worth about $1.5 million on paper. But we owe a lot of money at 9.5 per cent interest, and that's on everything I buy, clothing, food, everything.

"I go to the store and I'm a consumer like everyone else. I spend $70 to $80 a week, but I'm paying 9.5 per cent interest on that because it's money that we've borrowed. And come April, we have to take a loan out again.

"People say the government 'gives farmers money.' Well, the government doesn't 'give' anything. They loan it and you have to pay it back with interest.

"Farming is like shooting craps. It's like playing in Las Vegas. You take your investment and you gamble that you'll have a good year-but there's no way of knowing. I wish to heck we did



State strike headquarters are in Dongola, but farmers in Macomb, Wyanet and Princeton are also planning to participate Saturday in the Springfield rally.

Tough times for farmers mean rough times for all

PRINCETON, Ill. — What's bad for farmers is bad for Ralph Rod.

Hard times on the farm mean farmers don't buy equipment, and the expensive new tractors sitting unsold at Rod's implement dealership tell what kind of year it's been in rural Illinois.

"Our tractor sales compared to last year are down. We had a good first half, but we're down about 50 per cent. Profits will be down more than that. I'd say we have about $500,000 in inventory.

"We've hid a lot of the equipment so it doesn't look so bad. Farmers aren't dumb. They see a lot of inventory and they'll try to get the price down.

"We've had three real good years until now, but next year looks like it will be way down. A few years ago farmers got a good price for their crop, they had surplus money and they updated their equipment. Now it's turned around.

"I'm afraid it's going to be worse next year. After the first of the year I think you'll see factories like International Harvester and John Deere will lay off about 40 per cent of their people."

* * * *

The grain elevator manager had few kind words for farmers or their gripes.

"I'm not the guy to talk to. I'm kind of bitter toward the farmer. These farmers will buy all this equipment and write it off on their income tax. There's nobody that gets a bigger break on his income tax than a farmer and that's a God's fact.

"Plus they get a guarantee from the government on their crop prices. Does the government guarantee you a job or a wage? They're all driving around in Eldorados and Mercedes. The farmers aren't losing money. Don't talk to me about farmers because I don't feel sorry for anyone who's making more money than me."

You might expect a man with $20 million in outstanding agricultural loans to be worried about low commodities prices and talk of a farmers' strike.

But Gordon Sears isn't about to panic.

"I'm sympathetic to the farmer, but my personal feeling is that the news media is overplaying the situation," says the president of the $84 million Citizens 1st National Bank of Princeton, the largest in Central Illinois.

"As far as the bank is concerned, we don't expect any farmers to go broke because of low grain prices. Farmers are the best customers we have and we've never had a dollar lost on a farmer in the past 30 years. We have quite a few who borrow $100,000 to $300,000 and one is as high as $600,000, but you can't get into farming unless you borrow. Farmers never really get out of debt and, anyway, most don't intend to.

"If things were bad you'd think they would get out of farming and there would be more land available, but there is none. You'd have to go back at least eight or ten years to find the last farm liquidation sale we had. I think farmers are extremely competent men.

"This strike won't happen. The farmers are too independent. I wouldn't be critical of the farmers if they did this, but they won't. They're free enterprise people."

Roger Bruyn knows what's bothering farmers.

"If you survey farmers today they'll say they want the market to set the prices for grain, not the government," the director of the Bureau County Farm Bureau says.

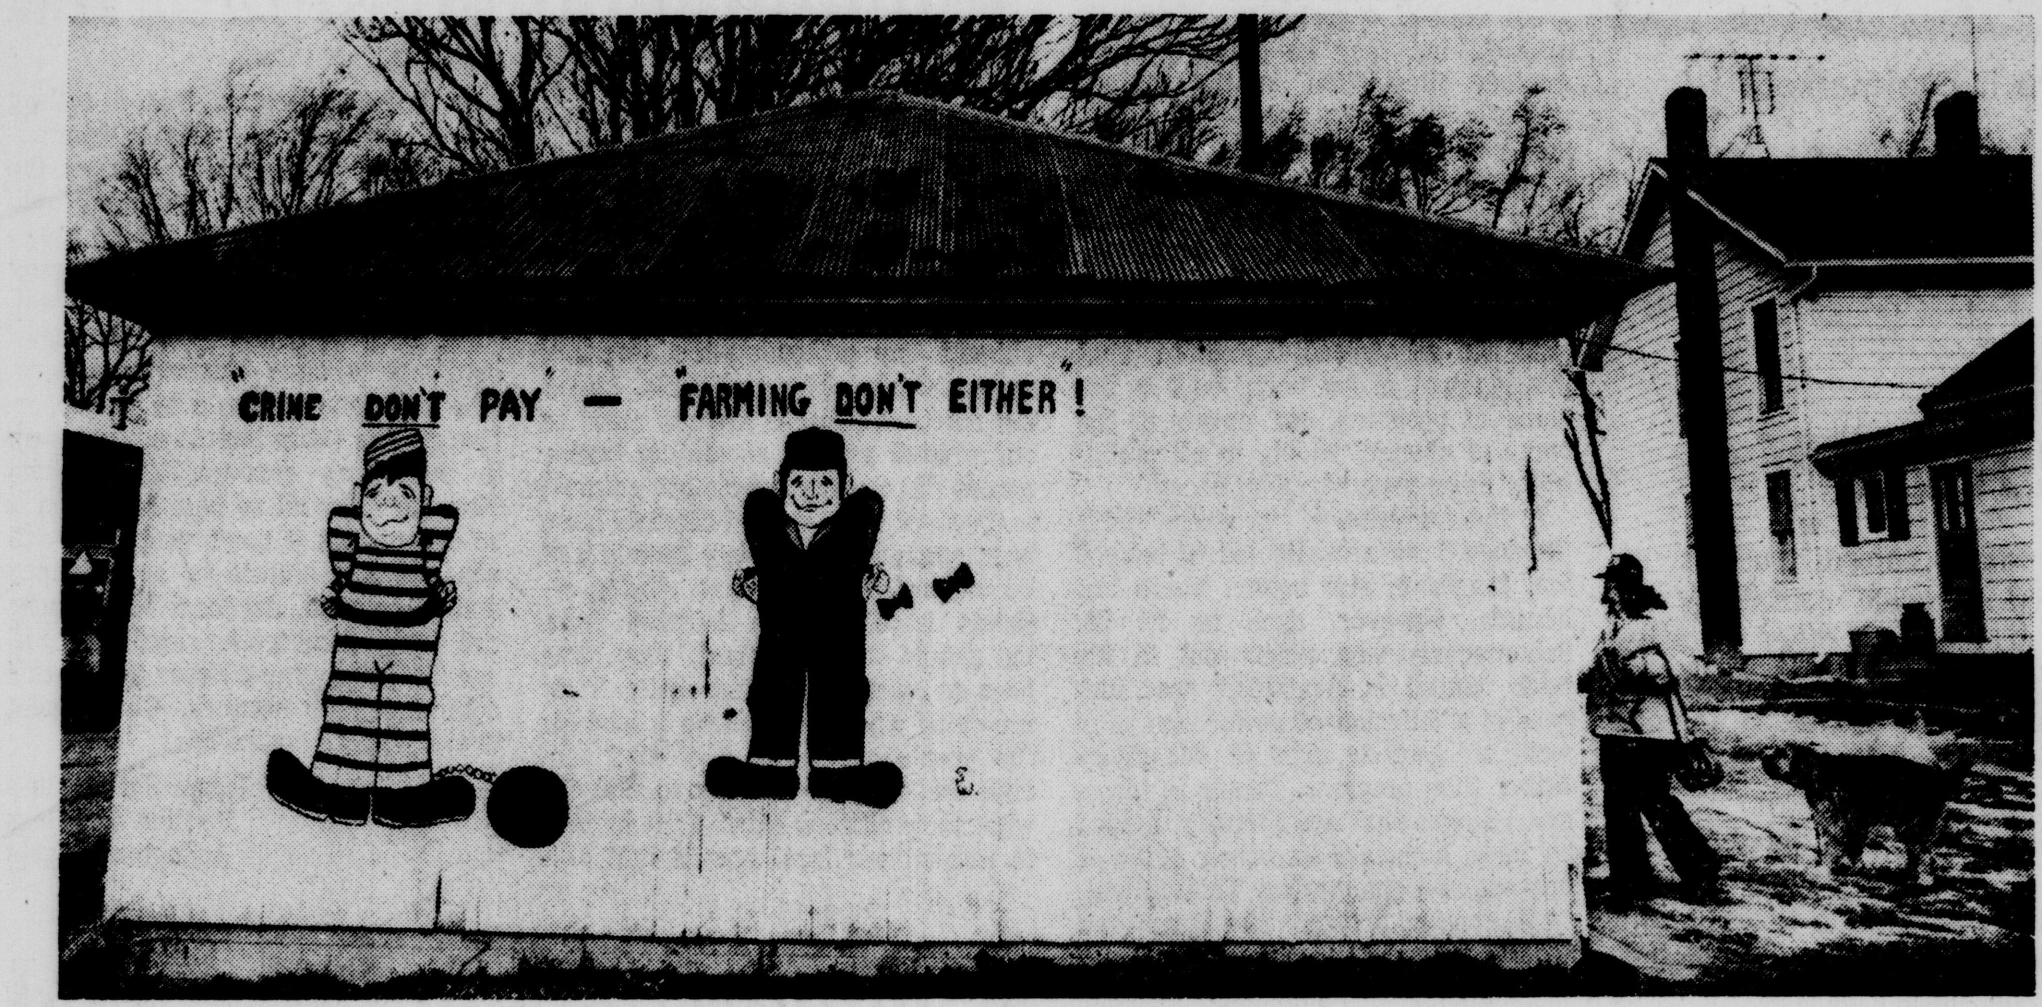
"We've had a change in the export philosophy with the change in administrations. Don't get me wrong. I'm not down on Jimmy Carter, but he changed the export policy. Carter put the word out to our ambassadors to stay out of agriculture. Agricultural exports will be down this year, and when you're not selling goods, you're building up supplies and surplus, and that brings down price.

"The Russians are smart traders and we get out-traded by the Japanese, too. The only reason the Russians are in (the American grain market) is because the grain prices are low.

Roger Bruyn, Farm Bureau director: strike won't work.

"The agriculture strike I do not feel is going to get that much support. The market place dictates for the farmer. He won't sell grain until prices are what he wants. You can talk to five farmers and get five different figures on what's a fair price. In any strike, you need 100 per cent support, but you don't have any control over who's going to dump what when in farming.

"The only person a farmer is going to hurt if he walks away is himself."



Farm philosophy, 1977: a sign of the times in rural Illinois.

know, but at least if we got 100 per cent parity, we'd know what prices would be.

"Everybody thinks farming is peaches and cream. They ought to see us, spend a week following these guys around. Then tell me all farmers are rich."

$72,000 is sitting in a section of Irv Wollerman's farm today.

It sits in the form of soybeans that have yet to be harvested, the last portion of the Wollerman grain crop standing in the fields.

Wollerman is riding a combine on another soybean crop this day, completing a contract he has with another big farmer to harvest a 250 acre field.

"The beans are better this year but the prices are about 40 per cent lower," he says over the noise that fills the cab. The beans also have an unwanted, healthy portion of weeds, the result of late rains that failed to activate herbicides on the field.

Wollerman has learned to live with unpredictable weather. Hail in 1975 wiped out 50 per cent of the corn and soybeans around Wyanet. This year late rains threw off harvesting.

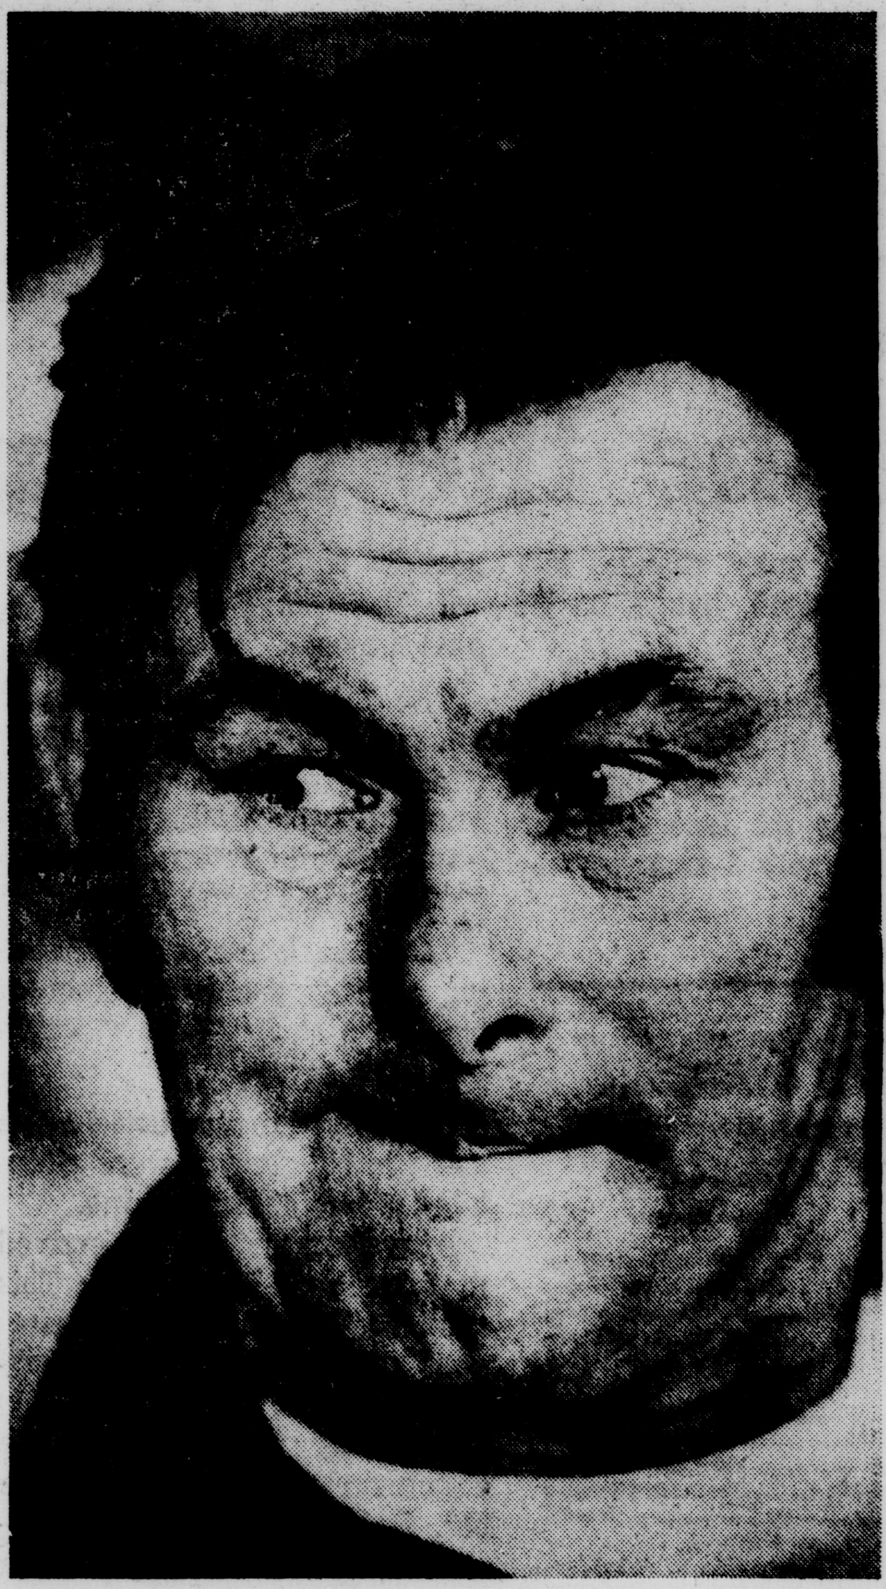
"Sure, there are days you think of leaving, like when you have a breakdown or prices go down or it rains," Wollerman says. "We're the biggest gamblers in the world. But you're your own boss, or at least you like to think you are."

Farming nearly cost Wollerman his life two years ago when he got pinned under a tractor tire. He was hospitalized for two weeks and confined at home for three months aferward. He still limps slightly at times.

Eight years of farming show in his weathered face and hands. The concerns he has about American farmers show in his words.

"I figure I'm about $250,000 in debt. I think it's about time things were brought out to the public. Look what you pay for a quart of milk. The farmer gets about 12 cents of that and he's the one who's done all the work. There's something wrong somewhere.

"Everybody thinks things can't change, but others have. It's time the farmers got together."



Farmers like Lewience Kunkel and other Wyanet grangers who meet in Irv Wollerman's home think a nationwide farmers strike is the only way to boost commodity prices and insure at least a break-even future. What started with five disgrunted farmers in Springfield, Colo. has spread to the grassroots and will culminate with a nation-wide strike Dec. 14. As a warm up, hundreds of Illinois farmers will drive their tractors and farm equipment to Springfield Saturday for a strike rally.

Tough times for farmers mean rough times for all

PRINCETON, Ill. — What's bad for farmers is bad for Ralph Rod.

Hard times on the farm mean farmers don't buy equipment, and the expensive new tractors sitting unsold at Rod's implement dealership tell what kind of year it's been in rural Illinois.

"Our tractor sales compared to last year are down. We had a good first half, but we're down about 50 per cent. Profits will be down more than that. I'd say we have about $500,000 in inventory.

"We've hid a lot of the equipment so it doesn't look so bad. Farmers aren't dumb. They see a lot of inventory and they'll try to get the price down.

"We've had three real good years until now, but next year looks like it will be way down. A few years ago farmers got a good price for their crop, they had surplus money and they updated their equipment. Now it's turned around.

"I'm afraid it's going to be worse next year. After the first of the year I think you'll see factories like International Harvester and John Deere will lay off about 40 per cent of their people."

The grain elevator manager had few kind words for farmers or their gripes.

"I'm not the guy to talk to. I'm kind of bitter toward the farmer. These farmers will buy all this equipment and write it off on their income tax. There's nobody that gets a bigger break on his income tax than a farmer and that's a God's fact.

"Plus they get a guarantee from the government on their crop prices. Does the government guarantee you a job or a wage? They're all driving around in Eldorados and Mercedes. The farmers aren't losing money. Don't talk to me about farmers because I don't feel sorry for anyone who's making more money than me."

You might expect a man with $20 million in outstanding agricultural loans to be worried about low commodities prices and talk of a farmers' strike.

But Gordon Sears isn't about to panic.

"I'm sympathetic to the farmer, but my personal feeling is that the news media is overplaying the situation," says the president of the $84 million Citizens 1st National Bank of Princeton, the largest in Central Illinois.

"As far as the bank is concerned, we don't expect any farmers to go broke because of low grain prices. Farmers are the best customers we have and we've never had a dollar lost on a farmer in the past 30 years. We have quite a few who borrow $100,000 to $300,000 and one is as high as $600,000, but you can't get into farming unless you borrow. Farmers never really get out of debt and, anyway, most don't intend to.

"If things were bad you'd think they would get out of farming and there would be more land available, but there is none. You'd have to go back at least eight or ten years to find the last farm liquidation sale we had. I think farmers are extremely competent men.

"This strike won't happen. The farmers are too independent. I wouldn't be critical of the farmers if they did this, but they won't. They're free enterprise people."

Roger Bruyn knows what's bothering farmers.

"If you survey farmers today they'll say they want the market to set the prices for grain, not the government," the director of the Bureau County Farm Bureau says.

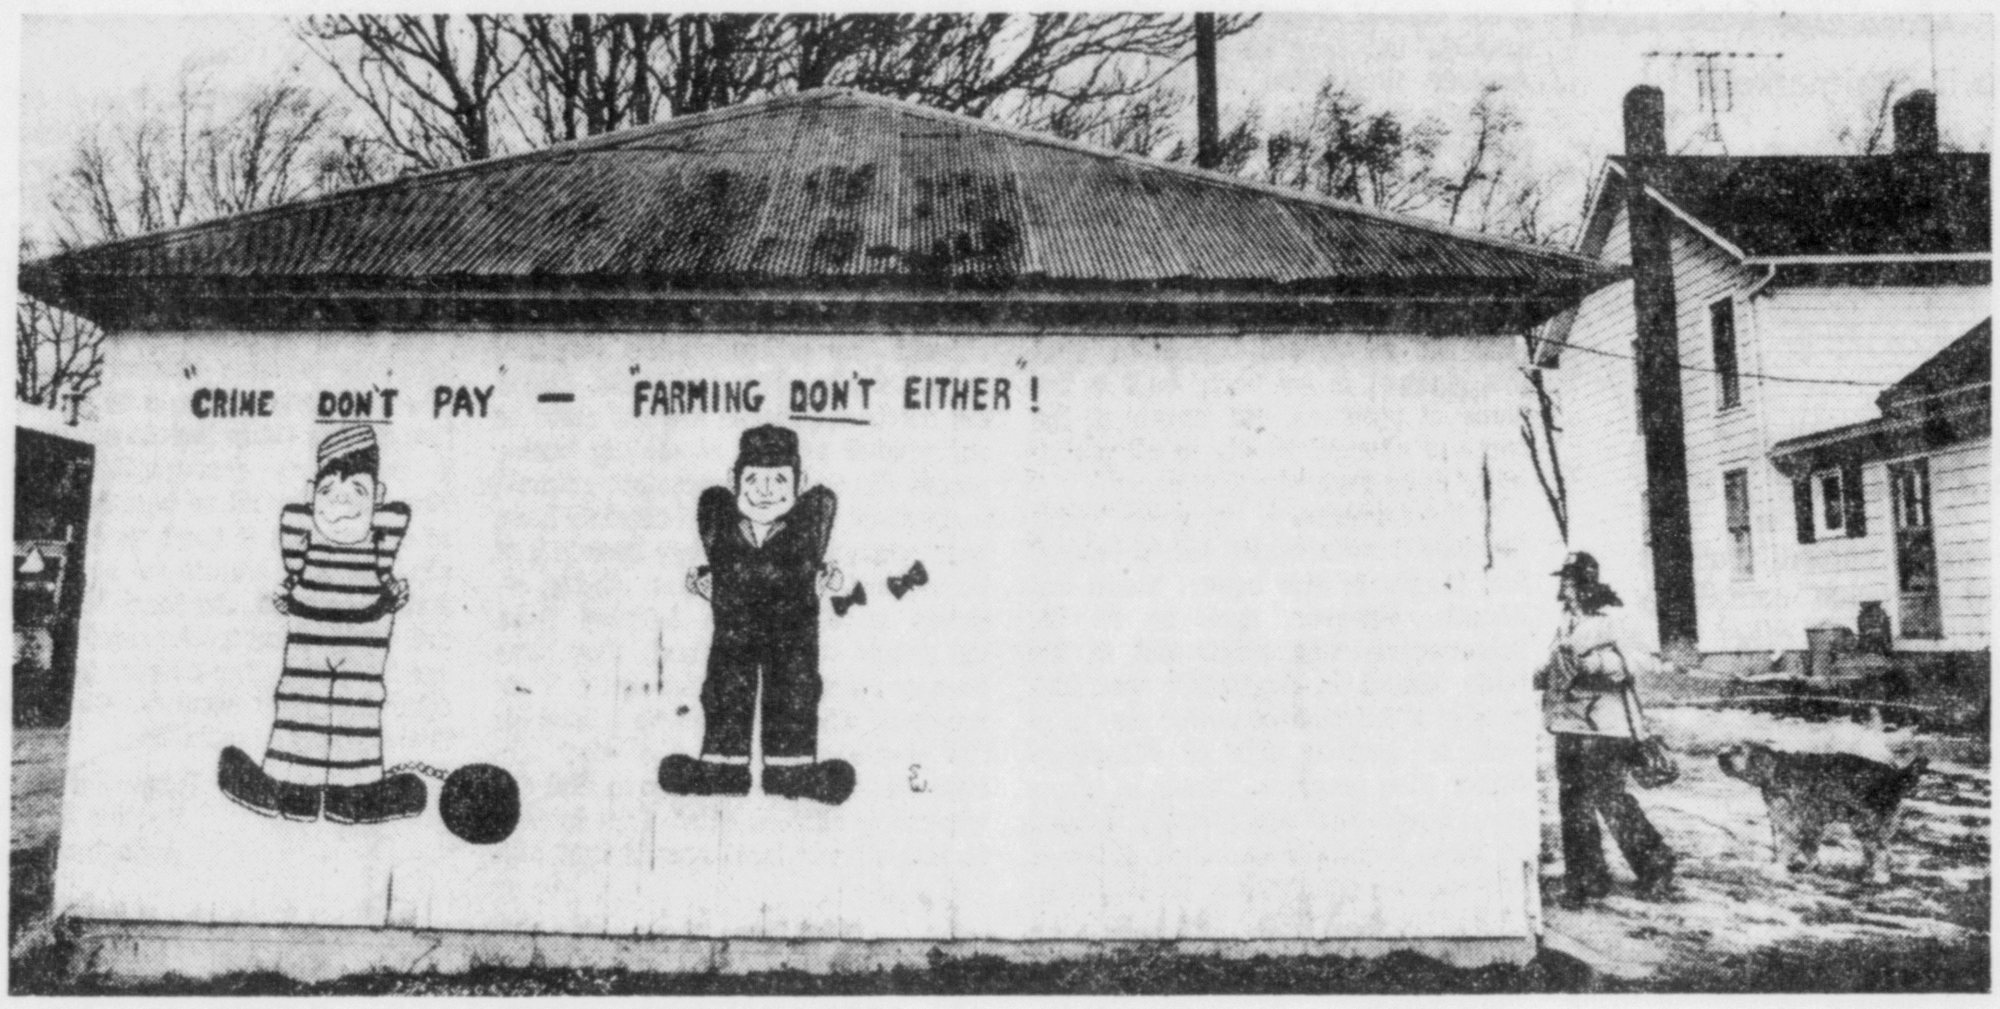
"We've had a change in the export philosophy with the change in administrations. Don't get me wrong. I'm not down on Jimmy Carter, but he changed the export policy. Carter put the word out to our ambassadors to stay out of agriculture. Agricultural exports will be down this year, and when you're not selling goods, you're building up supplies and surplus, and that brings down price.

"The Russians are smart traders and we get out-traded by the Japanese, too. The only reason the Russians are in (the American grain market) is because the grain prices are low.

Roger Bruyn, Farm Bureau director: strike won't work.

"The agriculture strike I do not feel is going to get that much support. The market place dictates for the farmer. He won't sell grain until prices are what he wants. You can talk to five farmers and get five different figures on what's a fair price. In any strike, you need 100 per cent support, but you don't have any control over who's going to dump what when in farming.

"The only person a farmer is going to hurt if he walks away is himself."



Farm philosophy, 1977: a sign of the times in rural Illinois.

know, but at least if we got 100 per cent parity, we'd know what prices would be.

"Everybody thinks farming is peaches and cream. They ought to see us, spend a week following these guys around. Then tell me all farmers are rich."

$72,000 is sitting in a section of Irv Wollerman's farm today.

It sits in the form of soybeans that have yet to be harvested, the last portion of the Wollerman grain crop standing in the fields.

Wollerman is riding a combine on another soybean crop this day, completing a contract he has with another big farmer to harvest a 250 acre field.

"The beans are better this year but the prices are about 40 per cent lower," he says over the noise that fills the cab. The beans also have an unwanted, healthy portion of weeds, the result of late rains that failed to activate herbicides on the field.

Wollerman has learned to live with unpredictable weather. Hail in 1975 wiped out 50 per cent of the corn and soybeans around Wyanet. This year late rains threw off harvesting.

"Sure, there are days you think of leaving, like when you have a breakdown or prices go down or it rains," Wollerman says. "We're the biggest gamblers in the world. But you're your own boss, or at least you like to think you are."

Probe the bid mystery

The faces may change, but the same cloud hangs on in Wheeling.

This time Trustee Roger Powers, elected in April on ticket with the slogan "let the sun shine in," is the face, and his relationship with a business associate trying to do business with the village is the questionable subject.

The facts of the case raise enough questions that there clearly should be an investigation by State's Atty. Bernard Carey to determine whether the law has been violated.

The case began when Wheeling officials decided to request bids on a study of the village's insurance needs.

Only one firm submitted a bid, and the bid figures were circulated to trustees in a memo.

After that, another bid arrived at Wheeling Village Hall. This time, the bid was from an insurance agent who is Powers' business associate.

Even more mysterious are the circumstances surrounding the bid. Douglas Reid, Powers' associate who is an agent for a firm called Encompas, sent a letter dated Oct. 21 to village hall with the bid. That date was four days before trustees received a report containing the bid of the only other firm involved. However, the postmark on the letter was Oct. 25, the day after trustees had received the report.

When questioned about the situation, Powers denied leaking the bid information to Reid, and Reid denied any wrongdoing. But the nature of the business relationship bears a closer look.

Reid and his partner Neil Brant operate an insurance agency in a building at 95 S. Milwaukee Ave. Powers is provided free office space there in exchange for his advice on insurance matters to Brant. The three even share the same telephone number.

The relationship between the men is too close and the circumstances of the bidding too strange to be dismissed easily as coincidence. Carey shoujld act to clear up the questions in the case.

Emperor faces hazardous future

Once the divine right of kings was accepted as the natural state of affairs. Monarchs lived in splendor while illiterate peasants toiled endless hours in the fields.

The self-coronation of Jean Bedel Bokassa as emperor of the Central African Empire thus is a throwback to a stage of history that most of the world has long since passed. Bokassa spent $25 million on the pageant and even invited the Pope to come to Africa to crown him, just as an earlier Pope had crowned Napoleon.

Emperor Bokassa I reportedly took Napoleon's coronation as his model. He clearly wants to model his reign on the leader who conquered much of Europe.

However, particularly since the per capita income in Bokassa's land is just $155 a year, it would probably behoove the world's newest claimant to a throne to study what happened to other monarchs who lived lavishly while disregarding the poverty afflicting their subjects.

The story of Louis the XVI and his wife Marie Antoinette might be particularly instructive.

Hayes deserves penalty

Woody Hayes justifiably can claim to be one of the few consistently successful coaches in college football. He has whatever it takes to produce winning teams.

Yet, for all the admirable characteristics embodied in the man, one is absent — maturity. Woody Hayes is an immature loser.

Millions of football fans recently saw an example of this at the nationally televised game Nov. 19 between Hayes' Ohio State team and arch-rival Michigan. Late in the game Ohio state fumbled, and the outlook turned bleak for the favored Buckeyes.

An ABC-TV cameraman focused on Hayes, standing in obvious frustration on the sideline. The coach noticed the camera and then, in an outburst of temper, swung at the cameraman's groin. Fortunately the cameraman escaped unhurt. Unfortunately Hayes, too, escaped unhurt.

The outburst earned Hayes a public reprimand last week from Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke, a penalty that is far too lenient. Hayes has been reprimanded before and has publicly lost his temper no fewer than three times since 1971. Never has the punishment exceeded a publicized slap on the wrist, which a man like Hayes shrugs off as a minor occupational hazard.

Woody Hayes is 64 years old and perhaps it is too late to hope he will ever grow up to become a good loser.

One thing is sure, however. Until his bad sportsmanship brings a realistic punishment, he will never change. And that means he will continue to be an example of how not to engage in high level competition.

'Rte. 53 plan not progress'

In recent weeks, there has been much public discussion regarding the development of F.A.P. 432, commonly referred to as "Highway 53." There are many compelling reasons why this senseless and destructive highway should not be constructed. Many concrete objections to this construction have been recently delineated by the president of the Village of Long Grove, Mr. Robert Coffin.

Many opposing reasons have been given for the development of the highway, such as the relief of congestion, the provision of job opportunities, the facilitation of transit from the city, and the increase in development. I feel compelled to discuss this issue from a more abstract viewpoint.

Our aggressive, high-velocity culture deludes itself with the false myth that progress is equated with change; the more rapid the change encouraged, the more desirable the project. I would propose that, though the current culture is fraught with change, it has made very little progress. In fact, if present environmental policies are considered, it may be on a course of self-destruction...

As an illustration of this confusion, the telephone communications bring people into immediate verbal contact with one another, affording an opportunity for human friendship and intimacy; yet, human beings find themselves more distant and alone in an an environment burgeoning with people. They have a great deal of opportunity for human contact; but they have few friends. Another illustration is the culture which is filled with a surfeit of goods, and yet, the suicide rate and the crime rate have not declined. We build high speed highways making possible more rapid transportation; whereas, the reduction of the speed limit has saved 10,000 lives a year. It must be recognized, therefore, that this highway is not being built in the name of progress, but simply in the name of change, which, in all probability, is an early signal of decay.

In the confusion of "progress" with "change," we are also led to believe that bigger is also better. There are heralds, however, such as E. M. Schumacher, who points out in his book "Small is Beautiful" that bigness is a delusion of power and may well be another sign of decadence rather than progress. People in towns and villages that are literally divided by large highways lose their sense of oneness and community. This difficulty in contact prevents the towns and villages from maintaining themselves in their integrity.

One of the strongest biological drives in the human animal is that of dominance over the earth and his fellow creatures. It is this lust for power which gives man the mental myopia of seeing himself apart from his environment rather than part of it. If he could but see himself as an intricate participant in an almost limitless number of ecosystems, rather than attempting to become the master of all he surveys, he might with some wisdom learn to survive within them. This way, he achieves true power — the power over himself — and stands coexistent with his fellow creatures. It is in this context that Long Grove must jealously guard the treasured environment it possesses and do all that it can to prevent the further destruction of its valuable, natural assets. It must remain unencumbered by these restrictive ribbons of concrete which serve only to suffocate.

Although it has been said that Long Grove wishes to preserve itself as a town for the wealthy, Mr. Coffin has pointed out that no park district could hope to purchase with public finds that which has been privately secured and protected. There is a strong and reverential motive and effort of those in Long Grove to preserve an area of semi-wilderness with her fields, streams and woods. Nature has no constituency for her trees, wildflowers, animals, woods and prairies.

Lastly, in this population, the assumption is that growth is good and, without growth, society cannot survive. Here, again, this ethic is almost as preponderant as that in which progress is equated with change. I propose that there are limits of growth and limits of size and population density which, as yet, are not well-established. In the presence of man's continual alienation from himself and his surroundings, it would be well for him to have less passing acquaintances and more neighbors and friends. I ask that those who are involved with community development give careful consideration to social fabrication in which life's velocity gradually declines so that man can encounter another human being as not simply another hitchhiker on the road of life. It is important to recognize that the biologic roots of this human animal require lifelong friendships.

In conclusion, these basic points have been discussed:

1. The illusion that progress is to be equated with change;

2. The myth that an increase in size is an increase in goodness;

3. That man must live as a steward of his earth rather than exerting dominion over it;

4. There are those who must speak for those creatures who have no voice and, thus, for life itself, and

5. One must assert that the concept of community is not the co-equal to that of city and community has definitive requirements not commensurate with unlimited growth.

Although I realize that these concepts have little to do directly with money, politics or votes, it is hoped that it can be recognized they are written in the spirit of one in pursuit of a more fully-human society.

'TAG means democracy'

Do you still believe democracy can work at the local level? Do you want taxation with representation? Do you expect your elected officials to vote reflecting your opinions? TAG (Taxpayers Action Group) believes government by the people and for the people is still possible.

Ever since mid-July skyrocketing property taxes have been shocking citizens into protesting the spending sprees of our elected officials. We in the northern suburbs are not alone in our protest against escalating taxes; across the country people are stunned to discover their elected officials have been engaged in runaway spending of tax dollars. Because these elected officials have become isolated from the people they represent, they have become extremely paternalistic. They are doing what they believe is best for the people. Since these elected officials feel no responsibility to find out what their citizens want, TAG intends to remind our local boards that citizens' opinions should count and that democracy can work.

In Arlington Heights, TAG is setting up a network of citizen communication. It will be able to gather the opinions of the voters by polling individual members and by asking members to poll their homeowners' associations. TAG will monitor board meetings, relay information to its members and tabulate citizens' reactions. The local boards should be as supportive as The Daily Herald editors were in their very encouraging editorial Nov. 19. After all no board decision is so urgent that it can't wait until citizens have a chance to be informed and to respond. All local boards who are truly democratic should encourage TAG and urge citizens to join this communication network. Government is everybody's business!

A cheap teller betrayed for the lack of a stamp

Jim Bishop

There is a word for Clement: cheap. He was bald and proper, a man with a blond mustache big enough to wax a car. He referred to himself as thrifty. There were two other tellers in that bank who would tell you that Clement was so tight his fingers squeaked when he paid bus fare.

He thought they were jealous. He dressed conservatively, always wrote in the name "Calvin Coolidge" at all presidential elections, evinced the proper note of interest and amiability toward bank customers, and never dated a woman.

Two, he said, could not live as cheaply as one. Arithmetically, two could not live as cheap as one even if the wife had a job. If she earned less than her husband, Clement intoned over his homemade cheese sandwich and glass of water, the husband would be operating at a loss.

NO. NO WOMAN for Clement. He was indeed a male spinster. Of course, if some wealthy woman gave him a friendly smile, he might forget that he was 44 and over the hill. Happily, few women rich or poor ever glanced at Clement.

The bank employes barely nodded to Clement. A junior clerk named Leif Axelsen tried to make friends. He was rebuffed, but, being young, he thought that Clement was a lonely, middle-aged man.

"How about coming to dinner at my house?" Axelsen said. The head teller didn't give the invitation a count of two. "No, thank you," he said. "If I go to your house, it is only proper that I invite you to mine. No, Leif. I enjoy solitude. Besides, they say you have two noisy little children."

Those who pried were poor detectives. No one saw the man after hours. They knew he had a small apartment with shabby furniture left by his mother. They also knew that he saw a movie now and then because the theater manager left passes.

HE TOLD everyone that he would not buy a television set. "Instead," he said, "I have a library card." Young Axelsen shook his head. "What do you do with your salary?" he said. Clement sniffed. "I buy sound stocks."

He became the man nobody knew. The bank examiners arrived at irregular intervals. The veterans knew that it was a waste of time going over Clement's books because he was always balanced within a few cents.

In fact, the most exciting moment in 18 years occurred when an examiner dropped a ledger on a secretary's foot. The current year was different. The trees outside the bank were being stripped of russet and yellow leaves by a cold wind.

Clement had watched the examiners at work. At noon, he took his sandwich to the back room and asked Leif Axelsen to watch his cage and cash drawer until he returned. The young man was happy to pretend he was a teller.

WHEN CLEMENT returned, he barely had time to remove the "Next Window, Please" sign before he opened the cash drawer and emitted a shriek. "Somebody," he yelled, "has robbed the bank. Quick," he shouted to the policeman, "nobody in or out."

Customers froze. Bank officers came running. So did the examiners. They said that they had examined the cash, and it was intact. A little frantic counting, and it was obvious that almost $4,000 was gone.

It couldn't have been Clement. Everyone knew what. He hadn't left the premises. After much shouting of, "Be clam. Everybody quiet down," suspicion fell on Leif Axelsen. Clement moaned, "The truth is that the cash was all right when I left here for the back office. I asked Leif to watch this cage for me." He sighed. "He is the only one —."

THE POLICE WERE called. Axelsen burst into tears. "Clement is right," he said. "I never stole a dime in my life and I haven't taken anything now. But it's true. I was the only person in that cage."

The young man was booked on suspicion of grand larceny. A lieutenant said, "I believe that Axelsen boy. I don't know why. He practically handed himself up to us." The lieutenant hung around the bank for days.

One afternoon he walked into Clement's cage grinning. "The case is solved," he said. "I thought you'd like to know." Clement hung his bald head. "I feel so sorry for his wife and children," he murmured.

"No," the cop said. "Save your pity for yourself. You took the money before lunch, shoved it into a bank envelope, and mailed it to your apartment. It has just come back marked '13 cents in postage due.' "...

Although it has been said that Long Grove wishes to preserve itself as a town for the wealthy, Mr. Coffin has pointed out that no park district could hope to purchase with public finds that which has been privately secured and protected. There is a strong and reverential motive and effort of those in Long Grove to preserve an area of semi-wilderness with her fields, streams and woods. Nature has no constituency for her trees, wildflowers, animals, woods and prairies.

Lastly, in this population, the assumption is that growth is good and, without growth, society cannot survive. Here, again, this ethic is almost as preponderant as that in which progress is equated with change. I propose that there are limits of growth and limits of size and population density which, as yet, are not well-established. In the presence of man's continual alienation from himself and his surroundings, it would be well for him to have less passing acquaintances and more neighbors and friends. I ask that those who are involved with community development give careful consideration to social fabrication in which life's velocity gradually declines so that man can encounter another human being as not simply another hitchhiker on the road of life. It is important to recognize that the biologic roots of this human animal require lifelong friendships.

In conclusion, these basic points have been discussed:

1. The illusion that progress is to be equated with change;

2. The myth that an increase in size is an increase in goodness;

3. That man must live as a steward of his earth rather than exerting dominion over it;

4. There are those who must speak for those creatures who have no voice and, thus, for life itself, and

5. One must assert that the concept of community is not the co-equal to that of city and community has definitive requirements not commensurate with unlimited growth.

Although I realize that these concepts have little to do directly with money, politics or votes, it is hoped that it can be recognized they are written in the spirit of one in pursuit of a more fully-human society.

'TAG means democracy'

Do you still believe democracy can work at the local level? Do you want taxation with representation? Do you expect your elected officials to vote reflecting your opinions? TAG (Taxpayers Action Group) believes government by the people and for the people is still possible.

Ever since mid-July skyrocketing property taxes have been shocking citizens into protesting the spending sprees of our elected officials. We in the northern suburbs are not alone in our protest against escalating taxes; across the country people are stunned to discover their elected officials have been engaged in runaway spending of tax dollars. Because these elected officials have become isolated from the people they represent, they have become extremely paternalistic. They are doing what they believe is best for the people. Since these elected officials feel no responsibility to find out what their citizens want, TAG intends to remind our local boards that citizens' opinions should count and that democracy can work.

In Arlington Heights, TAG is setting up a network of citizen communication. It will be able to gather the opinions of the voters by polling individual members and by asking members to poll their homeowners' associations. TAG will monitor board meetings, relay information to its members and tabulate citizens' reactions. The local boards should be as supportive as The Daily Herald editors were in their very encouraging editorial Nov. 19. After all no board decision is so urgent that it can't wait until citizens have a chance to be informed and to respond. All local boards who are truly democratic should encourage TAG and urge citizens to join this communication network. Government is everybody's business!

A cheap teller betrayed for the lack of a stamp

Jim Bishop

There is a word for Clement: cheap. He was bald and proper, a man with a blond mustache big enough to wax a car. He referred to himself as thrifty. There were two other tellers in that bank who would tell you that Clement was so tight his fingers squeaked when he paid bus fare.

He thought they were jealous. He dressed conservatively, always wrote in the name "Calvin Coolidge" at all presidential elections, evinced the proper note of interest and amiability toward bank customers, and never dated a woman.

Two, he said, could not live as cheaply as one. Arithmetically, two could not live as cheap as one even if the wife had a job. If she earned less than her husband, Clement intoned over his homemade cheese sandwich and glass of water, the husband would be operating at a loss.

NO. NO WOMAN for Clement. He was indeed a male spinster. Of course, if some wealthy woman gave him a friendly smile, he might forget that he was 44 and over the hill. Happily, few women rich or poor ever glanced at Clement.

The bank employes barely nodded to Clement. A junior clerk named Leif Axelsen tried to make friends. He was rebuffed, but, being young, he thought that Clement was a lonely, middle-aged man.

"How about coming to dinner at my house?" Axelsen said. The head teller didn't give the invitation a count of two. "No, thank you," he said. "If I go to your house, it is only proper that I invite you to mine. No, Leif. I enjoy solitude. Besides, they say you have two noisy little children."

Those who pried were poor detectives. No one saw the man after hours. They knew he had a small apartment with shabby furniture left by his mother. They also knew that he saw a movie now and then because the theater manager left passes.

HE TOLD everyone that he would not buy a television set. "Instead," he said, "I have a library card." Young Axelsen shook his head. "What do you do with your salary?" he said. Clement sniffed. "I buy sound stocks."

He became the man nobody knew. The bank examiners arrived at irregular intervals. The veterans knew that it was a waste of time going over Clement's books because he was always balanced within a few cents.

In fact, the most exciting moment in 18 years occurred when an examiner dropped a ledger on a secretary's foot. The current year was different. The trees outside the bank were being stripped of russet and yellow leaves by a cold wind.

Clement had watched the examiners at work. At noon, he took his sandwich to the back room and asked Leif Axelsen to watch his cage and cash drawer until he returned. The young man was happy to pretend he was a teller.

WHEN CLEMENT returned, he barely had time to remove the "Next Window, Please" sign before he opened the cash drawer and emitted a shriek. "Somebody," he yelled, "has robbed the bank. Quick," he shouted to the policeman, "nobody in or out."

Customers froze. Bank officers came running. So did the examiners. They said that they had examined the cash, and it was intact. A little frantic counting, and it was obvious that almost $4,000 was gone.

It couldn't have been Clement. Everyone knew what. He hadn't left the premises. After much shouting of, "Be clam. Everybody quiet down," suspicion fell on Leif Axelsen. Clement moaned, "The truth is that the cash was all right when I left here for the back office. I asked Leif to watch this cage for me." He sighed. "He is the only one —."

THE POLICE WERE called. Axelsen burst into tears. "Clement is right," he said. "I never stole a dime in my life and I haven't taken anything now. But it's true. I was the only person in that cage."

The young man was booked on suspicion of grand larceny. A lieutenant said, "I believe that Axelsen boy. I don't know why. He practically handed himself up to us." The lieutenant hung around the bank for days.

One afternoon he walked into Clement's cage grinning. "The case is solved," he said. "I thought you'd like to know." Clement hung his bald head. "I feel so sorry for his wife and children," he murmured.

"No," the cop said. "Save your pity for yourself. You took the money before lunch, shoved it into a bank envelope, and mailed it to your apartment. It has just come back marked '13 cents in postage due.' "...

Smith shows ingenious strategy behind 'one man-one vote' offer

by JOSEPH C. HARSCH

The chronology of recent events in Rhodesia shows that Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith has coordinated his political and military moves with remarkable skill and — so far at least — with remarkable success. It is even possible that his strategy could revive the prospect of a long-term future for whites in Rhodesia.

The essential fact to notice is that Smith launched his military raids on the black guerrilla training centers in neighboring Mozambique on Nov. 23, the day before he made his political peace offer (Nov. 24) to the black leaders inside Rhodesia and that the black leaders accepted that offer as a basis or negotiation on Nov. 25 and 26 while the raids were still going on. News of the raids was published on Nov. 28. The black leaders were still ready and willing to go on with talks with Smith.

This is the classic carrot and stick technique. The carrot is "the principle of majority rule based on adult suffrage." It is offered to the nonviolent blacks inside Rhodesia.

THE STICK WAS A DOUBLE raid at minimum loss to the Rhodesian troops involved. It was applied to the Rhodesian blacks who have turned to violence from outside Rhodesia.

In effect, Smith is saying to the nonviolent black leaders inside Rhodesia that they can do political business with him in safety because his troops are strong enough to protect them from reprisals by the blacks on the outside who have turned to violence as the means to black rule.

This is in part an effort to split off the blacks who would prefer a gradual and peaceful transition from those who have elected violence. It is also a strategy which just might turn the situation in Rhodesia around.

THE SUCCESS OF THE RAID was essential to the strategy. The existence of a black guerrilla army training and forming in Mozambique has had two important effects inside Rhodesia. It has frightened much of the white population. That fear is the reason for the flight from Rhodesia of many whites. The net outflow is estimated at 1,000 a month. It is called "taking the chicken run." It also has intimidated those blacks who would prefer a peaceful transition even if it means that the substance of black rule may be slow in coming.

The white leadership in Rhodesia claims and believes that a majority of the blacks would prefer the slow peaceful process to the quick violent one. There is considerable evidence that this belief has a solid basis. Perhaps black thinking has been influenced by knowledge of the chaos which followed a sudden change to black rule in Angola and Mozambique.

If the two raids relieved blacks and whites of their fears of the guerrillas, then the situation is indeed changed. The raids were impressive. One went 54 miles. The other went in 132 miles. Losses to the raiders were given as one killed and eight wounded. Losses to the guerrillas were much higher, and included destruction of ammunition dumps.

If Smith's white armies can roam deeply inside guerrilla territory, blow up dumps, and come out again with relatively minor casualties — then it follows that the guerrilla army in Mozambique is either not very alert or very dangerous.

SMITH'S OFFER TO THE nonviolent black leaders should be read against the background of the raids. He did not offer "one man, one vote," as mistakenly reported. His offer was much more subtle. And it was in two parts. He said to the blacks that he would give them "a firm commitment to the principle of majority rule based on adult suffrage," provided they in return would allow him to "safeguard the confidence of white Rhodesians by means other than the qualified franchise."

How does one "safeguard the confidence of white Rhodesians"?

That answer is not spelled out. But, obviously, it cannot be safeguarded by sudden transition from white to black rule. And what does "majority rule based on adult suffrage" mean? It does not necessarily mean "one man, one vote."

THE MILITARY SUCCESS OF THE raids gives Smith time to discover whether he can work out an arrangement with the nonviolent black leaders which will close down the "chicken run" by relieving the whites of their fear.

If they could feel confident of being able to continue to enjoy a secure and comfortable life even under "the principle of majority rule," it is to be presumed that they would be happy to remain in Rhodesia.

It is an ambitious strategy. Its success depends on many uncertainties coming out right for Smith. But the nonviolent black leaders are talking with him and his army has had an impressive military success. In other words, the last chapter in the story of the white man in Rhodesia has not been written.

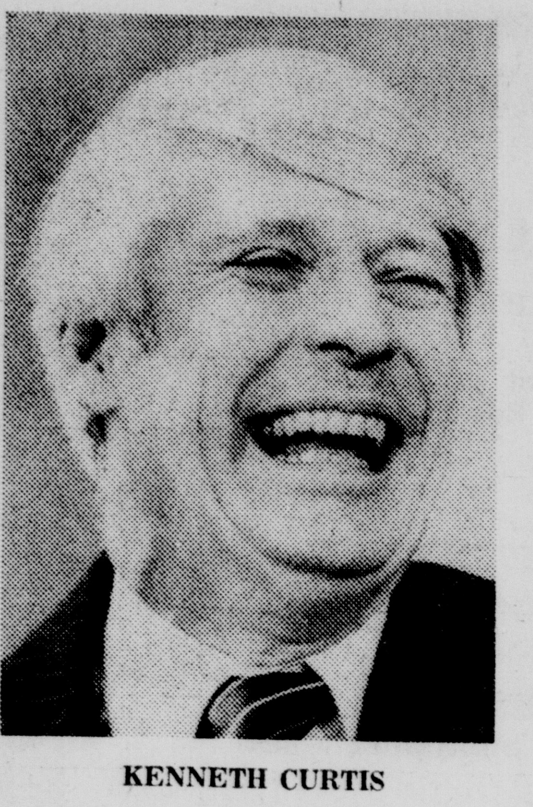
Democratic Chairman Curtis quits



KENNETH CURTIS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Kenneth Curtis said Thursday he is resigning as Democratic national chairman because it is a lousy job, and not because he was forced out by the White House staff.

But while Curtis praised President Carter and his top aides, he showed a thinly veiled dislike of Mark Siegel, top White House political aiie and the source of much criticism of Curtis in recent months.

Curtis would not discuss the personal reasons for his resignation, but said the Democratic National Committee's $2.5 million debt and a lack of funds for computer and television operations were discouraging.

"DI YOU EVER TRY to meet the payroll every two weeks of a bankrupt organization, and try to keep 50 state chairmen happy?" he said.

"Is it just a lousy job?" he was asked.

"That's one way you could put it," Curtis said.

Relaxed and joking with reporters at a news conference, Curtis said he was in no hurry to leave Washington and probably will remain through April, when the DNC is scheduled to meet. He said he is likely to rejoin his Maine law firm.

"I've decided I'd like to do something else with my life," Curtis said.

Twice he praised Carter's top aide Hamilton Jordan and Tim Kraft, the White House appointments chief.

Asked why he left out Siegel, Curtis replied, "I was frankly never aware he had a role" in dealing with the DNC.

Siegel was executive director of the committee before going to the White House and has been the source of much criticism directed at Curtis recently in news articles.

SOME CRITICS have described Curtis as "too nice a guy," but he said that does not bother him.

"I take that as a compliment," he said. "If that's considered a criticism of someone in politics, that's a mistake. The votes came from a lot of nice people."

Asked if he planned to run for office, Curtis said, "it would be fun, but then I'd have to serve if I won."

He said he told Carter in October he intended to resign and the President urged him to change his mind. When he declined, Carter asked if there were some other government job he would be inetrested in and Curtis said he replied, "I was quite happy living in Maine — although I don't rule out some future service."

Striking coal miners, supervisors trade shots

Striking coal miners and supervisory personnel exchanged gunfire in Ohio Thursday and a bridge to a nonunion Utah mine was burned to the ground in growing violence in the United Mine Workers coalfields strike.

Police earlier had been called to escort nonunion miners to work at mines in Utah and Pennsylvania, but subfreezing temperatures cut picketing activities in most of the militant Appalachian coalfields.

Contract talks resumed Thursday in Washington under orders of federal mediator Wayne Horvitz. UMW Pres. Arnold Miller said the union had presented all its demands and was awaiting counterproposals from the Bituminous Coal Operators Assn.

THE UNION WANTS coal operators to rescue its financially depressed health and pension funds, which have been hurt by past misuse of funds and by wildcat strikes. It also wants members at individual mines to strike over local grievances.

Shots fired early Thursday at a Southern Ohio Coal Co. mine were the first reported violence in Ohio's coalfields since the nationwide strike by an estimated 188,000 UMW miners began Tuesday.

"There were shots fired but no one was struck," said Meigs County Sheriff's Deputy Gary Wolfe. "Between 25 and 30 pickets were at the entrance. Supervisory personnel, salaried personnel, were going in and out of the mine. Shots were exchanged."

FIFTY WORKERS were stranded when the only bridge leading into a nonunion mine in Carbon County, Utah, burned. Sheriff Al Passic said the bridge was torched shortly after midnight. He said the mine would be closed until a temporary road could be cut.

Utah Gov. Scott Matheson sent 90 highway patrolmen — one-third the state force — into the area to prevent further violence between UMW pickets and nonunion miners going to work. Five strikers have been arrested and one man hospitalized with a broken jaw following a rock-throwing incident.

Matheson went on television to appeal to "all citizens of Carbon County to maintain cool heads and reasoned thoughts."

IN PENNSYLVANIA'S Indiana County, location of many of the state's nonunion mines, about 25 roving pickets trapped coal trucks and nonstriking workers at two mines. Sheriff's deputies and state troopers escorted nonstriking miners through the picket lines.

Kentucky's UMW members stepped up efforts to close nonunion mines, which employ nearly half the state's 40,000 miners.

In West Virginia, where one-third of the UMW miners work, a grassroots campaign was under way to urge the UMW bargaining council to drop the fight-to-strike issue, and press for full restoration of insolvent health and retirement funds. Coal operators have refused to yield on the local right to strike.

Democratic Chairman Curtis quits

KENNETH CURTIS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Kenneth Curtis said Thursday he is resigning as Democratic national chairman because it is a lousy job, and not because he was forced out by the White House staff.

But while Curtis praised President Carter and his top aides, he showed a thinly veiled dislike of Mark Siegel, top White House political aiie and the source of much criticism of Curtis in recent months.

Curtis would not discuss the personal reasons for his resignation, but said the Democratic National Committee's $2.5 million debt and a lack of funds for computer and television operations were discouraging.

"DI YOU EVER TRY to meet the payroll every two weeks of a bankrupt organization, and try to keep 50 state chairmen happy?" he said.

"Is it just a lousy job?" he was asked.

"That's one way you could put it," Curtis said.

Relaxed and joking with reporters at a news conference, Curtis said he was in no hurry to leave Washington and probably will remain through April, when the DNC is scheduled to meet. He said he is likely to rejoin his Maine law firm.

"I've decided I'd like to do something else with my life," Curtis said.

Twice he praised Carter's top aide Hamilton Jordan and Tim Kraft, the White House appointments chief.

Asked why he left out Siegel, Curtis replied, "I was frankly never aware he had a role" in dealing with the DNC.

Siegel was executive director of the committee before going to the White House and has been the source of much criticism directed at Curtis recently in news articles.

SOME CRITICS have described Curtis as "too nice a guy," but he said that does not bother him.

"I take that as a compliment," he said. "If that's considered a criticism of someone in politics, that's a mistake. The votes came from a lot of nice people."

Asked if he planned to run for office, Curtis said, "it would be fun, but then I'd have to serve if I won."

He said he told Carter in October he intended to resign and the President urged him to change his mind. When he declined, Carter asked if there were some other government job he would be inetrested in and Curtis said he replied, "I was quite happy living in Maine — although I don't rule out some future service."

Striking coal miners, supervisors trade shots

Striking coal miners and supervisory personnel exchanged gunfire in Ohio Thursday and a bridge to a nonunion Utah mine was burned to the ground in growing violence in the United Mine Workers coalfields strike.

Police earlier had been called to escort nonunion miners to work at mines in Utah and Pennsylvania, but subfreezing temperatures cut picketing activities in most of the militant Appalachian coalfields.

Contract talks resumed Thursday in Washington under orders of federal mediator Wayne Horvitz. UMW Pres. Arnold Miller said the union had presented all its demands and was awaiting counterproposals from the Bituminous Coal Operators Assn.

THE UNION WANTS coal operators to rescue its financially depressed health and pension funds, which have been hurt by past misuse of funds and by wildcat strikes. It also wants members at individual mines to strike over local grievances.

Shots fired early Thursday at a Southern Ohio Coal Co. mine were the first reported violence in Ohio's coalfields since the nationwide strike by an estimated 188,000 UMW miners began Tuesday.

"There were shots fired but no one was struck," said Meigs County Sheriff's Deputy Gary Wolfe. "Between 25 and 30 pickets were at the entrance. Supervisory personnel, salaried personnel, were going in and out of the mine. Shots were exchanged."

FIFTY WORKERS were stranded when the only bridge leading into a nonunion mine in Carbon County, Utah, burned. Sheriff Al Passic said the bridge was torched shortly after midnight. He said the mine would be closed until a temporary road could be cut.

Utah Gov. Scott Matheson sent 90 highway patrolmen — one-third the state force — into the area to prevent further violence between UMW pickets and nonunion miners going to work. Five strikers have been arrested and one man hospitalized with a broken jaw following a rock-throwing incident.

Matheson went on television to appeal to "all citizens of Carbon County to maintain cool heads and reasoned thoughts."

IN PENNSYLVANIA'S Indiana County, location of many of the state's nonunion mines, about 25 roving pickets trapped coal trucks and nonstriking workers at two mines. Sheriff's deputies and state troopers escorted nonstriking miners through the picket lines.

Kentucky's UMW members stepped up efforts to close nonunion mines, which employ nearly half the state's 40,000 miners.

In West Virginia, where one-third of the UMW miners work, a grassroots campaign was under way to urge the UMW bargaining council to drop the fight-to-strike issue, and press for full restoration of insolvent health and retirement funds. Coal operators have refused to yield on the local right to strike.

Working fewer hours buys more today than 10 years ago: economist

Inflation is making prices rise, but economist Janice P. Ventura of the Continental Bank, Chicago, says people are working fewer hours to buy more things than they did 10 years ago.

"Do you think you work more these days for a paycheck that buys less? If you consider price only this is probably true," Ms. Ventura writes in a bank newsletter. "The good news is that your hours of work buy more than they did in 1967."

In comparing costs for 10 consumer goods in 1967 and 1977, Ms. Ventura said that increased average hourly wages across the nation resulted in, with a few exceptions, persons working fewer hours today to buy the staples of life than they did 10 years ago.

"The magic of Camelot still eludes us, but in one brief shining hour today the average worker earns almost twice as much as he did 10 years ago," she said.

AVERAGE GROSS hourly wages have increased from $2.68 to $5.17 in the last decade, Ms. Ventura said.

So while it took the average worker 95 hours of 1967 work to purchase a $255 washer, it takes only 64 hours of 1977 work to buy the same washer, which now sells for $332, she said.

The notable exceptions to the trend of greater buying power for the average American include automobiles, wool rugs and suits.

While a two-piece men's suit could be purchased with money earned in 42 hours of 1967 work, it takes 44 hours of work today. The hours required to purchase a 9 by 12-foot wool rug have increased from 94 to 97.

The soaring cost of wool is the major reason for these changes, Ms. Ventura discovered in researching her study.

But the greater number of hours needed to buy a car is partly attributed to the fact that the standard car of 1977 is equipped with many features that were considered options in 1967, Ms. Ventura said.

"WHAT WAS STANDARD back then is not standard any more and that's because the consumer wants more," she said.

So it now requires 997 hours of the average worker's time to purchase a standard 4-door-, 6-cylinder sedan at $5,152. Only 931 hours were required in 1967 to purchase the standard sedan then costing $2,496, she said.

Ms. Ventura's study deals with average pre-tax income and so may not be applicable to everyone.

But she advises that "you may actually be better off financially now than you were 10 years ago, especially if you've enjoyed steady employment, moderate housing costs and fairly constant tax liability."

"If you pay a greater percentage of your income for taxes, rely strongly on credit usage and are entering the housing market for the first time, you may not be faring quite as well as in the past," Ms. Ventura said.

Executive hiring up 18% for year

Executive-level hiring for 1977 is running roughly 18 per cent ahead of last year's pace, but 1978 recruiting is expected to show less of a gain, a survey showed Thursday. The study, made by Korn-Ferry International, an executive search firm, said it projected 1978 demand for positions paying at least $45,000 annually to be from 15 to 17 per cent above the 1977 rate. It said "continuing confusion over the economic outlook will have an impact on corporate expansion, including the creation and filling of senior management positions." The 1977 pace, with final quarter figures still to be compiled, is expected to be around 18.5 per cent above 1976's, when demand for executives jumped 32 per cent above the previous year's figure.

Economy slowing: Carter aide

One of President Carter's top economic advisors said Thursday there will be "a significant slowing down" of the economy late next year and in 1979, but Carter may still keep his promise of a balanced budget in his first term. Lawrence R. Klein, who was Carter's chief economic advisor during last year's campaign and who still informally advises the White House, said the pace of economic recovery since the 1973 recession has to start tapering off midway through Carter's term. He said, however, the loss of jobs and business income will not be as bad as it was in the early part of the decade. "There is no severe recession, but a significant slowing down ahead," he said. "A tax cut in 1978 will help a good deal."

Fed asked for growth money

The Senate Banking Committee Thursday urged the Federal Reserve to supply enough money for the economy to grow at a rate of 5 per cent in 1978. The committee's six Republicans filed separate views supporting the Federal Reserve's policy of gradual reduction of monetary targets. Five per cent growth in real output in 1978 is a target set by the Carter Administration. However, Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns, in testimony to the committee in November, said he expects the economy to grow only 4.5 per cent and that Federal Reserve monetary goals are consistent with that projection.

Money supply rises $1.8 billion

The country's basic money supply rose $1.8 billion to $333.2 billion, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported. Commercial and industrial loans at major New York City banks climbed $464 million in contrast with a revised increase of $292 million last week.

Confidence boosts sales

A recent gain in consumer confidence about the future economy indicates stronger Christmas sales for retailers, according to the conference board. "With less apprehension about what lies ahead, consumers are likely to spend a bit more lavishly during the coming holiday season," said Fabian Linden, director of consumer research for the non-profit business group. The board's monthly survey of 5,000 families found encouraging news for the auto industry, whose recent sales have been disappointing.

Food, agriculture costs push up November wholesale prices .7%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wholesale prices, a key barometer of future inflation trends, rose 0.7 per cent in Nvember mostly because of soaring food and agriculture prices, the Labor Dept. reported Thursday.

Raw agriculture prices climbed 3 per cent last month after gaining 2.4 per cent in October. Processed foods and feeds spurted 1.7 per cent, more than double the October increase.

Although it was the second consecutive large monthly increase in the wholesale price index, the White House and government economists said there was some favorable news in the report.

JODY POWELL, President Carter's press secretary, said the index "is on the whole encouraging."

He said some increase in farm prices "was probably desirable" to maintain a "healthy" farm economy. "These increases do not translate directly to higher food prices," he said.

Government economists said they were somewhat encouraged by the moderate upward movement in the "finished goods" sector.

The reason, they said, is that finished goods are a more accurate gauge to future supermarket and department store prices than the over-all wholesale index, which includes products in initial stages of production.

Finished goods increased 0.4 per cent in November, one half of the October rise.

The over-all 0.7 per cent jump in the index was slightly less than the 0.8 per cent climb in October but considerably above the 0.5 per cent increase in September.

THE NPI for November stood at 197 from a 1967 base of 100.

Wholesale prices have either declined or risen slightly each month between the end of April and the first of September.

On an annual rate basis, November's increase was 8.4 per cent, seasonally adjusted, the department said.

"I'm mildly encouraged," said Courtenay Slater, the Commerce Department's chief economist, noting the drop in the finished goods sector.

John Early, head of the Labor Department's division that compiles the wholesale statistics, said wholesale prices were "rising at a rate faster than during the middle of the year." But, he added ,the food and farm sectors were making the situation seem worse than it actually is.

The wholesale index measures average changes in prices on a seasonally adjusted basis of commodities sold in large quantities by producers. The survey covers 9,000 firms dealing in 2,700 products.

U.S. cites Harris bank on race, sex bias counts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Labor Dept. Thursday warned the Harris Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago it may be forced to pay several million dollars in back pay because of alleged employment discrimination against minorities and women.

The bank, which handled more than $1 billion in federal funds last year, also faces the loss of such federal business in the future, Labor Sec. Ray Marshall said.

Marshall made the announcement as the department mailed an administrative complaint to the bank. Harris Trust can seek a hearing before an administrative law judge within 20 days after receiving the complaint.

"TODAY'S ACTION against the Harris Trust and Savings Bank is another step in our continuing efforts to use the powers at our disposal to end employment discrimination in all its forms," Marshall said.

The Treasury Dept., which has contract responsibility for the bank, cited Harris Trust for alleged discrimination in 1974. The announcement did not detail the charges.

The complaint seeks debarment of the bank from all present and future federal contract work, including serving as a federal depository and acting as an issuing and paying agent for U.S. savings bonds and notes.

The bank provides these services to the government under contract with the Dept. of Treasury. During 1976, Harris Trust handled a cash flow of more than $1 billion in federal funds. It could lose this government business because of the alleged employment discrimination.

EXECUTIVE ORDER 11246 prohibits most federal contractors and subcontractors from employment discrimination based on race, color, sex, religion or national origin. It is administered by the Labor Dept. office of federal contract compliance programs in the employment standards administration.

The bank, like other large federal contractors, also is required to develop and implement an affirmative action program, including goals and timetables for hiring and promoting minorities and women in jobs where they are under-represented.

If the bank does not answer the charges, the Labor Dept. may immediately cancel its contract to handle federal funds.

Working fewer hours buys more today than 10 years ago: economist

Inflation is making prices rise, but economist Janice P. Ventura of the Continental Bank, Chicago, says people are working fewer hours to buy more things than they did 10 years ago.

"Do you think you work more these days for a paycheck that buys less? If you consider price only this is probably true," Ms. Ventura writes in a bank newsletter. "The good news is that your hours of work buy more than they did in 1967."

In comparing costs for 10 consumer goods in 1967 and 1977, Ms. Ventura said that increased average hourly wages across the nation resulted in, with a few exceptions, persons working fewer hours today to buy the staples of life than they did 10 years ago.

"The magic of Camelot still eludes us, but in one brief shining hour today the average worker earns almost twice as much as he did 10 years ago," she said.

AVERAGE GROSS hourly wages have increased from $2.68 to $5.17 in the last decade, Ms. Ventura said.

So while it took the average worker 95 hours of 1967 work to purchase a $255 washer, it takes only 64 hours of 1977 work to buy the same washer, which now sells for $332, she said.

The notable exceptions to the trend of greater buying power for the average American include automobiles, wool rugs and suits.

While a two-piece men's suit could be purchased with money earned in 42 hours of 1967 work, it takes 44 hours of work today. The hours required to purchase a 9 by 12-foot wool rug have increased from 94 to 97.

The soaring cost of wool is the major reason for these changes, Ms. Ventura discovered in researching her study.

But the greater number of hours needed to buy a car is partly attributed to the fact that the standard car of 1977 is equipped with many features that were considered options in 1967, Ms. Ventura said.

"WHAT WAS STANDARD back then is not standard any more and that's because the consumer wants more," she said.

So it now requires 997 hours of the average worker's time to purchase a standard 4-door-, 6-cylinder sedan at $5,152. Only 931 hours were required in 1967 to purchase the standard sedan then costing $2,496, she said.

Ms. Ventura's study deals with average pre-tax income and so may not be applicable to everyone.

But she advises that "you may actually be better off financially now than you were 10 years ago, especially if you've enjoyed steady employment, moderate housing costs and fairly constant tax liability."

"If you pay a greater percentage of your income for taxes, rely strongly on credit usage and are entering the housing market for the first time, you may not be faring quite as well as in the past," Ms. Ventura said.

Executive hiring up 18% for year

Executive-level hiring for 1977 is running roughly 18 per cent ahead of last year's pace, but 1978 recruiting is expected to show less of a gain, a survey showed Thursday. The study, made by Korn-Ferry International, an executive search firm, said it projected 1978 demand for positions paying at least $45,000 annually to be from 15 to 17 per cent above the 1977 rate. It said "continuing confusion over the economic outlook will have an impact on corporate expansion, including the creation and filling of senior management positions." The 1977 pace, with final quarter figures still to be compiled, is expected to be around 18.5 per cent above 1976's, when demand for executives jumped 32 per cent above the previous year's figure.

Economy slowing: Carter aide

One of President Carter's top economic advisors said Thursday there will be "a significant slowing down" of the economy late next year and in 1979, but Carter may still keep his promise of a balanced budget in his first term. Lawrence R. Klein, who was Carter's chief economic advisor during last year's campaign and who still informally advises the White House, said the pace of economic recovery since the 1973 recession has to start tapering off midway through Carter's term. He said, however, the loss of jobs and business income will not be as bad as it was in the early part of the decade. "There is no severe recession, but a significant slowing down ahead," he said. "A tax cut in 1978 will help a good deal."

Fed asked for growth money

The Senate Banking Committee Thursday urged the Federal Reserve to supply enough money for the economy to grow at a rate of 5 per cent in 1978. The committee's six Republicans filed separate views supporting the Federal Reserve's policy of gradual reduction of monetary targets. Five per cent growth in real output in 1978 is a target set by the Carter Administration. However, Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns, in testimony to the committee in November, said he expects the economy to grow only 4.5 per cent and that Federal Reserve monetary goals are consistent with that projection.

Money supply rises $1.8 billion

The country's basic money supply rose $1.8 billion to $333.2 billion, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported. Commercial and industrial loans at major New York City banks climbed $464 million in contrast with a revised increase of $292 million last week.

Confidence boosts sales

A recent gain in consumer confidence about the future economy indicates stronger Christmas sales for retailers, according to the conference board. "With less apprehension about what lies ahead, consumers are likely to spend a bit more lavishly during the coming holiday season," said Fabian Linden, director of consumer research for the non-profit business group. The board's monthly survey of 5,000 families found encouraging news for the auto industry, whose recent sales have been disappointing.

Food, agriculture costs push up November wholesale prices .7%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wholesale prices, a key barometer of future inflation trends, rose 0.7 per cent in Nvember mostly because of soaring food and agriculture prices, the Labor Dept. reported Thursday.

Raw agriculture prices climbed 3 per cent last month after gaining 2.4 per cent in October. Processed foods and feeds spurted 1.7 per cent, more than double the October increase.

Although it was the second consecutive large monthly increase in the wholesale price index, the White House and government economists said there was some favorable news in the report.

JODY POWELL, President Carter's press secretary, said the index "is on the whole encouraging."

He said some increase in farm prices "was probably desirable" to maintain a "healthy" farm economy. "These increases do not translate directly to higher food prices," he said.

Government economists said they were somewhat encouraged by the moderate upward movement in the "finished goods" sector.

The reason, they said, is that finished goods are a more accurate gauge to future supermarket and department store prices than the over-all wholesale index, which includes products in initial stages of production.

Finished goods increased 0.4 per cent in November, one half of the October rise.

The over-all 0.7 per cent jump in the index was slightly less than the 0.8 per cent climb in October but considerably above the 0.5 per cent increase in September.

THE NPI for November stood at 197 from a 1967 base of 100.

Wholesale prices have either declined or risen slightly each month between the end of April and the first of September.

On an annual rate basis, November's increase was 8.4 per cent, seasonally adjusted, the department said.

"I'm mildly encouraged," said Courtenay Slater, the Commerce Department's chief economist, noting the drop in the finished goods sector.

John Early, head of the Labor Department's division that compiles the wholesale statistics, said wholesale prices were "rising at a rate faster than during the middle of the year." But, he added ,the food and farm sectors were making the situation seem worse than it actually is.

The wholesale index measures average changes in prices on a seasonally adjusted basis of commodities sold in large quantities by producers. The survey covers 9,000 firms dealing in 2,700 products.

U.S. cites Harris bank on race, sex bias counts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Labor Dept. Thursday warned the Harris Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago it may be forced to pay several million dollars in back pay because of alleged employment discrimination against minorities and women.

The bank, which handled more than $1 billion in federal funds last year, also faces the loss of such federal business in the future, Labor Sec. Ray Marshall said.

Marshall made the announcement as the department mailed an administrative complaint to the bank. Harris Trust can seek a hearing before an administrative law judge within 20 days after receiving the complaint.

"TODAY'S ACTION against the Harris Trust and Savings Bank is another step in our continuing efforts to use the powers at our disposal to end employment discrimination in all its forms," Marshall said.

The Treasury Dept., which has contract responsibility for the bank, cited Harris Trust for alleged discrimination in 1974. The announcement did not detail the charges.

The complaint seeks debarment of the bank from all present and future federal contract work, including serving as a federal depository and acting as an issuing and paying agent for U.S. savings bonds and notes.

The bank provides these services to the government under contract with the Dept. of Treasury. During 1976, Harris Trust handled a cash flow of more than $1 billion in federal funds. It could lose this government business because of the alleged employment discrimination.

EXECUTIVE ORDER 11246 prohibits most federal contractors and subcontractors from employment discrimination based on race, color, sex, religion or national origin. It is administered by the Labor Dept. office of federal contract compliance programs in the employment standards administration.

The bank, like other large federal contractors, also is required to develop and implement an affirmative action program, including goals and timetables for hiring and promoting minorities and women in jobs where they are under-represented.

If the bank does not answer the charges, the Labor Dept. may immediately cancel its contract to handle federal funds.

House continues to be money-making investment

Jane Bryant Quinn

Staying ahead

NEW YORK — If the house you live in has been the best investment you ever made, why not do it again? Buy another house, rent it out for a whilte, then sell it at a profit.

In many parts of the country, one and two-family homes have become the hottest investment idea since mutual funds. In fact, one of the things driving up housing prices in the big speculative markets, such as Washington, D.C., and Southern California, is the buying power of investors.

It wasn't always so. In the 1940s and 1950s, home values increased slowly. In the 1930s, values declined. But with the speedup in inflation and the arrival in the housing market of the post-war baby generation, home prices have galloped ahead. Over three or four years, it's possible to get an after-tax return on the money you invested of 20 to 25 per cent a year.

YOU DON'T FIND this gold lying in the streets. It takes attention, capital and the willingness to take a risk. Some investment tips:

Location: This is the most important aspect of any real estate investment. You must buy in a neighborhood where values are advancing at a good pace and demand shows no sign of slowing down. The industries in the area should be in good health, not likely to close down or lay people off in large numbers. Warning: In some overheated markets in California and Florida, housing prices have declined recently.

Buy a nice house that's standard for the neighborhood. A fancy home in a middle-class area won't do well, because people who can afford it will want to buy in better neighborhoods.

Tenants: During the years you hold the house, waiting for it to rise in value, you'll rent it out to defray your costs. Some handle the rentals themselves, but generally it's done through a real estate agent. A reliable tenant is essential. If you rent to someone who ruins the house, it may cost all your profits to get it in shape for resale.

Inspect the house regularly, to see that the tenant is treating it well. Get a lawyer's help in drawing a rental agreement that lets you evict destructive tenants. Take a "security" deposit, the equivalent of two months' rent. If no damage is done, the tenant gets his security back when he moves out; if there's damage other than normal wear and tear, that money can be used for repairs. Don't ever let a tenant fall behind on his rent. He may move out overnight, leaving you holding the bag.

Downpayment: One way to raise money for this investment is to get a second martgage on the house you live in. Alternatively, you may be able to get a second martgage from the seller. For example, if the downpayment is $8,000, the seller might take $4,000 and let you owe him $4,000, using the house as security. Interest rates on a second mortgage from the seller generally are lower than you'd get at a mortgage company or bank.

CASH FLOW: This means the amount of money you have to pay out of pocket every month to carry the house. If the rent is high enough to cover all expenses, you're sitting pretty. But the more typical (and higher-risk) situation is where the rent doesn't quite cover everything, meaning that you have to come up with some money every month.

Energy plan handling very bad: Kennedy

BOSTON (UPI) — Energy Sec. James R. Schlesinger "missed the boat" on the Carter administration's energy package and his presentation of the program to Congress was "a disaster," says Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

"Schlesinger has really missed the boat on the energy question and he missed it badly," Kennedy said in an interview published in the Boston Globe Wednesday.

"Aside from not understanding some of the basic issues involved, his (Schlesinger's) handling of the question on the Senate floor was a disaster," Kennedy said.

KENNEDY CRITICIZED Schlesinger for "undercutting Senators who thought they were accurately presenting the position of President Carter, and had the support of the administration on the issue of natural gas."

Kennedy said earler this fall Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., thought he had Carter's support when he submitted a compromise proposal that would have raised the regulated price of natural gas from $1.46 per thousand cubic feet to $1.75.

The oil industry was pushing for complete deregulation then, along with some senators.

The energy package is in a House-Senate conference committee. Kennedy said there was a "50-50 chance" some type of energy reform legislation would be passed before the end of the year.

From limousines to chain saws—you can rent it now

Specializing a must, owners say

Rental stores in the Northwest suburbs are doing well by specializing in certain product lines and referring more exotic requests to specialty renters, store owners say.

With as many as five rental stores in a 5-mile radius of each other in some cases, specializing is a must in the crowded Northwest suburban market, they say.

"This is a very mobile area so we rent trucks, pads and hand trucks for people moving," Ronald Thompsen, co-owner of United Rent-All, 1002 W. Dundee Rd., Arlington Heights, said.

George Steele's Taylor Rental Center, 7463 Jensen Rd., Hanover Park, specializes in construction equipment because of the amount of building in its area, Steele said.

"If a contractor from the Southwest side builds here, he'll rent here" to save transportation coses and rental fees, Steele said.

HIS CONSTRUCTION specialty makes summer the busiest season for Steele. But during the winter when construction stops, he still rents other items, ranging from power tools to the trappings for a party for 200 persons.

Thompsen also rents such items, doing a booming business this time of year in roll-away beds, he said.

"We have 48 roll-away beds and at Thanksgiving we didn't have one left," he said.

But when people want exotic things such as animal cages or clown costumes, both Steele and Thompsen said they refer them to renters who specialize in such things.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Whether you need a peanut vending machine for the kid's party or a hospital bed to recuperate from the party, almost anything can be — and is — rented nowadays.

The rental industry has grown by leaps and bounds as Americans are realizing that they can have use of both everyday and exotic items that ordinarily would be beyond their pocketbooks.

Annual revenues for the thousands of rental stores in the country are estimated at $2 billion and industry experts say the industry is growing at a rate of 15 to 20 per cent a year.

United Rent-All has 125 franchised stores in the United States, and has recently expanded its operation to Japan.

THE LIST OF items Americans can rent is seemingly endless — chairs and card tables for a party of 100, a trailer for a camping trip, a small portable concrete mixer to repair your sidewalk, a chain saw to cut up a dead tree, a garden tractor, an extra long blade hedge clipper, a floor sanding machine.

"One of our stores at Valparaiso, Ind., ordered a number of canoes to rent out," says United Rent-All Pres. Bob Feinstein. "This mystified us because there is no navigable stream or lake at Valparaiso. We discovered people were taking the canoes hundreds of miles to water atop their cars; it didn't make sense to own a canoe if you lived so far from water."

Lawn and garden tools, building tools, medical emergency equipment and party equipment are the bread-and-butter business of United Rent-All's 125 stores. But, through contacts with talent agencies and other businesses, a United Rent-All store can get you practically anything you want to rent if you give them enough notice.

"Our Beverly Hills store once rented the late Elvis Presley's Rolls-Royce and a lot of other things belonging to big stars for a customer who wanted to make a big name-dropping splash at a Hollywood party," Feinstein said.

Bad steel news hands Dow Jones mixed day

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks, initially bolstered by a smaller-than-expected 0.7 per cent rise in November wholesale prices, closed mixed Thursday after U.S. Steel predicted a fourth-quarter steelmaking loss.

Trading was restrained as many investors stayed on the sidelines waiting for the Federal Reserve Board's late-afternoon report that showed the nation's basic money supply rose $1.8 billion in the latest statistical week.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average, up nearly five points at one point, fell 0.52 point to 806.91. U.S. Steel, a Dow average component, dropped ½ to 29¾ in active trading after a company vice president predicted a loss from its steelmaking operations.

ANALYSTS SAID the collapse of the Dow average showed that its 0.52 point advance Wednesday and its rise early Thursday were caused by internal market factors following its recent four-session 22.79-point slide.

The early buying was triggered by the Labor Department's November wholesale price index report, which translated to an 8.4 per cent annual rate, down from the 12 per cent some economists had predicted. Key industrial commodities prices rose only 0.4 per cent, the smallest gain in five months.

A Fed report late Wednesday that consumer credit climbed $2.63 billion in October, following a $2.35 billion September rise, also aided the market in the early going. Furthermore, the conference board's consumer confidence index rose in November, indicating that Christmas season sales should be strong.

Against this background, the New York Stock Exchange common stock index added 0.09 to 51.37 and the average price of a share increased by five cents.

Chief execs new business cadre

by LEROY POPE
UPI business writer

NEW YORK — Chief executives are fast becoming a unique cadre in American business; they are men who make up their minds in college they are going to be top bosses.

This is the conclusion of Herbert Mines, president of Business Careers Inc., a New York recruiting firm.

Theodore Roosevelt said he made up his mind while still at Harvard that he intended to be "one of the governors, instead of the governed." The modern American corporation head has much the same over-all view of the world.

MINES SAID intense global business competition and the problems created by inflation are causing American industry to move middle management people up faster, thus accelerating the creation of this class of patrician chief executives.

"And they are patrician," he said. "They don't socialize or associate with subordinates as a rule. They cultivate personal charm and attractive appearance and a definitely personal management style. This style usually is one that encourages a high degree of participation by key subordinates in the decision-making process."

Like Teddy Roosevelt, most modern chief executives reach the top of the ladder while still in their early 40s and most come up through marketing or merchandising and sales, Mines said.

Mines' firm has recruited 16 new corporate presidents during the past 18 months out of 250 candidates, most of them already top executives of other companies. Mines said he discovered a lot about the new patrician executive class in the process.

HE SAID PERHAPS the most significant discovery was about how mobile a man must be to become a successful corporation head. "Not a single one of the 16 we eventually selected had spent his career with only one firm," Mines said. "Most had worked for at least three firms."

The next most significant discovery was that, contrary to what may have been true in the past in American society, a successful corporate career did not seem to have any adverse effect on marriage and family life. Two thirds of the executives studied during the search had stable marriages and home life.

Mines also concluded that an MBA degree no longer has much prestige. Only three of the 16 executives chosen by his clients had graduate business school diplomas.

Finally, he said he found that despite the successful corporate head's belief in mobility, it takes a bigger raise over his present salary to make him leave a good job that it used to. "It takes a boost of at least 25 per cent now and many men won't consider transferring for less than a 50 per cent jump in pay and benefits," he said.

But one thing hasn't changed, Mines said. Willingness to work long hours and to thrive under pressure still are universally characteristic of the real big boss.

THE SWITCH GOES ON!
LAST YEAR MORE CHICAGOANS BOUGHT A
MERCURY MARQUIS
THAN EVER BEFORE!

It's a fact. More drivers of Buicks, Olds and Pontiacs switched to Mercury Marquis in 1977 than in 1976.

READ WHAT YOUR NEIGHBORS SAY ABOUT THEIR SWITCH TO MARQUIS. THEIR REASONS ARE WORTH CONSIDERING.

"Our Marquis is very comfortable for six people to go on a long ride . . . The Marquis looks like an elegant car."
Phyllis Lowenstein, Glencoe, Illinois.

"Well, I think the original reason for selecting the Mercury Marquis was the price that was advertised in the paper . . . when I walked in and saw the car . . . I fell in love with it. I bought it right off the salesroom floor."
John Walker, Palatine, Illinois.

". . . in the 1977 Mercury Marquis, I feel the quality of the ride and the comfort of the car are the outstanding features . . . I found the Mercury Marquis to be very comfortable . . ."
Erwin Jacobs, Skokie, Illinois.

"We have lots of luggage and we can get everything that we want to get into the trunk of the Mercury Marquis, and that includes golf clubs."
John Schornack, Winnetka, Illinois.

THE SWITCH GOES ON!
LAST YEAR MORE CHICAGOANS BOUGHT A
MERCURY MARQUIS
THAN EVER BEFORE!

It's a fact. More drivers of Buicks, Olds and Pontiacs switched to Mercury Marquis in 1977 than in 1976.

READ WHAT YOUR NEIGHBORS SAY ABOUT THEIR SWITCH TO MARQUIS. THEIR REASONS ARE WORTH CONSIDERING.

"Our Marquis is very comfortable for six people to go on a long ride . . . The Marquis looks like an elegant car."
Phyllis Lowenstein, Glencoe, Illinois.

"Well, I think the original reason for selecting the Mercury Marquis was the price that was advertised in the paper . . . when I walked in and saw the car . . . I fell in love with it. I bought it right off the salesroom floor."
John Walker, Palatine, Illinois.

". . . in the 1977 Mercury Marquis, I feel the quality of the ride and the comfort of the car are the outstanding features . . . I found the Mercury Marquis to be very comfortable . . ."
Erwin Jacobs, Skokie, Illinois.

"We have lots of luggage and we can get everything that we want to get into the trunk of the Mercury Marquis, and that includes golf clubs."
John Schornack, Winnetka, Illinois.

Playing for 6 makes 7

North thought about bidding seven. He did have 15 high-card points and five hearts, but decided to stop at six because his suit was 10-spot high.

As for South's bidding, the game was duplicate and he decided to try to score that extra 10 points for playing in notrump.

Both decisions were correct although South did make all the tricks. On the other hand if he had been in seven he would have gone down, assuming he gave the hand the correct play.

Why did South make seven at his six notrump contract? Because he could afford to lose one heart trick. Therefore, he made the standard safety play of plunking down the ace. When West dropped the king it was a simple matter to go to dummy and finesse against East's jack.

Playing at seven the best chance to bring in the whole suit is to finesse the queen. This wins against a doubleton or tripleton king in the East hand. It loses to the actual holding of jack and two small in East and singleton king in West.

Ask Andy

Blight killed many chestnut trees in U.S.

Andy sends a World Book Year Book to Robert Kornacki, 9, of West Warwick, R.I., for his question:

WHAT HAS HAPPENED TO THE AMERICAN CHESTNUT TREE?

Early settlers in America found chestnut trees growing abundantly. They proved to be most valuable since they provided long-lasting wood, a substance called tannin used in tanning leather and also large crops of nuts. As the country continued to grow, wood from chestnut trees was used for railroad ties, telephone and telegraph poles, fence posts and furniture.

The chestnut tree is a most spectacular tree. It grows to be about 100 feet high and its branches spread very wide. It is a native to North America, Asia, Africa and Europe.

American chestnuts once grew from central Maine along the Appalachian Mountains and westward to Arkansas. Today the chestnut blight has almost entirely destroyed them.

The disease was first discovered in the New York City Zoological Park in 1904. Later it was determined that a fungus from northeast Asia was the cause of the disease and had probably entered North America on Asiatic chestnut nursery trees.

The infection spread from New York City to New England. The disease proceeded to wipe out entire chestnut tree areas in New England forests and along the eastern slope of the Allegheny and Blue Ridge mountains. In less than 50 years after the blight was discovered, it had reached every part of the natural range of the American chestnut.

Birds, insects and wind carried the spores of the deadly fungus from infected areas to healthy ones, while continued shipments of infected nursery stock, seed and logs also widened the infected area. It is estimated that more than 9 million acres of chestnut forest trees were killed.

Today old living chestnut trees are very rare. About 20 million pounds of European chestnuts are imported to North America each year, chiefly from Italy. But the blight has hit Europe, too, and fewer chestnuts will be available in the future.

Chestnut sprouts in many woods now have grown large enough to bear burs, the pods where the fruit is developed. But native chestnut sprouts or seedlings only are temporarily resistant to the chestnut blight.

The blight is caused by the fungus Endothia parasitica. It attacks the bark of the tree and spreads during damp weather. The blight went unchecked by man because he was unable to prevent the dissemination of fungus spores by the wind, birds and insects.

Andy sends the 1977 World Book Science Year Annual to Alexandria Baker, 10, of Louisville, Ky., for her question:

WHERE DO WE FIND COPPER?

Copper is one of the world's most useful metals, and it has been in use for more than 5,000 years. It is the best low-cost conductor of electricity.

Almost 7 million tons of copper are mined each year throughout the world. Every continent has copper deposits. Much of the world's supply, however, comes from the mountains & ranges that extend from Alaska to the tip of South America.

Copper ore is found in mines far below the earth's surface, and it also is obtained from great open pits at the surface. Open-pit copper mining is especially common in the United States. A fourth of the world's copper comes from the United States, with half that supply coming from Arizona. Ontario and Quebec in Canada provide about 10 per cent of the world's copper.

Send your question on a post card to Ask Andy in care of The Daily Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006, making sure to include your name, age and address. Entries are open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

U.S. Steel expects some losses

NEW YORK (UPI) — U.S. Steel Corp. expects to lose money on its steel and raw material operations in the fourth quarter but its other businesses will provide an over-all profit for the period, company officials said Thursday.

The prediction by the nation's largest steelmaker unnerved some Wall Street investors who are worried about weaknesses in basic industries and the outlook for the economy. U.S. Steel stock shed 50 cents a share to $29.75 Thursday as prices closed mixed on the New York Stock Exchange.

At a meeting with financial analysts, Michael Curto, group vice president for steel operations, confirmed he expected the company's steelmaking business to be unprofitable in the final three months this year.

BUT HE ADDED he was including the company's sizable raw materials operations in the category of steelmaking and did not comment on the expected results for steel or raw material operations separately.

Less than half of U.S. Steel's profits are derived from steel. Its other businesses include chemicals, real estate and engineering services.

A strike by ore mining workers and the recently declared walkout by the United Mine Workers will affect the company's raw materials business for the quarter.

W. Bruce Thomas, executive vice president for accounting and finance, predicted a profitable final quarter for the company, saying non-steel business will provide earnings to offset the anticipated steel-related losses.

U.S. STEEL reported net income of $80.5 million in the fourth quarter of 1976 and $27.1 million in the third quarter this year.

Cubs land starting catcher Dave Rader

The Cubs put the bite on the Cardinals for a starting catcher and got one Thursday. Meanwhile, the White Sox tried to put the bite on the California Angels for the second time in a week but were turned down.

The Cubs landed catcher Dave Rader, outfielder Heity Cruz and a player to be named later Thursday from St. Louis. In return, the Cardinals got outfielder Jerry Morales, a member of the National League All-Star team last season, and catcher Steve Swisher.

Elsewhere in Honolulu, the White Sox were trying to ante up some dough to pay Bobby Bonds' salary by selling first baseman Jim Spencer back to his former team, the Angels. Roland Hemond, Sox vice-president and Bill Veeck's right hand man, reportedly asked upwards of $400,000 for Spencer from Angels' general manager Buzzie Bavasi, at which point Bavasi may have turned and run for cover. The consenus of those at the winter baseball meetings believe the Angels were fleeced Monday when they sent Bobby Bonds, Thad Bosley and Dick Dotson to the Sox in exchange for Chris Knapp, Dave Frost and Brian Downing.

BAVASI PROBABLY thought he heard Veeck's shears coming again.

The Sox also tried to deal aging reliever Clay Carroll to San Diego for John D'Aquisto, another pitcher of declining market value, but were turned down also.

The Cubs had been searching for a standout defensive outfielder and believe they have him in Heity Cruz. Cruz, 24, hit only .236 last season but drove in 71 runs in his rookie year in 1976 and was a standout player at Tulsa in the American Assn. in 1975.

Rader, who played behind Simmons last year, batted .236 in 66 games but is expected to be the Cubs' No. 1 catcher.

The 28-year-old Morales, considered one of the best right-handed hitters in the National League, batted .290 last season and was the Cubs' regular center fielder for most of the campaign. He was hitting well over .300 at the All-Star break but was hit by a pitch in the knee by Sparky Lyle in the All-Star game and played the second half of the year in pain. His average dropped considerably but he still managed to drive in 69 runs with 11 homers.

SWISHER hit just .190 this past season and played only 74 games. He figures to play behind All-Star catcher Ted Simmons with the Cardinals.

Herman Franks, the Cubs manager, said the trade now gives him an outfield that could be composed of Dave Kingman, Druz and Bobby Murcer, Vern Rapp, the Cardinals' manager, said Morales fits into his outfield with Lou Brock, Tony Scott and Jerry Humphrey.

The Cardinals said they believe they made an exceptional deal in getting Morales, a .290 hitter last season and possessor of one of the strongest throwing arms in baseball.

"He gives us some stability to our offense," said Cardinal Manager Vern Rapp. "He's a line-drive hitter and should fit in perfectly in our park where it's hard to hit home runs. We promised the St. Louis fans we would get them a good right-handed hitter, and we have one."

While Rader figures to start for the Cubs, Rapp's plans are to use Swisher as a backup to All-Star catcher Ted Simmons.

IN OTHER major deals Thursday, the California Angels, using the trade market to build their club into a pennant contender, completed two rapid-fire deals at the winter baseball meetings Thursday by acquiring designated hitter Ron Fairly from the Toronto Blue Jays and obtaining right-handed pitcher Don Aase from the Boston Red Sox.

The Angels also signed free agent Rick Miller, using the money obtained

4-way deal the largest of the trades

HONOLULU (UPI) — The Texas Rangers, Atlanta Braves, Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Mets figured in an 11-player blockbuster at the winter baseball meetings Thursday, with Willie Montanez, Bert Blyleven, Al Oliver and Jon Matlack being the key players in the four-way deal.

The trade, the largest so far at the winter meetings, began with the Rangers sending pitchers Adrian Devine and Tommy Boggs plus outfielder Eddie Miller to the Braves for Montanez.

Texas, in turn, shipped first baseman Montanez, outfielder Tom Grive and a player to be named later to the Mets for pitcher Matlack and first baseman John Milner.

THE RANGERS then completed the trade by sending Blyleven and Milner to the Pirates for outfielder Al Oliver and 19-year-old shortstop Nelson Norman.

In trading Montanez, Braves' owner Ted Turner thus completed his vow to reduce his heavy payroll at the meetings. On Wednesday Turner sold pitcher Andy Messersmith to the New York Yankees and the curly-haired righthander OKd the deal on Thursday. The subtraction of Montanez and Messersmith reduced Turner's payroll by more than $630,000 a year.

Montanez, a perennial All-Star, was the prize catch for the Mets, who came under heavy criticism from their fans last year after trading away stars Dave Kingman and Tom Seaver. The 29-yer-old Montanez hit .287 with 20 home runs and 68 RBI last season, and should be a favorite in New York because of his colorful playing style.

Devine, Boggs and Eddie Miller give the Braves three promising young players for about half the sum Turner was paying Montanez and Messersmith. Devine, who previously pitched for Atlanta, was 11-6 with a 3.58 earned-run average in 56 games last eason, while Boggs and Miller spent most of the time in the minor leagues.

Burt Reynolds talks better than he runs

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK:

Acotr Burt Reynolds keeps popping up on talk shows saying he did his own stunts in the pro football movie "Semi-Tough."

No so. Reynolds did play some football at Florida State in the 1950s and knows the game, but Cleveland Browns' running back Brian Duncan did most of the movie work.

Duncan was recruited when he heard that the "Semi-Tough" production company was looking for a white pro running back to act as a stuntman.

If you follow the National Football League, you can understand that there weren't that many pro running backs knocking on the studio doors. Duncan, who played his college ball at Southern Methodist University, got the job.

"I'd run the first 40 yards, then they'd have Burt run the last five," said Duncan, who played two years in the World Football League before hooking up with the Browns.

"Or I'd run the first 10, and he'd run the last two. Then they'd splice the film together and show a closeup of him diving into the end zone.

"I don't mean to downgrade the man," Duncan said. "He seemed like a nice guy to be around. He seemed genuine and sincere. He's egocentric, and even though he's losing the battle, he's fighting to remain humble.

"But don't think he's a superstar in football. When he says he did all his own stunts, he's deceiving the public.

"Heck, Reynolds is a little bitty guy, about 5-foot-10 and 160 pounds," Duncan added. "They would never take a closeup of Reynolds and a real football player."

So much for the real weighty issues this week.

IF BILL MADLOCK expects to be a second baseman, he has to take off 15 pounds.

That's the way one San Francisco Giants' official talks about the conversion of the former Cubs' star from third base to second.

Madlock, who played second base for six games in September, went to the Arizona Instructional League to learn the position.

"We haven't given up on him at all," said General Manager Spec Richardson. "When we go to spring training, the second base job is his. Bill will have to show that he can't do the job to be moved back to third."

"If Bill expects to be a second baseman," said Hank Sauer, a Cubs' star in the 1950s who directed the Madlock experiment in Arizona, "he's got to knock off 15 pounds. You've got to be twice as agile at second as at third. He won't make it if he doesn't take off weight."

If Madlock can't make the conversion, the Giants have problems. Darrell Evans already is ticketed for third base in 1978 and the team needs his power. The Giants aren't pleased with Rob Andrews at second and would rather use Derrel Thomas in center than shift him back to the infield.

Madlock holds the key.

"If I didn't feel I could make it, I wouldn't have gone to Arizona," Madlock said. "It's tough to say how well I did down there, because conditions aren't the same as in the majors.

"My whole reasoning for going to Arizona was to brush up on some things," he said. "I feel I improved 100 per cent on getting the ball off and making the pivot."

"Somebody in the office figures out that since 1973, I've only seen seven wins. They tell me I won't know how to write a winning game story when it comes. They're probably right."

Selman says the toughest part is in the dressing room after the game.

"The players are totally silent. It's like a tomb. After all these losses, are you supposed to ask 'What happened?' "

Selman may be the brunt of office jokes, but he takes it in stride.

"I'll tell you how bad this losing thing is with me," he said. "When the Bucs played at Detroit, I went up early to cover the Ohio State-Michigan game.

"One of the guys on our staff is a wild Ohio State fan. He begged me to root for Michigan."

SPORTS PHONE, 936-1313, reportedly is getting 25,000 calls a day in Chicago. By simply dialing, a sports fan can get the latest scores, interviews and sports news 24 hours a day.

In Indianapolis, there's a new sports-broadcasting service called Telesport. For a fee that ranges from a nickel to 25 cents a minute, a fan can listen to the live radio play-by-play of almost any game in the country over his home telephone.

Campbell wins Heisman

NEW YORK (UPI) — Earl Campbell, the nation's leading rusher and scorer whose performance enabled Texas to become the only unbeaten team in the country this season, Thursday night was named winner of the Heisman Trophy as the "best college football player in the United States."

Campbell, a native of Tyler, Tex., won the 43rd annual award — considered the most prestigious in college football — from among a final list of 17 candidates considered by the sponsoring Downtown Athletic Club. He is the first Texas University player to be selected.

The announcement was made in a natinally televised ceremony following a lavish dinner sponsored by the Downtown Athletic Club. Winners of six other categories also were announced.

"I'D LIKE TO thank the guys who helped me get this," said Campbell. "The guys most responsible are the offensive linemen. I don't have words to express what they've done for me.

"I thought about what winning the Heisman Trophy would mean. I hope I can represent it. All I know is it took a lot of hard work to get it."

Campbell was selected from among three finalists who also included tight end Ken MacAfee of Notre Dame and running back Terry Miller of Okla. State. The trophy was presented to him by Jay Berwanger, the former University of Chicago running back who won the first Heisman 43 years ago.

There was no voting announced and Campbell received a standing ovation from the crowd of 1,500 at a midtown Manhattan hotel.

IN FOUR YEARS at Texas, Campbell rushed for 4,443 yards, a conference and school career record. His 1,744 yards this season also set school and conference marks, and the Longhorn coaching staff calculated 1,054 of the yards this year were gained after a tackler first made contact.

He also set school records for:

- Most touchdowns in a season with 19;
- Most career touchdowns, with 41;
- Most points in a career, 246;
- Most touchdowns in a single game, four, which he accomplished twice.

Bulls breeze past Nets, 104-78

by DON FRISKE

Although the Bulls scored in triple figures Thursday night, it really was not necessary.

After holding the New Jersey Nets scoreless for the first 6½ minutes of the game, the Bulls coasted to a 104-78 victory at the Stadium.

While the defense was keeping the Nets from getting too many high-percentage shots, the Bulls offense was on its way to a record streak. At 5:49 of the first quarter, Artis Gilmore scored on a layup, giving the Bulls a 19-0 lead that was never really challenged.

THOSE 19 straight points became a new team record, surpassing the old mark by two. It also established a new Bulls' high for the most unanswered points to open a contest.

At the same time, the Nets were missing their first 16 field goals in a futile attempt to stay in a contest that was never to materialize.

"I was happy just to stay even with them after building that lead," said Ed Badger, the Bulls coach. "We got to play a lot of people tonight, and the young players got some good time in."

The victory extended the Bulls' winning streak to four games while the loss kept a Nets' streak alive at six contests.

A CROWD OF 3,613 (7,547 had bought tickets) came out in the snow to find out how the Bulls could have lost a month ago to the Nets, who brought a 3-21 record into Chicago.

At New Jersey, the Bulls lost 91-89 with Darnell Hillman leading the way with 28 points. He was held to only seven Thursday night, something that Badger saw as the difference between the two games.

Rookie Bernard King scored 27 points in that first encounter. The second time around he still did a good job, finishing the game as the leading scorer with 23 points. Wilbur Holland led the Bulls with 18 while John Mengelt and Mickey Johnson each contrib-

Badger gets his way, signs Ard

Bulls coach Ed Badger got his way Thursday when the team signed Jim Ard to replace backup center Tom Boerwinkle who is out for the season with torn knee ligaments.

Badger wanted Ard to be in uniform for Thursday's game against New Jersey at the Stadium, but Bulls managing partner Jon Kovler reportedly hedged, perhaps hoping to delay Ard's signing until after Dec. 15.

After that date, a team can sign a player to a conditional, 10-day contract. A team can do that three times before it must sign the player to a conventional contract. But now the Bulls are committed to paying Ard for the remainder of the season.

ARD, 29, A FORMER Thornton High School player, was cut recently by the Boston Celtics. He was on the Thornton team that won the 1966 Illinois state high school championship.

"The loss of Tom was a tough break for us, but we're fortunate to have a capable player like Jim Ard available to fill the void," Badger said. "He's been a member of a world champion team and is a mature player who knows the game and can help us with rebounding and defense."

Ard was drafted in the first round of the 1970 NBA draft by Seattle but signed with the ABA New York Nets. He joined the Celtics as a backup to Dave Cowens in 1974.

in 213 ABA games he averaged 5.3 points while finishing with a 3.7 average in 203 games with the Celtics.

Ard was paid about $60,000 a year by the Celtics before he was cut. Terms of his deal with the Bulls were not disclosed.

Cubs land starting catcher Dave Rader

The Cubs put the bite on the Cardinals for a starting catcher and got one Thursday. Meanwhile, the White Sox tried to put the bite on the California Angels for the second time in a week but were turned down.

The Cubs landed catcher Dave Rader, outfielder Heity Cruz and a player to be named later Thursday from St. Louis. In return, the Cardinals got outfielder Jerry Morales, a member of the National League All-Star team last season, and catcher Steve Swisher.

Elsewhere in Honolulu, the White Sox were trying to ante up some dough to pay Bobby Bonds' salary by selling first baseman Jim Spencer back to his former team, the Angels. Roland Hemond, Sox vice-president and Bill Veeck's right hand man, reportedly asked upwards of $400,000 for Spencer from Angels' general manager Buzzie Bavasi, at which point Bavasi may have turned and run for cover. Bulls coach Ed Badger got his way Thursday when the team signed Jim Ard to replace backup center Tom Boerwinkle who is out for the season with torn knee ligaments.

Badger wanted Ard to be in uniform for Thursday's game against New Jersey at the Stadium, but Bulls managing partner Jon Kovler reportedly hedged, perhaps hoping to delay Ard's signing until after Dec. 15.

After that date, a team can sign a player to a conditional, 10-day contract. A team can do that three times before it must sign the player to a conventional contract. But now the Bulls are committed to paying Ard for the remainder of the season.

ARD, 29, A FORMER Thornton High School player, was cut recently by the Boston Celtics. He was on the Thornton team that won the 1966 Illinois state high school championship.

"The loss of Tom was a tough break for us, but we're fortunate to have a capable player like Jim Ard available to fill the void," Badger said. "He's been a member of a world champion team and is a mature player who knows the game and can help us with rebounding and defense."

Ard was drafted in the first round of the 1970 NBA draft by Seattle but signed with the ABA New York Nets. He joined the Celtics as a backup to Dave Cowens in 1974.

in 213 ABA games he averaged 5.3 points while finishing with a 3.7 average in 203 games with the Celtics.

Ard was paid about $60,000 a year by the Celtics before he was cut. Terms of his deal with the Bulls were not disclosed.

Bears training one of the flakier

by BOB GALLAS

Bear coach Jack Pardee has made up for all those July days when he pushed his team through grueling training camp workouts, sometimes in near 100 degree heat.

All those hot days were forgotten Thursday as the Bears went through one of their longest practices of the season, a two-hour and 15-minute session at Dyche Stadium in a cold wind and driving snowstorm.

One thing Bear players have come to expect is for Pardee to push them when the going gets tough. The worst days of the year, weather-wise usually are the days when Pardee puts his troops through their roughest workouts.

BUT WITH A four-game winning streak under their belts and a playoff berth staring them in the face, none of the Bears is complaining.

"This was a practice we needed," said Pardee, after his team had journeyed to Northwestern's field for the second day in a row to practice because their Lake Forest training site is frozen and covered with snow. "This could be the way it'll be Sunday," he said.

Although artic temperatures and the forecast of more snow still loom for Sunday's rematch with Green Bay, the Packers probably are looking forward to their trip "south." They've played in Green Bay the past two weeks and conditions here can't be much worse than those they've faced recently.

The Bear workout on the Dyche Stadium artificial turf prompted one change in the Chicago attack plan for Sunday, a change of shoes.

After slipping and sliding around Thursday on the artificial surface in shoes specially designed for snow and frozen fields, the Bears went in and changed conventional cleats.

"THOSE OTHER SHOES turned into ice skates," said Pardee, who ordered the change. But he may have been intrigued by the possibility of Walter Payton skating off-tackle for huge gains.

The Bears will know right where they stand Sunday as far as a possible wild card playoff berth goes. Washington visits St. Louis Saturday in a nationally televised game and Pardee has promised his players will be done with practice in time to watch. Should the Redskins prevail over the Cardinals, the Bears need only win their final two games to be assured of a spot in the playoffs as the NFC's wild card team.

"I guess I have another excuse to get out of shoveling snow Saturday," said Pardee, who will be in the familiar position of rooting for George Allen's Redskins. Pardee played for Allen at Los Angeles and Washington for eight years and was also an assistant coach under Allen.

BEAR FACTS: Sunday's game, a sellout for weeks, will be televised nationally, the fourth time this year the Bears have been beamed into the homes of America; the Bears have won all three so far with wins over the Rams on Monday night football, Minnesota three weeks ago and Detroit on Thanksgiving — Sunday's game will start at noon, rather than 1 p.m., to accomodate the national telecast.

Mare in foal to Secretariat found

LOUISVILLE, Ky (UPI) — Fanfreluche, a broodmare believed to be in foal to Secretariat and missing since July 25, was recovered unharmed Thursday afternoon by FBI agents and state police working on a tip.

The horse, stolen from Seth Hancock's Claiborne Farm near Paris, was reported in good shape, but apparently had not been properly groomed and had been fed a diet of simple grass, according to authorities.

A trailer and veterinarian were sent to the Tompkinsville farm where the horse was located to check Fanfreluche and return her to the Clairborne Farm.

WILLIAM M. McCANDLESS, a 31-year-old resident of Nashville, Tenn., surrendered to police on Sept. 6 in connection with the horse's disappearance. Authorities said they were uncertain if others may have been involved in the horse's disappearance.

Robert Pence, assistant special agent in charge of the FBI in Louisville, said FBI agents and state police discovered the horse while working on the basis of a confidential tip prompted in part by the promise of a $25,000 reward for the horse's safe return.

The horse was found on a farm off Ky 63 about 3½ miles north of Tompkinsville. Pence declined to disclose the name of the owner of the farm because the owner apparently was unaware of the horse's true identity.

Pence said the horse was positively identified by a tattoo and distinctive markings.

Montreal trounces St. Louis, 8-1

Steve Shutt scored twice Thursday night to lead the Montreal Canadiens to an 8-1 trouncing of the St. Louis Blues.

Shutt ,the NHL's leading goal-getter, with 60 last season, got his first goal of the game and 13th of the year early in the second period as the Canadiens scored three times inside 66 seconds to take a 5-1 lead.

Bob Gainey got the first goal of the period at 3:56, Shutt followed at 4:49 and Yvan Lambert beat Blues' goalie Eddie Johnston at 5:02. Doug Risebrough rounded out the Canadiens' second period scoring.

Pierre Larouche gave Montreal an early 1-0 lead when he scored on a rebound at 2:35 of the opening period, but Garry Unger's power play goal tied the score five minutes later. Jacques Lemaire scored what proved to be the winer on another power play with 48 seconds left in the period.

IN OTHER NHL action Thursday:

Former Penguin Syl Apps scored a goal and assisted on two others and Don Kozak scored twice to lead the Los Angeles Kings to a 5-3 victory over Pittsburgh. Apps' goal, his eighth of the season, broke a 2-2 tie early in the third period, and the Kings added two more in the next seven minutes.

ROOKIE BOB MILLER and Rick Middleton scored third period goals to lift the Boston Bruins to a 6-4 victory over the Detroit Red Wings.

The win extended Boston's unbeaten streak to 15 games and stretched Detroit's losing strea kto seven straight.

RIC SEILING'S 40-foot slapshot touched off a three goal explosion within 57 seconds of the first period to lead the Buffalo Sabres to a 5-2 victory over the Cleveland Barons.

The Philadelphia Flyers surged for six goals in the third period to beat the New York Rangers 7-4.

Don Saleski, Reggie Leach and Ross Lonsberry each scored twice for the Flyers and captain Bobby Clarke tallied the final goal for Philadelphia, which widened its first place margin in the Patrick divison to three points over the idle New York Islanders.

ship match, spotted Barrington a one-game lead before rallying late in the middle game to score the last six points. Two of those points came on service aces by Leslie Ahr.

Barrington took a 6-0 lead in the final game, and Meadows never came closer than three afterward. Jan Walstrom led Barrington's last-game attack with several strong spikes and a match-winning dink.

"YOU COULD just see the momentum going back and forth," Meadows coach Elaine Wissen said later. "I couldn't ask for more from the team.

"But Barrington is experienced," she said. "They pass well, and their ups are always good. I think if we had to get beat, it's best we got beat by Barrington."

uted 16.

"We're not the type of team to come from behind," said Kevin Loughery, the Nets coach. "This was only the second game we've been blown out this year. We're just not strong enough to play catch up."

BADGER WAS pleased with the over-all team defense displayed by his Bulls, who kept the Nets to 35 per cent shooting from the floor.

"I thought we played a very fine game defensively. The whole defensive effort was excellent. We didn't give them very good shots," Badger said.

The Bulls led 51-33 at halftime. King's half-court bomber at the buzzer pulled the Nets as close as they could get throughout the entire first two quarters.

Holland's 20-foot jumper with 3:42 left in the opening quarter gave the Bulls a 21-5 advantage, their largest during those 12 months.

LOUGHERY HAD to call two timeouts before his team could even muster a point. The Bulls completely dominated the first period of play.

New Jersey played a respectable second quarter when compared with the first as they outscored the Bulls, 22-21. But the home team already had things well under control.

in the Aase deal to satisfy the former outfielder of the Red Sox.

To get Aase, the Angels had to part with second baseman Jerry Remy. But Fairly came cheaply — costing the Angels only monor league catcher Pat Kelly and minor league first baseman Butch Alberts.

"We were very reluctant to give up one of our young pitchers and we thought about it quite a while but we had to do it to acquire Remy," said Haywood Sullivan, the head of a new group seeking to purchase the Red Sox.

Bears training one of the flakier

by BOB GALLAS

Bear coach Jack Pardee has made up for all those July days when he pushed his team through grueling training camp workouts, sometimes in near 100 degree heat.

All those hot days were forgotten Thursday as the Bears went through one of their longest practices of the season, a two-hour and 15-minute session at Dyche Stadium in a cold wind and driving snowstorm.

One thing Bear players have come to expect is for Pardee to push them when the going gets tough. The worst days of the year, weather-wise usually are the days when Pardee puts his troops through their roughest workouts.

BUT WITH A four-game winning streak under their belts and a playoff berth staring them in the face, none of the Bears is complaining.

"This was a practice we needed," said Pardee, after his team had journeyed to Northwestern's field for the second day in a row to practice because their Lake Forest training site is frozen and covered with snow. "This could be the way it'll be Sunday," he said.

Although artic temperatures and the forecast of more snow still loom for Sunday's rematch with Green Bay, the Packers probably are looking forward to their trip "south." They've played in Green Bay the past two weeks and conditions here can't be much worse than those they've faced recently.

The Bear workout on the Dyche Stadium artificial turf prompted one change in the Chicago attack plan for Sunday, a change of shoes.

After slipping and sliding around Thursday on the artificial surface in shoes specially designed for snow and frozen fields, the Bears went in and changed conventional cleats.

"THOSE OTHER SHOES turned into ice skates," said Pardee, who ordered the change. But he may have been intrigued by the possibility of Walter Payton skating off-tackle for huge gains.

The Bears will know right where they stand Sunday as far as a possible wild card playoff berth goes. Washington visits St. Louis Saturday in a nationally televised game and Pardee has promised his players will be done with practice in time to watch. Should the Redskins prevail over the Cardinals, the Bears need only win their final two games to be assured of a spot in the playoffs as the NFC's wild card team.

"I guess I have another excuse to get out of shoveling snow Saturday," said Pardee, who will be in the familiar position of rooting for George Allen's Redskins. Pardee played for Allen at Los Angeles and Washington for eight years and was also an assistant coach under Allen.

BEAR FACTS: Sunday's game, a sellout for weeks, will be televised nationally, the fourth time this year the Bears have been beamed into the homes of America; the Bears have won all three so far with wins over the Rams on Monday night football, Minnesota three weeks ago and Detroit on Thanksgiving — Sunday's game will start at noon, rather than 1 p.m., to accomodate the national telecast.

Mare in foal to Secretariat found

LOUISVILLE, Ky (UPI) — Fanfreluche, a broodmare believed to be in foal to Secretariat and missing since July 25, was recovered unharmed Thursday afternoon by FBI agents and state police working on a tip.

The horse, stolen from Seth Hancock's Claiborne Farm near Paris, was reported in good shape, but apparently had not been properly groomed and had been fed a diet of simple grass, according to authorities.

A trailer and veterinarian were sent to the Tompkinsville farm where the horse was located to check Fanfreluche and return her to the Clairborne Farm.

WILLIAM M. McCANDLESS, a 31-year-old resident of Nashville, Tenn., surrendered to police on Sept. 6 in connection with the horse's disappearance. Authorities said they were uncertain if others may have been involved in the horse's disappearance.

Robert Pence, assistant special agent in charge of the FBI in Louisville, said FBI agents and state police discovered the horse while working on the basis of a confidential tip prompted in part by the promise of a $25,000 reward for the horse's safe return.

The horse was found on a farm off Ky 63 about 3½ miles north of Tompkinsville. Pence declined to disclose the name of the owner of the farm because the owner apparently was unaware of the horse's true identity.

Pence said the horse was positively identified by a tattoo and distinctive markings.

Montreal trounces St. Louis, 8-1

Steve Shutt scored twice Thursday night to lead the Montreal Canadiens to an 8-1 trouncing of the St. Louis Blues.

Shutt ,the NHL's leading goal-getter, with 60 last season, got his first goal of the game and 13th of the year early in the second period as the Canadiens scored three times inside 66 seconds to take a 5-1 lead.

Bob Gainey got the first goal of the period at 3:56, Shutt followed at 4:49 and Yvan Lambert beat Blues' goalie Eddie Johnston at 5:02. Doug Risebrough rounded out the Canadiens' second period scoring.

Pierre Larouche gave Montreal an early 1-0 lead when he scored on a rebound at 2:35 of the opening period, but Garry Unger's power play goal tied the score five minutes later. Jacques Lemaire scored what proved to be the winer on another power play with 48 seconds left in the period.

IN OTHER NHL action Thursday:

Former Penguin Syl Apps scored a goal and assisted on two others and Don Kozak scored twice to lead the Los Angeles Kings to a 5-3 victory over Pittsburgh. Apps' goal, his eighth of the season, broke a 2-2 tie early in the third period, and the Kings added two more in the next seven minutes.

ROOKIE BOB MILLER and Rick Middleton scored third period goals to lift the Boston Bruins to a 6-4 victory over the Detroit Red Wings.

The win extended Boston's unbeaten streak to 15 games and stretched Detroit's losing strea kto seven straight.

RIC SEILING'S 40-foot slapshot touched off a three goal explosion within 57 seconds of the first period to lead the Buffalo Sabres to a 5-2 victory over the Cleveland Barons.

The Philadelphia Flyers surged for six goals in the third period to beat the New York Rangers 7-4.

Don Saleski, Reggie Leach and Ross Lonsberry each scored twice for the Flyers and captain Bobby Clarke tallied the final goal for Philadelphia, which widened its first place margin in the Patrick divison to three points over the idle New York Islanders.

ship match, spotted Barrington a one-game lead before rallying late in the middle game to score the last six points. Two of those points came on service aces by Leslie Ahr.

Barrington took a 6-0 lead in the final game, and Meadows never came closer than three afterward. Jan Walstrom led Barrington's last-game attack with several strong spikes and a match-winning dink.

"YOU COULD just see the momentum going back and forth," Meadows coach Elaine Wissen said later. "I couldn't ask for more from the team.

"But Barrington is experienced," she said. "They pass well, and their ups are always good. I think if we had to get beat, it's best we got beat by Barrington."

uted 16.

"We're not the type of team to come from behind," said Kevin Loughery, the Nets coach. "This was only the second game we've been blown out this year. We're just not strong enough to play catch up."

BADGER WAS pleased with the over-all team defense displayed by his Bulls, who kept the Nets to 35 per cent shooting from the floor.

"I thought we played a very fine game defensively. The whole defensive effort was excellent. We didn't give them very good shots," Badger said.

The Bulls led 51-33 at halftime. King's half-court bomber at the buzzer pulled the Nets as close as they could get throughout the entire first two quarters.

Holland's 20-foot jumper with 3:42 left in the opening quarter gave the Bulls a 21-5 advantage, their largest during those 12 months.

LOUGHERY HAD to call two timeouts before his team could even muster a point. The Bulls completely dominated the first period of play.

New Jersey played a respectable second quarter when compared with the first as they outscored the Bulls, 22-21. But the home team already had things well under control.

in the Aase deal to satisfy the former outfielder of the Red Sox.

To get Aase, the Angels had to part with second baseman Jerry Remy. But Fairly came cheaply — costing the Angels only monor league catcher Pat Kelly and minor league first baseman Butch Alberts.

"We were very reluctant to give up one of our young pitchers and we thought about it quite a while but we had to do it to acquire Remy," said Haywood Sullivan, the head of a new group seeking to purchase the Red Sox.

Two MSL powers to clash tonight

by ART MUGALIAN

High school basketball

Barrington's basketball team had just struggled through its first victory of the season, and second-year coach Gary Cook was nervously preparing his post-game orange.

"Everybody says we're the favorites in the Mid-Suburban League," Cook had said then, ripping the skin off his orange and chucking the pieces toward a wastebasket on the other side of his office. "Right now we're not the favorites for anything."

THE BRONCOS, last year's surprise Elite Eight qualifiers, are 5-0 now, including that 67-61 win over an average Cary-Grove team. None of Barrington's victories have been routine, certainly not the one-point win over Wheeling in their MSL conference debut last Friday.

"We still have a long way to go before we're playing the kind of basketball we're capable of playing," Cook said this week. "We have to adjust to the kind of ball this team can play — not last year's team."

Cook's concern — despite three returnees from last year's 27-4 squad — is an urgent one on the eve of tonight's first MSL showdown with two-time defending champion Buffalo Grove, 5-1. Cook no doubt cringed when he saw that Buffalo Grove beat Cary-Grove 68-35 last Saturday.

Gone from Buffalo Grove's 27-2 team of a year ago are all-state center Brian Allsmiller, the area's all-time leading scorer, plus guards Mike Ledna and Scott Groot and forward Fred Heesch. But coach Paul Grady may have an even better team than he had last year.

FILLING ALLSMILLER'S void is 6-foot-9 junior Chris Molenaur, who scored 24 points Tuesday in a win over perennial power Morgan Park. Molenaur is joined on the Bison front line by veteran starter Mike Marshall, a 6-foot-4 senior, and 6-foot-5 junior Chuck Carkhuff. At guards, Grady has 6-foot-3 senior Fred Kruse, who scored 25 points against Fremd last week, plus a pair of sophs, Ed Williams and Tim Millay.

Buffalo Grove will have its hands full with a big and mobile Bronco front line that includes 6-foot-6 junior Ike Person and 6-foot-5 junior John Tomlinson, who are Barrington's leading scorers so far this season with 20 and 16.8 points-per-game averages, respectively.

Person and Tomlinson, along with 6-foot-1 guard Bruce Henricksen, were all starters on last year's North Suburban Conference champion team. Upon Allsmiller's graduation from Buffalo Grove, Barrington immediately was installed as preseason MSL favorite.

Cook's main problem has been finding someone to fill Person's old forward spot while the big Rockford transfer learns to play the pivot. Tomlinson's 6-foot-5 sophomore brother, Mark, has been thrust in the role, with mixed results so far.

ANOTHER OF COOK'S priorities has been finding someone to take the place of graduated guard Mike Berry, now at Harper. Junior Bill Hugo and senior Mark Meyer are the top candidates.

The game, to be played at 8 p.m. at Buffalo Grove, will be the first meeting ever for the two teams.

Only one other MSL North contest is slated for tonight, featuring Fremd (0-1) at Palatine (0-0). North co-leader Arlington is at Rockford Harlem for a nonconference game and Hersey hosts Elk Grove in a league crossovtr.

The big South Division match on tonight's schedule pits visiting Prospect against Forest View. Both squads won their first South contests last Friday and, along with Elk Grove, share the early-season divisional lead.

OTHER SOUTH GAMES on the docket are Rolling Meadows (0-1) at Schaumburg (0-0) and Hoffman Estates (0-1) at Conant (0-1).

Elgin hosts DeKalb, Larkin visits West Aurora, St. Viator travels to St. Patrick, and Stevenson hosts Grant in other area games tonight.

Freshman trial for Ivy League basketball teams

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — In a break with tradition, the Ivy League will launch a four-year trial next season to allow freshmen to play varsity basketball.

Pennsylvania's Martin Meyerson, chairman of the Council of Ivy Group Presidents, made the announcement following the recommendation of the newly established Ivy Policy Committee that had examined freshman participation on the varsity level in other sports.

The trial will be extensively monitored so the president's group can evaluate the impact of the change on the college experience of the players involved.

The council is comprised of the presidents of the eight Ivy League schools.

Barrington's basketball team had just struggled through its first victory of the season, and second-year coach Gary Cook was nervously preparing his post-game orange.

"Everybody says we're the favorites in the Mid-Suburban League," Cook had said then, ripping the skin off his orange and chucking the pieces toward a wastebasket on the other side of his office. "Right now we're not the favorites for anything."

THE BRONCOS, last year's surprise Elite Eight qualifiers, are 5-0 now, including that 67-61 win over an average Cary-Grove team. None of Barrington's victories have been routine, certainly not the one-point win over Wheeling in their MSL conference debut last Friday.

"We still have a long way to go before we're playing the kind of basketball we're capable of playing," Cook said this week. "We have to adjust to the kind of ball this team can play — not last year's team."

Cook's concern — despite three returnees from last year's 27-4 squad — is an urgent one on the eve of tonight's first MSL showdown with two-time defending champion Buffalo Grove, 5-1. Cook no doubt cringed when he saw that Buffalo Grove beat Cary-Grove 68-35 last Saturday.

Gone from Buffalo Grove's 27-2 team of a year ago are all-state center Brian Allsmiller, the area's all-time leading scorer, plus guards Mike Ledna and Scott Groot and forward Fred Heesch. But coach Paul Grady may have an even better team than he had last year.

FILLING ALLSMILLER'S void is 6-foot-9 junior Chris Molenaur, who scored 24 points Tuesday in a win over perennial power Morgan Park. Molenaur is joined on the Bison front line by veteran starter Mike Marshall, a 6-foot-4 senior, and 6-foot-5 junior Chuck Carkhuff. At guards, Grady has 6-foot-3 senior Fred Kruse, who scored 25 points against Fremd last week, plus a pair of sophs, Ed Williams and Tim Millay.

Buffalo Grove will have its hands full with a big and mobile Bronco front line that includes 6-foot-6 junior Ike Person and 6-foot-5 junior John Tomlinson, who are Barrington's leading scorers so far this season with 20 and 16.8 points-per-game averages, respectively.

Person and Tomlinson, along with 6-foot-1 guard Bruce Henricksen, were all starters on last year's North Suburban Conference champion team. Upon Allsmiller's graduation from Buffalo Grove, Barrington immediately was installed as preseason MSL favorite.

Cook's main problem has been finding someone to fill Person's old forward spot while the big Rockford transfer learns to play the pivot. Tomlinson's 6-foot-5 sophomore brother, Mark, has been thrust in the role, with mixed results so far.

ANOTHER OF COOK'S priorities has been finding someone to take the place of graduated guard Mike Berry, now at Harper. Junior Bill Hugo and senior Mark Meyer are the top candidates.

The game, to be played at 8 p.m. at Buffalo Grove, will be the first meeting ever for the two teams.

Only one other MSL North contest is slated for tonight, featuring Fremd (0-1) at Palatine (0-0). North co-leader Arlington is at Rockford Harlem for a nonconference game and Hersey hosts Elk Grove in a league crossovtr.

The big South Division match on tonight's schedule pits visiting Prospect against Forest View. Both squads won their first South contests last Friday and, along with Elk Grove, share the early-season divisional lead.

OTHER SOUTH GAMES on the docket are Rolling Meadows (0-1) at Schaumburg (0-0) and Hoffman Estates (0-1) at Conant (0-1).

Elgin hosts DeKalb, Larkin visits West Aurora, St. Viator travels to St. Patrick, and Stevenson hosts Grant in other area games tonight.

Freshman trial for Ivy League basketball teams

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — In a break with tradition, the Ivy League will launch a four-year trial next season to allow freshmen to play varsity basketball.

Pennsylvania's Martin Meyerson, chairman of the Council of Ivy Group Presidents, made the announcement following the recommendation of the newly established Ivy Policy Committee that had examined freshman participation on the varsity level in other sports.

The trial will be extensively monitored so the president's group can evaluate the impact of the change on the college experience of the players involved.

The council is comprised of the presidents of the eight Ivy League schools.

League turns down Red Sox purchase

HONOLULU — After hitting a home run earlier in the day in their acquisition of second baseman Jerry Remy from California, the Boston Red Sox struck out Thursday when a group headed by Haywood Sullivan and Buddy Leroux was turned down by the American League owners in its effort to purchase the club.

The rejection was a bitter blow to Sullivan and his group, which had expressed optimism of approval after having switched to the American Finance Corporation of Cincinnati for financial backing.

However, a basic reason for the rejection was that the American League officials didn't like the economic structure of the new group. "We'll be back, I'm not gonna quit on it," said Leroux.

As a result of the rejection, the team remains under control of the Yawkey estate with Joseph Lacour, Joe Curran and Mrs. Jean Yawkey as executors. Sullivan will remain as general manager, with Lacour as his assistant.

"I'm very disappointed at the outcome," said Sullivan. "Frankly I don't understand it other than the reason stated, which is very ambiguous, as far as I'm concerned."

Kuhn wipes out Turner suspension

HONOLULU — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn lifted the suspension of Atlanta Braves' owner Ted Turner at the winter baseball meetings Thursday and said his action is effective immediately.

Turner was suspended for tampering by Kuhn last Dec. 30 in the case of free agent outfielder Gary Matthews. Originally, Turner was fined $10,000 by the Commissioner when he threw a party in Atlanta for Matthews after Matthews had become a free agent with the San Francisco Giants. When Turner goaded San Francisco owner Bob Lurie following the fine imposed by Kuhn, telling Lurie "I'm going to sign Matthews anyway," the Atlanta owner was set down for a year even though the Braves eventually signed Matthews to a three-year contract for $2.3 million.

"I met with Ted Turner last evening and he said he would have liked to have the suspension lifted," Kuhn explained. "He felt he had learned his lesson, he had been a pretty good citizen and that the club needed his abilities as an executive. I felt his arguments were valid and so I advised him I am lifting his suspension immediately."

Canada leads U.S. in World Cup golf

MANILA, Philippines — George Knudson mastered the tricky greens of Wack Wack Golf and Country Club Thursday with a three-under-par 69 and teamed with Dave Barr to give Canada a four-stroke lead over the United States on the first day of the World Cup golf championship.

Knudson, a nine-year veteran of the World Cup competition and individual winner in Tokyo in 1966, tied with U.S. Open champion Hubert Green for the individual lead, but his 69 coupled with Barr's two-under-par 70 gave Canada an 18-hole team total of 139.

Green's 69 and partner Lanny Wadkins' 74 left the U.S. four shots behind at 143.

Defending champion Spain was at 144 with 20-year-old Severiano Ballesteros carding a 73 and partner Antonio Garrido checking in with a 71. South Korea tied with Spain, five strokes off the lead, with Kim Seung Hak shooting a 71 and Han Chang Sang scoring a 73.

Weaver quits, stays after May deal

HONOLULU — Incensed over losing picher Rudy May in a six-player deal he didn't even know about, Earl Weaver quit as manager of the Baltimore Orioles and then discovered they refused to accept his resignation.

All this took place behind closed doors at the winter baseball meetings Wednesday night after the Orioles sent May, an 18-game winner this year, and two other pitchers, Randy Miller and Bryn Smith to the Montreal Expos for pitchers Don Stanhouse and Joe Kerrigan and outfielder Gary Roeneke.

Weaver, who has been in the Baltimore organization 22 years and has led the Orioles to one world championship and three American League pennants since taking over as their manager nine years ago, was in one of the rooms used by one of baseball's commercial exhibitors, with some other managers, including Seattle's Darrell Johnson, when he heard of the deal.

MacAfee earns Irish MVP award

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Tight end Ken MacAfee, who caught 54 passes this year for 797 yards and six touchdowns, was named Notre Dame's most valuable player of the year Thursday night during the annual football awards dinner.

MacAfee, a two-time all-America, is Notre Dame's all-time leading receiver at tight end and is one of four finalists this year for the Lombardi Award, given to the top lineman in the country.

Junior quarterback Joe Montana was named the team's most valuable offensive player. He completed 53 per cent of his passes this year for 1,604 yards and 11 touchdowns.

Senior defensive end Ross Browner and junior linebacker Bob Golic shared the most valuable defensive player award.

Cowens, McAdoo top All-Star ballot

NEW YORK — New York's Bob McAdoo and Boston's Dave Cowens are engaged in a tight battle for the starting center berth on the Eastern Conference NBA All-Star team.

The first results of NBA fan balloting show McAdoo leading all Eastern Conference pivotmen with 29,231 votes, but Cowens trails the Knicks' smooth-shooting center by only 214 votes.

The East's overwhelming leader is Philadelphia 76ers' forward Julius Erving with 64,573 votes. Erving's teammate at forward, George McGinnis, is holding down the other starting position with 27,009 votes.

A third member of the 76ers, guard Doug Collins, is in second place among East backcourtmen with 41,486 votes, so Philadelphia could possibly place three players on the starting team. The league's top scorer, Pete Maravich of the New Orleans Jazz, leads all Eastern guards with 47,158 votes.

Black sparks Wesleyan triumph

CHICAGO — Forward Al Black scored 25 points to lead Illinois Wesleyan to a 68-62 victory over undefeated North Park Wednesday night in a mild upset in the College Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin.

Black is a former prep standout at Prospect High School.

Holding North Park's 6-foot-9 scoring star Mike Harper to 15 points — only four in the second half — Wesleyan never trailed after breaking a 17-17 tie with 8:30 to go in the first half.

North Park, predicted to win the conference title in a preseason coaches survey, fell to 4-1 on the season and 2-1 in the conference. Wesleyan improved its season mark to 3-1 and its conference record to 2-0.

Sports people

Harper's Jim Heenan, a 6-foot-4, 260-pound defensive tackle, was named this week to the National Junior College Athletic Assn.'s All-American honorable mention list. Heenan, a sophomore from Zion-Benton High Scool, was a valuable member of the Hawk defense that boasted three consecutive shutouts during a 5-4 season . . . Tony Larussa, a former Chicago Cub player, has been named manager of the Chicago White Sox Southern League farm club in Knoxville, Tenn.

PARK DISTRICT MEN'S BASKETBALL

The Pacers took over sole possession of first place in the American Division by beating Ben Franklin 101 to 46. M. Abraham kept up his league leading scoring by notching 34 points and Shaw brought home 22. Ben Franklin was never really in this one as Lawnley scored 17 and Krubik collected 13 in a losing cause.

Weiler lost the lead and the game late in the second half as Ecfort and Franzen finally became hot and dropped in 19 total points after they were shut out in the first half. Once again Dome tried to keep Weiler close but he fouled out with 10 points late in the game. Weiler then missed four from the line and one lay-up while Romano's Franzen drove the baseline and scored to seal the 40-36 victory.

Conex outlasted D.P. News 53-52 even though Malloy fooled everyone with his three-point play that brought the News back within a pair. Again, West led Conex from the center spot with 15, while Dean and Izban collected 13. Dean's free throw with just a few seconds left iced it at 53-50 and D.P. News, who kept coming back, ran out of time. Malloy and Drewes led the losers with 16 and 14 respective points, most being long bombers that barely rippled the net.

Dog and Suds went stale and Penncraft-Ace Hardware continued their well-balanced attack and took over first in the National Division with a 58-54 win. For Suds Fininis continued his fabulous shooting from the outside and collected 26, but Eilken and Henk were shut down underneath and managed only 4 apiece. Meanwhile, Christensen got 17, Bouchee had 12, Wolfgram collected 10, and Heist had eight to lead Penncraft-Ace.

MEN'S SLOWBREAK BASKETBALL

In the first game, Metcalf & Eddy led by Schimer, 17 pts., and Klepadlo, 19 pts., defeated Brennan, 54-26.

The second game pitted the Rookies against Classic Barber Shop. With Hogan scoring 15 pts., Classic beat the Rookies 45 to 38. Tollman and Ford had eight pts. each for the victors, while Heyse and Wright scored 19 and 13 respectively for the losers.

In the finale, Diamond Paint-Rebels streaked past Des Plaines National Bank, 57-39. The Gems were led by Clift with 20 pts. and M. Gunn with 12. Romano led D.P. National Bank with 14 pts.

Schaumburg Kings

A PEE WEE DIVISION
Schaumburg 3, Niles 2

The Kings skated hard to down the Niles Sharks 3 to 2. Even though the Sharks outshot the Kings 38 to 14, brilliant goaltending by B. Strociek brought the Kings victory. Goals were scored by George Schaefer, Bruce Safraniec and John Vermiglio.

Elk Grove 4, Schaumburg 1

Hard-hitting Elk Grove downed Schaumburg 4-1. The Kings lone goal came when Tim Johannes assisted Dave Nubani.

Deerfield 8, Schaumburg 0

The large, fast Deerfield Falcons blitzed the Kings. Even though the Falcons spent a great deal of time in the penalty box, the Kings could not capitalize on the opportunities.

Schaumburg 6, St. Jude 1

Schaumburg really put it together in a fast paced game against the St. Jude Knights. The Kings' scoring was led by Bruce Safraniec with two goals. Bryan Johnson, Dave Nubani, Eric Lippert and Mark Olson combined to put the game out of reach for the Knights. Assists were by Olson, Kubovy, Johnson, Schaefer and Meyer.

Schaumburg 1, Park Ridge 1

The Kings and the Hornets entertained each other in a very tight game. Fine goaltending by Brian Strociek and Jeff Steinbach kept the score to 1-1 tie. The Kings' lone goal was scored by Bruce Safraniec, assisted by Jeff Lytle.

The Rolling Meadows Hockey Club Mites A team opened its season against the Elmhurst Blades, losing 10-1. Meadows' only goal was scored by Harry Wintringer assisted by Butch Treiber. Goalie Billie Lange had 17 saves.

Lange made 39 saves in a 19-0 loss to the Schaumburg Kings.

Wintringer scored the lone goal in an evenly matched 3-1 loss to Glenview. The Glenview team won a 6-4 decision in a rematch as Wintringer tallied twice and Todd Peacock and Rocky Wojdyla added a goal apiece. John Atkins had two assists.

Meadows lost to Hoffman Estates, 8-2, despite a goal and an assist each by Wintringer and Peacock.

Wintringer scored twice more in a 4-2 loss to Glenview. Peacock and Atkins got assists.

Bowling

At Elk Grove Bowl

John Iohe of Back Again led all bowlers in the Sunday Nite Wholly Bowlers Mixed League at Elk Grove Bowl with a 513 series. John's series was 93 pins over his average while teammate Rich Becks bowled 75 pins over average. This combination helped Back Again sweep all points and move into indisputed second place, one half point behind the Walnut Aces, who also recorded a sweep for the evening.

These players received some help from teammate Jan Becks who rolled a 487 series, recorded a 176 game, and was 76 pins over her average.

The best woman's bowler was Marilyn Wolfard of the Sad Sacks with a 503 series including a 200 game. Her efforts were 92 pins over her average.

Frank Wolfard of the Sad Sacks (189) and Rich Hann of Never on Sunday (181) were the high men bowlers.

At Schaumburg Lanes

Vince Ahnquist took high series 654-240 in the Wednesday Nite Mixers League while Bill Donat took high game of 243. Donat shot a 603 series and Bob Dean had a 589-209.

At Brunswick Northwest

In the Kenilwicke League at the Brunswick-Northwest Bowl, splits were picked up by Brenda Harrington (1-7-9), Dotty Smith (5-7), and Gen Stark (3-7-10).

High series were bowled by Lou Anderson (534) and Lee Spiegel (501). Spiegel's series consisted of 126, 182 and 193 games. In the last game, he bowled five consecutive strikes. Anderson's series included 181,179 and 174 games.

In the Pin Ups' Women's League, the Lucky Strikes produced the high team series (2203). Helen Meeters of the Gutter Flooders picked up the 4-10 split while her teammate, Marsha Grillo, converted the 5-10.

Individual high series were bowled by Diana Fallon (475), Donna Brolist (457), Jean Smith (452), and Dianne Cook (451).

At Beverly Lanes

The Wonder Women, led by Bette Hennessy's 199-534, rolled a 1716 team-high series, 50 pins higher than the previous leader. Fran Batten added a 604 H/C to lead the league. Other top scores: Fran Lucas 501, Pat Campise 195, Ester McDermott 176, Mary Parmer 174. Handicap games of 200 or better were rolled by Kramer, Batten, Barkulis, and Sapchyk.

At Striker Lanes

Top bowlers in recent Striker Invitational Classic action were Evie Vraniak 200-205-585 and Kathy Vogel 209-565. Other scores: Sandi Cokenower 206-542, Sally Bartlett 195-541, Carol Oost 209-523, Georgia Kochan 516, and Phyllis Rapanos 204-510. Linda Schumann picked up the 8-10 split.

In the previous week's action, Rapanos rolled a 221-577 to lead all bowlers. Vogel had a 555, Mitzi Eschette a 205-522, Marge Sansone 200-519 and Carol Petersen 210. Koenic and Strey continue to hold first place.

League turns down Red Sox purchase

HONOLULU — After hitting a home run earlier in the day in their acquisition of second baseman Jerry Remy from California, the Boston Red Sox struck out Thursday when a group headed by Haywood Sullivan and Buddy Leroux was turned down by the American League owners in its effort to purchase the club.

The rejection was a bitter blow to Sullivan and his group, which had expressed optimism of approval after having switched to the American Finance Corporation of Cincinnati for financial backing.

However, a basic reason for the rejection was that the American League officials didn't like the economic structure of the new group. "We'll be back, I'm not gonna quit on it," said Leroux.

As a result of the rejection, the team remains under control of the Yawkey estate with Joseph Lacour, Joe Curran and Mrs. Jean Yawkey as executors. Sullivan will remain as general manager, with Lacour as his assistant.

"I'm very disappointed at the outcome," said Sullivan. "Frankly I don't understand it other than the reason stated, which is very ambiguous, as far as I'm concerned."

Kuhn wipes out Turner suspension

HONOLULU — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn lifted the suspension of Atlanta Braves' owner Ted Turner at the winter baseball meetings Thursday and said his action is effective immediately.

Turner was suspended for tampering by Kuhn last Dec. 30 in the case of free agent outfielder Gary Matthews. Originally, Turner was fined $10,000 by the Commissioner when he threw a party in Atlanta for Matthews after Matthews had become a free agent with the San Francisco Giants. When Turner goaded San Francisco owner Bob Lurie following the fine imposed by Kuhn, telling Lurie "I'm going to sign Matthews anyway," the Atlanta owner was set down for a year even though the Braves eventually signed Matthews to a three-year contract for $2.3 million.

"I met with Ted Turner last evening and he said he would have liked to have the suspension lifted," Kuhn explained. "He felt he had learned his lesson, he had been a pretty good citizen and that the club needed his abilities as an executive. I felt his arguments were valid and so I advised him I am lifting his suspension immediately."

Canada leads U.S. in World Cup golf

MANILA, Philippines — George Knudson mastered the tricky greens of Wack Wack Golf and Country Club Thursday with a three-under-par 69 and teamed with Dave Barr to give Canada a four-stroke lead over the United States on the first day of the World Cup golf championship.

Knudson, a nine-year veteran of the World Cup competition and individual winner in Tokyo in 1966, tied with U.S. Open champion Hubert Green for the individual lead, but his 69 coupled with Barr's two-under-par 70 gave Canada an 18-hole team total of 139.

Green's 69 and partner Lanny Wadkins' 74 left the U.S. four shots behind at 143.

Defending champion Spain was at 144 with 20-year-old Severiano Ballesteros carding a 73 and partner Antonio Garrido checking in with a 71. South Korea tied with Spain, five strokes off the lead, with Kim Seung Hak shooting a 71 and Han Chang Sang scoring a 73.

Weaver quits, stays after May deal

HONOLULU — Incensed over losing picher Rudy May in a six-player deal he didn't even know about, Earl Weaver quit as manager of the Baltimore Orioles and then discovered they refused to accept his resignation.

All this took place behind closed doors at the winter baseball meetings Wednesday night after the Orioles sent May, an 18-game winner this year, and two other pitchers, Randy Miller and Bryn Smith to the Montreal Expos for pitchers Don Stanhouse and Joe Kerrigan and outfielder Gary Roeneke.

Weaver, who has been in the Baltimore organization 22 years and has led the Orioles to one world championship and three American League pennants since taking over as their manager nine years ago, was in one of the rooms used by one of baseball's commercial exhibitors, with some other managers, including Seattle's Darrell Johnson, when he heard of the deal.

MacAfee earns Irish MVP award

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Tight end Ken MacAfee, who caught 54 passes this year for 797 yards and six touchdowns, was named Notre Dame's most valuable player of the year Thursday night during the annual football awards dinner.

MacAfee, a two-time all-America, is Notre Dame's all-time leading receiver at tight end and is one of four finalists this year for the Lombardi Award, given to the top lineman in the country.

Junior quarterback Joe Montana was named the team's most valuable offensive player. He completed 53 per cent of his passes this year for 1,604 yards and 11 touchdowns.

Senior defensive end Ross Browner and junior linebacker Bob Golic shared the most valuable defensive player award.

Cowens, McAdoo top All-Star ballot

NEW YORK — New York's Bob McAdoo and Boston's Dave Cowens are engaged in a tight battle for the starting center berth on the Eastern Conference NBA All-Star team.

The first results of NBA fan balloting show McAdoo leading all Eastern Conference pivotmen with 29,231 votes, but Cowens trails the Knicks' smooth-shooting center by only 214 votes.

The East's overwhelming leader is Philadelphia 76ers' forward Julius Erving with 64,573 votes. Erving's teammate at forward, George McGinnis, is holding down the other starting position with 27,009 votes.

A third member of the 76ers, guard Doug Collins, is in second place among East backcourtmen with 41,486 votes, so Philadelphia could possibly place three players on the starting team. The league's top scorer, Pete Maravich of the New Orleans Jazz, leads all Eastern guards with 47,158 votes.

Black sparks Wesleyan triumph

CHICAGO — Forward Al Black scored 25 points to lead Illinois Wesleyan to a 68-62 victory over undefeated North Park Wednesday night in a mild upset in the College Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin.

Black is a former prep standout at Prospect High School.

Holding North Park's 6-foot-9 scoring star Mike Harper to 15 points — only four in the second half — Wesleyan never trailed after breaking a 17-17 tie with 8:30 to go in the first half.

North Park, predicted to win the conference title in a preseason coaches survey, fell to 4-1 on the season and 2-1 in the conference. Wesleyan improved its season mark to 3-1 and its conference record to 2-0.

Sports people

Harper's Jim Heenan, a 6-foot-4, 260-pound defensive tackle, was named this week to the National Junior College Athletic Assn.'s All-American honorable mention list. Heenan, a sophomore from Zion-Benton High Scool, was a valuable member of the Hawk defense that boasted three consecutive shutouts during a 5-4 season . . . Tony Larussa, a former Chicago Cub player, has been named manager of the Chicago White Sox Southern League farm club in Knoxville, Tenn.

MEN'S BASKETBALL

The Pacers took over sole possession of first place in the American Division by beating Ben Franklin 101 to 46. M. Abraham kept up his league leading scoring by notching 34 points and Shaw brought home 22. Ben Franklin was never really in this one as Lawnley scored 17 and Krubik collected 13 in a losing cause.

Weiler lost the lead and the game late in the second half as Ecfort and Franzen finally became hot and dropped in 19 total points after they were shut out in the first half. Once again Dome tried to keep Weiler close but he fouled out with 10 points late in the game. Weiler then missed four from the line and one lay-up while Romano's Franzen drove the baseline and scored to seal the 40-36 victory.

Conex outlasted D.P. News 53-52 even though Malloy fooled everyone with his three-point play that brought the News back within a pair. Again, West led Conex from the center spot with 15, while Dean and Izban collected 13. Dean's free throw with just a few seconds left iced it at 53-50 and D.P. News, who kept coming back, ran out of time. Malloy and Drewes led the losers with 16 and 14 respective points, most being long bombers that barely rippled the net.

Dog and Suds went stale and Penncraft-Ace Hardware continued their well-balanced attack and took over first in the National Division with a 58-54 win. For Suds Fininis continued his fabulous shooting from the outside and collected 26, but Eilken and Henk were shut down underneath and managed only 4 apiece. Meanwhile, Christensen got 17, Bouchee had 12, Wolfgram collected 10, and Heist had eight to lead Penncraft-Ace.

MEN'S SLOWBREAK BASKETBALL

In the first game, Metcalf & Eddy led by Schimer, 17 pts., and Klepadlo, 19 pts., defeated Brennan, 54-26.

The second game pitted the Rookies against Classic Barber Shop. With Hogan scoring 15 pts., Classic beat the Rookies 45 to 38. Tollman and Ford had eight pts. each for the victors, while Heyse and Wright scored 19 and 13 respectively for the losers.

In the finale, Diamond Paint-Rebels streaked past Des Plaines National Bank, 57-39. The Gems were led by Clift with 20 pts. and M. Gunn with 12. Romano led D.P. National Bank with 14 pts.

Schaumburg Kings

A PEE WEE DIVISION
Schaumburg 3, Niles 2

The Kings skated hard to down the Niles Sharks 3 to 2. Even though the Sharks outshot the Kings 38 to 14, brilliant goaltending by B. Strociek brought the Kings victory. Goals were scored by George Schaefer, Bruce Safraniec and John Vermiglio.

Elk Grove 4, Schaumburg 1

Hard-hitting Elk Grove downed Schaumburg 4-1. The Kings lone goal came when Tim Johannes assisted Dave Nubani.

Deerfield 8, Schaumburg 0

The large, fast Deerfield Falcons blitzed the Kings. Even though the Falcons spent a great deal of time in the penalty box, the Kings could not capitalize on the opportunities.

Schaumburg 6, St. Jude 1

Schaumburg really put it together in a fast paced game against the St. Jude Knights. The Kings' scoring was led by Bruce Safraniec with two goals. Bryan Johnson, Dave Nubani, Eric Lippert and Mark Olson combined to put the game out of reach for the Knights. Assists were by Olson, Kubovy, Johnson, Schaefer and Meyer.

Schaumburg 1, Park Ridge 1

The Kings and the Hornets entertained each other in a very tight game. Fine goaltending by Brian Strociek and Jeff Steinbach kept the score to 1-1 tie. The Kings' lone goal was scored by Bruce Safraniec, assisted by Jeff Lytle.

The Rolling Meadows Hockey Club Mites A team opened its season against the Elmhurst Blades, losing 10-1. Meadows' only goal was scored by Harry Wintringer assisted by Butch Treiber. Goalie Billie Lange had 17 saves.

Lange made 39 saves in a 19-0 loss to the Schaumburg Kings.

Wintringer scored the lone goal in an evenly matched 3-1 loss to Glenview. The Glenview team won a 6-4 decision in a rematch as Wintringer tallied twice and Todd Peacock and Rocky Wojdyla added a goal apiece. John Atkins had two assists.

Meadows lost to Hoffman Estates, 8-2, despite a goal and an assist each by Wintringer and Peacock.

Wintringer scored twice more in a 4-2 loss to Glenview. Peacock and Atkins got assists.

Bowling

At Elk Grove Bowl

John Iohe of Back Again led all bowlers in the Sunday Nite Wholly Bowlers Mixed League at Elk Grove Bowl with a 513 series. John's series was 93 pins over his average while teammate Rich Becks bowled 75 pins over average. This combination helped Back Again sweep all points and move into indisputed second place, one half point behind the Walnut Aces, who also recorded a sweep for the evening.

These players received some help from teammate Jan Becks who rolled a 487 series, recorded a 176 game, and was 76 pins over her average.

The best woman's bowler was Marilyn Wolfard of the Sad Sacks with a 503 series including a 200 game. Her efforts were 92 pins over her average.

Frank Wolfard of the Sad Sacks (189) and Rich Hann of Never on Sunday (181) were the high men bowlers.

At Schaumburg Lanes

Vince Ahnquist took high series 654-240 in the Wednesday Nite Mixers League while Bill Donat took high game of 243. Donat shot a 603 series and Bob Dean had a 589-209.

At Brunswick Northwest

In the Kenilwicke League at the Brunswick-Northwest Bowl, splits were picked up by Brenda Harrington (1-7-9), Dotty Smith (5-7), and Gen Stark (3-7-10).

High series were bowled by Lou Anderson (534) and Lee Spiegel (501). Spiegel's series consisted of 126, 182 and 193 games. In the last game, he bowled five consecutive strikes. Anderson's series included 181,179 and 174 games.

In the Pin Ups' Women's League, the Lucky Strikes produced the high team series (2203). Helen Meeters of the Gutter Flooders picked up the 4-10 split while her teammate, Marsha Grillo, converted the 5-10.

Individual high series were bowled by Diana Fallon (475), Donna Brolist (457), Jean Smith (452), and Dianne Cook (451).

At Beverly Lanes

The Wonder Women, led by Bette Hennessy's 199-534, rolled a 1716 team-high series, 50 pins higher than the previous leader. Fran Batten added a 604 H/C to lead the league. Other top scores: Fran Lucas 501, Pat Campise 195, Ester McDermott 176, Mary Parmer 174. Handicap games of 200 or better were rolled by Kramer, Batten, Barkulis, and Sapchyk.

At Striker Lanes

Top bowlers in recent Striker Invitational Classic action were Evie Vraniak 200-205-585 and Kathy Vogel 209-565. Other scores: Sandi Cokenower 206-542, Sally Bartlett 195-541, Carol Oost 209-523, Georgia Kochan 516, and Phyllis Rapanos 204-510. Linda Schumann picked up the 8-10 split.

In the previous week's action, Rapanos rolled a 221-577 to lead all bowlers. Vogel had a 555, Mitzi Eschette a 205-522, Marge Sansone 200-519 and Carol Petersen 210.

Koenic and Strey continue to hold first place.

It's 'impossible' for U.S. to compete, Hamill says

Dorothy Hamill

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Olympic gold medalist Dorothy Hamill said this week it soon will be "virtually impossible" for Americans to compete in the Olympics on an equal basis with heavily subsidized Russian and East German athletes.

However, she warned that government support and control might not be the best solution, pointing out that Russian skaters look like "machines," and suggested that private companies might play more of a role in helping amateur athletes.

"Pretty soon it is going to be virtually impossible for us to compete against the Russians and East Germans," Hamill said at a news conference in Cincinnati, where she is appearing in the "Ice Capades" show.

"THEY ARE COMPLETELY subsidized with cars and apartments. They train together, travel together and vacation together.

"We have to find some way (to support American amateurs). Maybe big companies could sponsor them, but I don't necessarily think the government is the answer."

Hamill estimated the cost of her 1976 Olympic preparation at between $100,000 and $200,000 and noted she was supported by three companies.

Despite the financial problems of American amateurs, Hamill said Americans do have one important advantage over Communists athletes: "freedom."

"We have the freedom to choose our coaches and where we train. They (Communist amateurs) are trained by a national coach and I'm not so sure that is such a good idea, in skating especially, because it's such an individual sport.

"If our government supplied us a training camp and coaches, we would lose this freedom. If you watch American and Russian skaters, you can tell the Russians look like machines."

Hamill said Communist coaches are "very strict" and if their young athletes "don't do well, there's going to be trouble."

She recalled the treatment of a promising East German skater who didn't do well for awhile.

"Her coach was yelling and screaming at her in front of us, which was very unusual, and she was made to practice right before a meet at a very high altitude, which shouldn't have happened.

"I don't know what happened to her," Hamill said. "They (Communist athletes) fear not doing well."

AS FOR HER OWN career, Hamill said she would continue to skate in the "Ice Capades" awhile "and then my next goal is to teach blind and handicapped children to skate."

Although she now is back working full-time in the "Ice Capades," she said she still is recuperating and under medication after a week's stay in a Los Angeles hospital last month for treatment of a bleeding ulcer.

She also acknowledged that a lawsuit filed by her former coach, Carlo Fassi, who complained he wasn't fully paid for coaching Hamill for the Olympics, had been settled out of court. She said she has been advised not to disclose details of the settlement.

It's 'impossible' for U.S. to compete, Hamill says

Dorothy Hamill

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Olympic gold medalist Dorothy Hamill said this week it soon will be "virtually impossible" for Americans to compete in the Olympics on an equal basis with heavily subsidized Russian and East German athletes.

However, she warned that government support and control might not be the best solution, pointing out that Russian skaters look like "machines," and suggested that private companies might play more of a role in helping amateur athletes.

"Pretty soon it is going to be virtually impossible for us to compete against the Russians and East Germans," Hamill said at a news conference in Cincinnati, where she is appearing in the "Ice Capades" show.

"THEY ARE COMPLETELY subsidized with cars and apartments. They train together, travel together and vacation together.

"We have to find some way (to support American amateurs). Maybe big companies could sponsor them, but I don't necessarily think the government is the answer."

Hamill estimated the cost of her 1976 Olympic preparation at between $100,000 and $200,000 and noted she was supported by three companies.

Despite the financial problems of American amateurs, Hamill said Americans do have one important advantage over Communists athletes: "freedom."

"We have the freedom to choose our coaches and where we train. They (Communist amateurs) are trained by a national coach and I'm not so sure that is such a good idea, in skating especially, because it's such an individual sport.

"If our government supplied us a training camp and coaches, we would lose this freedom. If you watch American and Russian skaters, you can tell the Russians look like machines."

Hamill said Communist coaches are "very strict" and if their young athletes "don't do well, there's going to be trouble."

She recalled the treatment of a promising East German skater who didn't do well for awhile.

"Her coach was yelling and screaming at her in front of us, which was very unusual, and she was made to practice right before a meet at a very high altitude, which shouldn't have happened.

"I don't know what happened to her," Hamill said. "They (Communist athletes) fear not doing well."

AS FOR HER OWN career, Hamill said she would continue to skate in the "Ice Capades" awhile "and then my next goal is to teach blind and handicapped children to skate."

Although she now is back working full-time in the "Ice Capades," she said she still is recuperating and under medication after a week's stay in a Los Angeles hospital last month for treatment of a bleeding ulcer.

She also acknowledged that a lawsuit filed by her former coach, Carlo Fassi, who complained he wasn't fully paid for coaching Hamill for the Olympics, had been settled out of court. She said she has been advised not to disclose details of the settlement.

For Carew, money isn't everything

Milton Richman

HONOLULU (UPI) — Every man is said to have his price, and that's what makes a number of persons wonder why someone like Rod Carew, "the best ballplayer in America," according to his employer, shows no desire whatsoevtr to become the highest salaried one in the game as well.

Reggie Jackson, who got $2.9 million for signing with the Yankees a year ago, wondered the same thing.

When he and Carew were suiting up and getting ready to play in last summer's All-Star game, the Yankees' slugger went over to the Twins' six-time batting champ, making $225,000 a year, and said to him:

"Man, you're nuts! How can you play in Minnesota when there's so much money out there to be had?"

"REGGIE, I'M happy where I am and with what I'm getting," Carew answered him. "I'm at ease and I've got peace of mind. I don't have the headaches you have."

Rod Carew, the American League's MYP this year after batting 388 to lead all hitters in the majors, meant every word he said to Reggie Jackson. He elaborated on that at the winter baseball meetings where he's being honored as the Major League Player of the Year.

"Money doesn't mean everything to me in my life," he said, looking out at some of the surfers and swimmers enjoying themselves in the Pacific Ocean. "Becoming an instant millionaire by playing out my contract is something which never crossed my mind.

"I KNEW THIS general free agency was coming, when I signed my last contract for three years with the Twins in 1976. I'm satisfied. What the other players are getting is their business. I'm not on any ego trip to be the highest priced player. Being happy and healthy means more to me.

"Before all this free agency came into being, a lot of fellows playing ball said we were 'slaves.' Well, what are you doing when you go through free agency? You're selling yourself as if you were a slave. That doesn't interest me at all."

Before the Twins came to these meetings, they tried swinging a deal with the Mets for left-handed pitcher Jerry Koosman, who lives in Minnesota and would like to play there so he could be near home. Originally, the Mets showed some interest in Lyman Bostock, but when he went to the Angels as a free agent, they tried another approach.

"What about Carew?" Mets general manager Joe McDonald asked Twins owner Calvin Griffith. "We'll give you Koosman and three other players for him."

"Forget it," Griffith said immediately. "Carew isn't available at any price. If I dealt him, I'd have to catch the first plane out of Minnesota."

THE PROSPECT of playing in New York, where he grew up, for either the Mets or the Yankees doesn't particularly excite the Twins' 32-year-old second baseman.

"New York is a very heavy city," he said. "You can become an instant millionaire in it or a complete bust. All the pressures there can affect a guy's performance. I honestly don't know what I would've done had I been traded to the Mets. I would've had to sit down and think about a lot of things."

Rod Carew is an unusual individual. It doesn't bother him that two of his Minnesota teammates, Larry Hisle and Bostock, elected to become free agents and got themselves better than $2 million apiece from the Brewers and Angels only a few weeks ago.

BOSTOCK HIT in front of Carew and Hisle hit behind him, which means the pitchers will be able to pitch to Carew differently next season, but that isn't worrying him.

"I don't think it's going to hurt me that much," he said.

Although his .334 lifetime average is far and away the best among active players with 10 or more years experience in either league, there was a time when the Twins were about to send Carew back to the minors. That was when he first came to them 11 years ago and they felt they might be better off with Cesar Tovar or Frank Quilici as their regular second baseman.

Calvin Griffith stepped in at that point and personally directed manager Sam Mele to play Carew at second base.

"THAT WAS THE first thing that came to my mind when I was named MVP a few weeks ago," Carew said. "I'm very grateful to Calvin for what he did at the time. I was immature, had a bad attitude and did some things other owners wouldn't have put up with. A lot of owners might've given up on me, but Calvin didn't. You don't forget things like that."

Griffith says there is "no ballplayer better" than Carew.

"I've been saying for two years he's the best ballplayer in America," the Twins' boss said. "Now everybody agrees with me."

HARPER'S DAN BREEN puts up a shot in a recent game at St. Viator. The Schaumburg High School grad is in his second year of play for the Hawks and celebrated with a 36-point performance in a win over Elgin. He tallied 20 points three nights later against Thornton.

A heavy-handed Jabbar wants officials to enforce the rule book

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who many qualify as some sort of an enforcer himself, belives it's about tiime the NBA started enforcing its rule book.

Sidelined with a broken hand suffered two minutes into the Los Angeles Lakers' league opener at Milwaukee when he punched Bucks' rookie center Kent Benson in the head, the 7-foot-2 superstar says he's had enough pushing and shoving in the pivot to last him a lifetime.

The rule he particularly wants the NBA to enforce is one that states "a player shall not hold, push, charge into, impede the progress of an opponent by extended arm, knee or by bending the body into a position that is not normal."

ABDUL-JABBAR, a quiet-spoken veteran of nine pro seasons, fractured his right hand when he slugged Benson after Benson had elbowed him hard in the stomach. He returned to action this week.

"The real crux of the matter," he said, "is the interpretation of the rules. I don't want the style of the game to change. But I think the interpretation of what is to be condoned has to change.

"It's to my disadvantage to play a strong-arm game. Somebody else who can play that type of game has an advantage when the rules are interpreted that way.

"I think it's sad, too. There are so many talented players in the game that the rough stuff is not necessary."

For punching Benson Oct. 18, Abdul-Jabbar was fined $5,000. He says the fine wasn't taken care of by Laker owner Jack Kent Cooke and he paid it out of his own salary — reported to be $500,000 a year.

NBA REFEREES have two standards, according to Abdul-Jabbar. In contrast with those who say the superstars get preferential treatment, he contends he actually suffers because of his status as the league's No. 1 player.

"Since I've been in this league," he said, "a double standard has been applied as far as officiating is concerned and I'm not insensitive to it. The officials use different standards for different people.

"I wouldn't say it's a personal thing with the officials. They just feel I have an advantage and a lot of talent and a lot of height and they feel I should play the game with a handicap.

"It's a natural reaction among anybody to try to even it out. When the referees do this, I don't know if it's conscious on their part. Probably it isn't."

Abdul-Jabbar has admitted he was wrong in slugging Benson, a 6-foot-11, 245-pounder. But he hasn't said it won't happen again if he's provoked with another elbow to the stomach.

OF BENSON'S tactics, he said, "I think that not having the finesse or understandings of the way the game is played may have had some part in what happened. He could have roughed me up all night the way everybody else has done since I was a rookie and nobody would have said anything. So I think it was kind of silly on his part to go to such extreme measures."

Abdul-Jabbar's past skirmishes have been with less talented centers. He never gets into fights with other star centers. A year ago, he flattened Tom Burleson, then of the Seattle Supersonics. Burleson never has been accused of being a star.

According to the Laker center, the Bob Laniers and Artis Gilmores of the league deserve respect because they have too much talent to play like thugs.

"You have to take into consideration the size and skills of who you're playing and make your adjustments," Abdul-Jabbar said. "As far as how we treat each other, we treat each other with respect.

"We compete and we try to beat each other. If we try to hurt each other, we try to hurt each other's feelings and let it go at that."

World's greatest excuses

Brooklyn Dodger pitcher Belly Loes, when asked by reporters how he missed an easy ground ball that rolled between his legs in a crucial World Series situation, replied, "I lost it in the sun."

Walton, Lucas top West star voting

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three Portland Trail Blazers — Bill Walton, Maurice Lucas and Lionel Hollins — lead the fan balloting for starting berths on the NBA Western Conference All-Star team.

Lucas, the aggressive 6-foot-9 forward, leads all players with 35,867 votes. Walton has 31,256 votes to top West centers, while Hollins is second among guards with 23,105.

Denver's David Thompson, the leading vote-getter last year, is first at guard with 23,428 while Rick Barry of Golden State is second to Lucas among forwards with 24,866.

Voting continues through Jan. 1 for the game, which will be played in Atlanta on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 5. The first results from the Eastern Conference will be announced today.

14 teams have shot at Superbowl

With only two weeks remaining in the NFL's regular season, 14 of the league's 28 teams still are in contention for Super Bowl XII, with three of the six division races undecided and five of eight divisional playoff berths to be determined.

Denver, Dallas and Los Angeles already have clinched playoff spots, and Saturday, the 8-4 Pittsburgh Steelers could become the next team in the playoffs by defeating Cincinnati for the AFC Central Division title in the first game of a nationally televsied doubleheader with a noon CST kickoff.

Washington (7-5) faces St. Louis (7-5) in the second game of the doubleheader beginning at 3:30 p.m.

SINCE THE National Football League's realignment in 1970, either the Steelers or the Bengals have captured the AFC Central crown six of the seven years, with the Steelers having won the title the past three years.

Pittsburgh has won the last five games between the two clubs, including a 30-24 decision in Riverfront Stadium in 1974 and a 7-3 victory last year.

Pittsburgh's offensive unit should be intact for Saturday's game since tight end Bennie Cunningham is expected back after missing two games with an ankle injury, while Cincinnati's offense opens without All-Pro Isaac Curtis, who has a knee injury. He will be replaced by John McDaniel.

If Cincinnati wins Saturday, the clubs would be deadlocked for the lead with one game left, with the Bengals facing the Oilers and the Steelers facing San Diego.

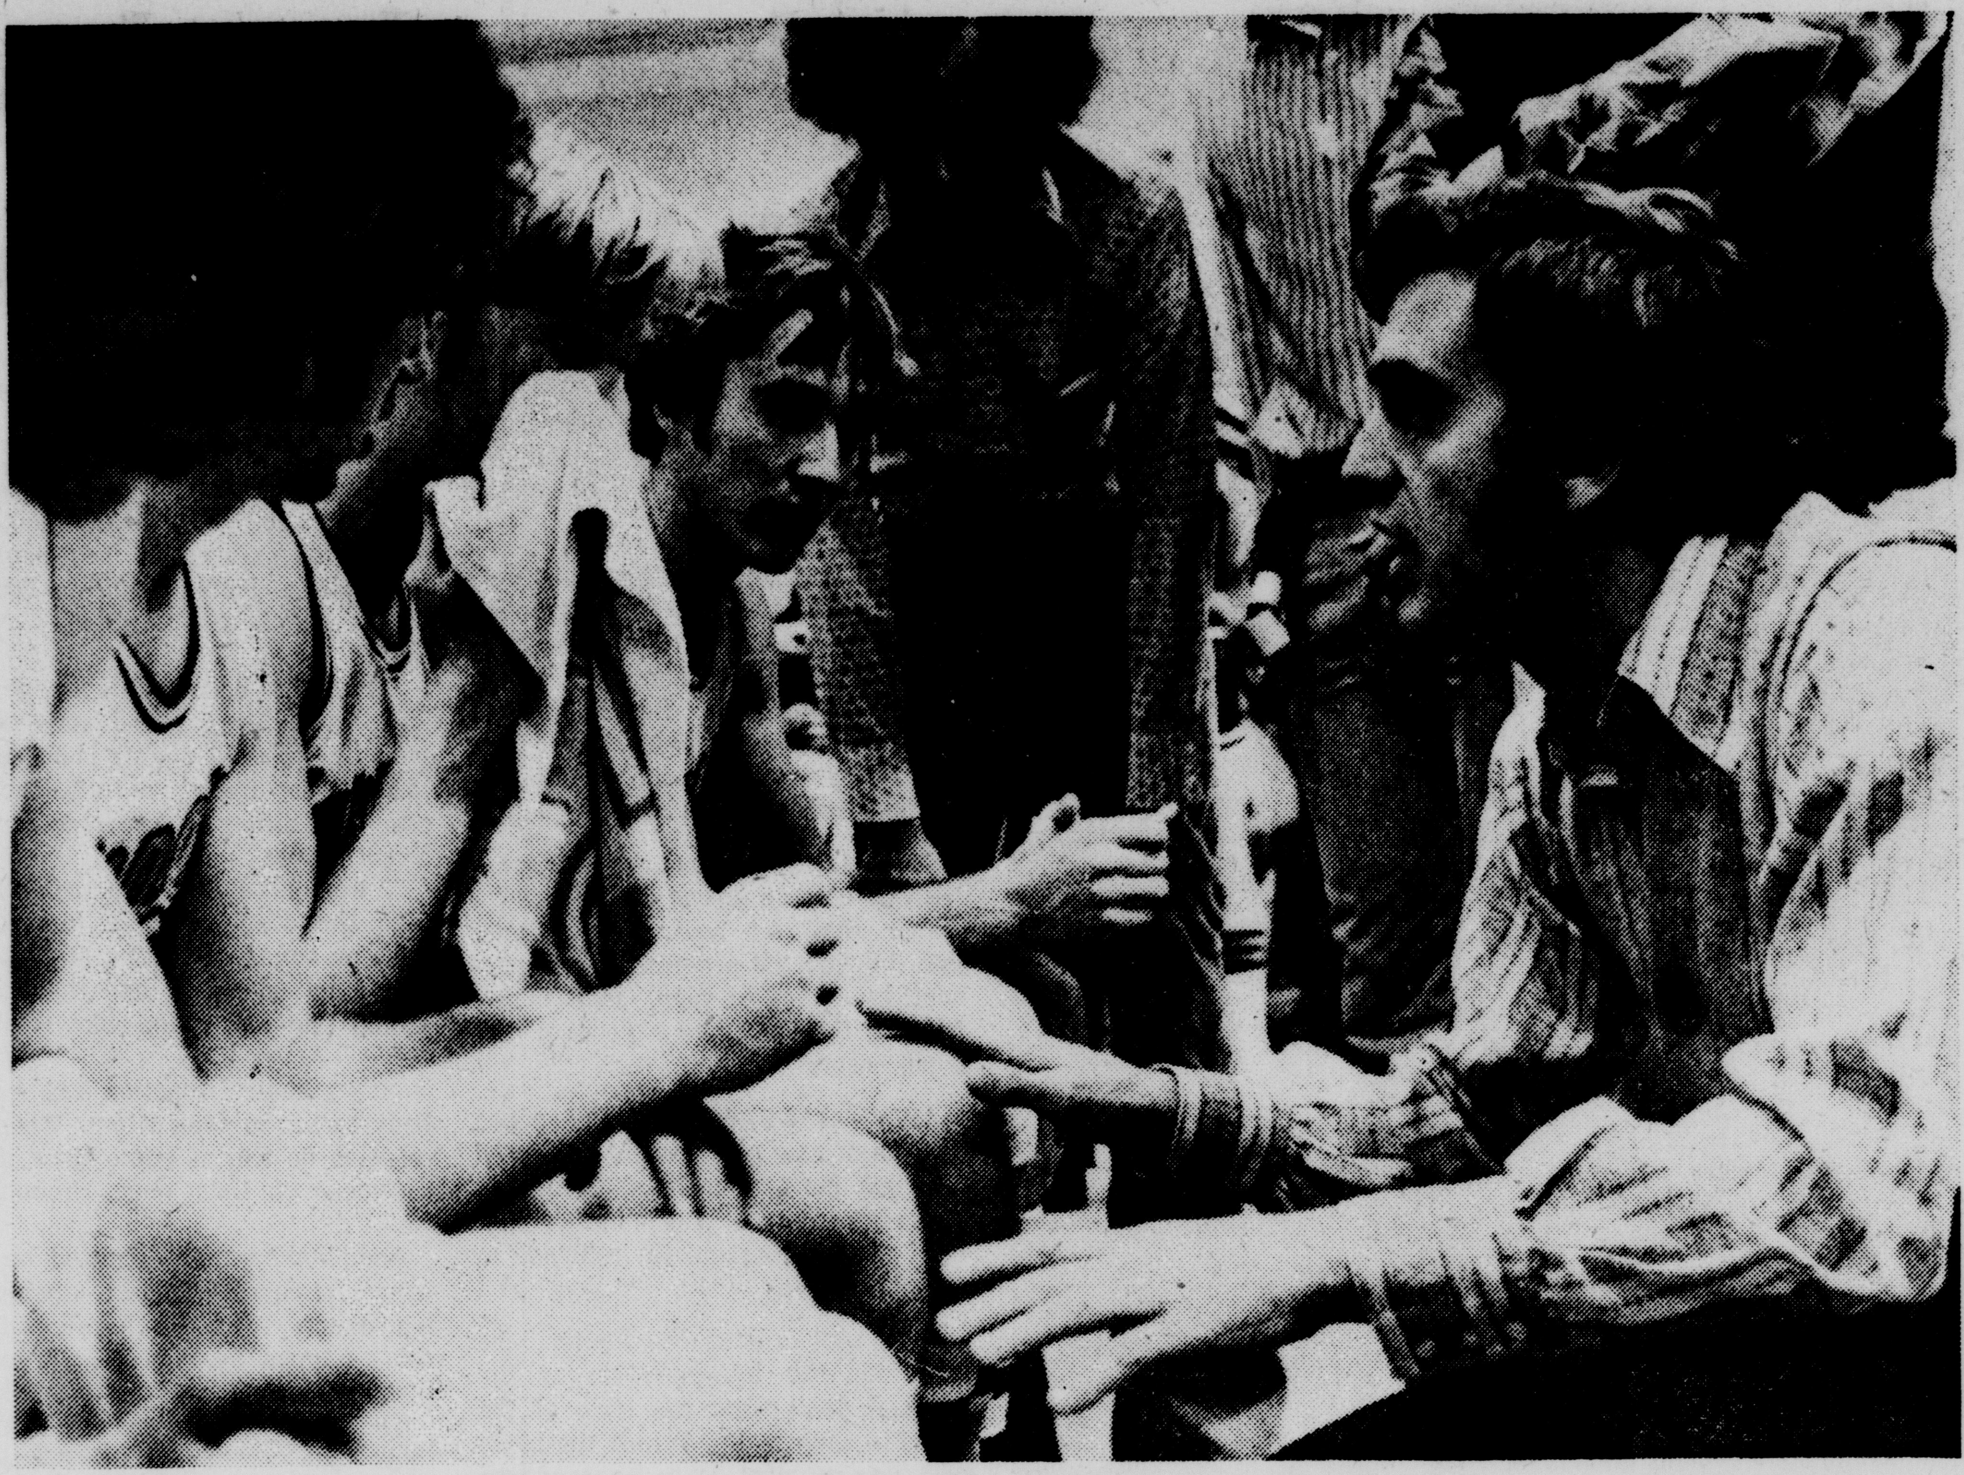
The other 11 contenders include Baltimore (9-3), Miami (9-3) and New England (8-4) of the AFC Eastern Division and Oakland (9-3) of the Western Division, while in the NFC, Minnesota (8-4) and Chicago (7-5) of the Central Division, St. Louis (7-5) and Washington (7-5) of the Eastern Division and Atlanta (6-6) of the Western Division also are playoff hopefuls.

SUNDAY'S GAMES include, in the AFC, Buffalo at New York Jets, Houston at Cleveland, Miami at New England, Seattle at Kansas City, San Diego at Denver; in the NFC, Atlanta at Los Angeles, Green Bay at Chicago, New York Giants at Philadelphia, Tampa Bay at New Orleans; and in interconference games Detroit at Baltimore and Minnesota at Oakland.

Dallas visits San Francisco Monday night.

The Vikings, who are one game up on the Bears in the Central race, can clinch their division if they defeat Detroit next week even if they lose to the Raiders Sunday.

If the Raiders defeat the Vikings, and go on to down the Chiefs next week, they become the AFC wild card regardless of other results. The Raiders could match Denver's 11-3 record, but the Broncos would win the title on the basis of a head-to-head point differential.



HAWK HUDDLE. Harper basketball coach Roger Bechtold discusses strategy during a time out. Harper, 5-3 on the season, will try to rebound from an 86-82 loss against Thornton Saturday at 2 p.m. at Lake County.

Criss is smallest pro

Murray Olderman, sports writer and artist for Newspaper Enterprise Assn. (NEA), will appear each Friday in The Daily Herald with his nationally syndicated "Just Ask" column. Readers are invited to write Olderman on any sports subject. Letters should be brief and addressed to Murray Olderman, Sports Department, The Daily Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Murray Olderman

Just ask

Q. Who is the smallest player in the National Basketball Association? With Monty Towe no longer with Denver, I say it's Calvin Murphy again.—G. J., Pasadena, Tex.

No, it's Charlie Criss, the 28-year-old rookie of the Atlanta Hawks. He's 5-feet-6. Murphy of the Houston Rockets is 5-feet-9. Towe, who was cut by the Nuggets this year, was listed at 5-feet-7 but actually stands 5-feet-5 and one-fourth. Criss, seven years out of New Mexico State, has been a revelation for the revived Hawks after starring in the Eastern League in recent seasons.

Q. How is the No. 1 college football team in the country picked?—H.F., Columbus, Ohio.

There is no official No. 1 team. The Associated Press weekly poll is compiled from votes of its sports writers around the country. United Press International polls the major football coaches around the nation. Neither, despite what you hear from schools like Texas, Oklahoma and Alabama, is to be taken too seriously. They're a little like All-America teams — nice but inconclusive.

Q. What's the trouble with the Boston Celtics this season? How has Dave Cowens been doing?—G.N., Quincy, Mass.

The Celtics have been suffering from the shortness of talent coming off the bench, which has previously been a Boston forte. On top of that, their forwards Sidney Wicks and Curtis Rowe, have gotten off to faltering starts. And their venerable senior citizen, John Havlicek, just can't go like he used to. Cowens, rid of his personal doubts about playing a little boy's game, has been performing well.

Q. How many free agents are playing as starters in the National Football League—J. T., Cincinnati, Ohio.

I wouldn't venture to name all of them, but I can point out some prominent NFL stars who were never drafted out of college and yet have had productive pro careers. Among them are a couple of bona fide all-pros from the Dallas Cowboys, safety Cliff Harris and wide receiver Drew Pearson; center Mick Tingelhoff and tight end Bob Tucker of the Minnesota Vikings; defensive end Coy Bacon of Cincinnati; defensive back Willie Brown and defensive end Otis Sistrunk of Oakland; guards Jim Clack and Sam Davis, safeties Glen Edwards and Donnie Shell of Pittsburgh; center Jim Langer and guards Larry Little, Bob Kuechenberg of Miami. There's some fine talent there.

Q. Who is the most influential sports figure in America today—N. T., Fountain Valley, Calif.

It used to be fashionable to say Pete Rozelle, but the pro football commissioner has had his power curtailed in recent years. A case could be made for Al Davis of the Oakland Raiders, but he's an iconoclastic sort who bucks the authorities. I'm reluctant to say so, but my feeling is that the man with the greatest impact on sports today is that stoop shouldered, shrill-voiced epitome of ponposity, Howard Cosell, because this is the Age of TV and he is the No. 1 evangelist.

Q. How can a baseball team afford to pay a relief pitcher like Rich Gossage several million dollars, as the Yankees have done And why do they need him, with Sparky Lyle in the bullpen—S. K., Sacramento, Calif.

Gossage's deal is reputedly for $3.5 million spread over a number of years. The way they're put together, those big contracts don't call for huge cash outlays immediately, so some future owner is going to inherit the burden of paying them off. Unlike some of the other free agents, Gossage at least is a relatively young 25. In today's brand of baseball, you can't have too many good guys for relief.

NFL in battle to preserve draft

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The National Football League, fighting for the right to keep the national college draft, says a court ruling that it violated federal antitrust laws erroneously focused only on its effects on a single player.

Arguing for the NFL before a three-judge panel of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, attorney James C. McKay said Wednesday that U.S. District Judge William B. Bryant ignored the benefits of the draft when he struck it down in September 1976.

Bryant's ruling, which declared the draft "a group boycott in its classic and most pernicious form," was handed down in a case brought by former Washington Redskin defensive back Jim "Yazoo" Smith. A No. 1 draft choice by the Redskins in 1967, Smith's football career ended abruptly when he broke his neck in tht final game of his rookie year.

Smith's attorneys claimed the draft denied him bargaining power by forcing him to negotiate only with the team that drafted him. Because the draft "indentured" him to the Redskins, the suit claimed, Smith was restricted from getting a higher bonus, a better salary or provisions that would safeguard him financially if he suffered a disabling injury.

Bryant awarded Smith treble damages totaling $276,000 plus costs and legal fees.

McKay argued that in focusing his attention on Smith, the judge ignored the draft's purpose of equalizing team strength, which inevitably helps players by giving all teams a better opportunity for post-season competition.

He urged the panel to return the case to the lower court with instructions to evaluate all the evidence. There was no indication of when the appeals court would hand down a decision.

McKay conceded the draft was restrictive, but said it was a "reasonable" measure to assure competitive balance in the league.

"Selection of playing talent determines which teams are the winners, which are the losers," he argued. "If the draft ended, the competitive balance would be disrupted and players would go to the team with the most money."

SNOW SHOW. Arlington Park, avoiding cancellation of its racing programs by keeping the main track clear and unfrozen, finally had to yield to the elements Thursday night. Heavy snow forced management to cancel the 10-race card. The track is seheduled to reopen tonight.

Austrian skier disqualified at meet

VAL D'ISERE, France (UPI) — Annemarie Moser-Proell of Austria was "provisionally disqualified" from a second place finish in Thursday's World Cup giant slalom for failing to conform to a new rule on ski attire.

The ruling in the event, won by defending World Cup champion Lisa-Marie Morerod of Switzerland, cost Moser-Proell the lead in the World Cup standings.

Franco Casper, director of the International Ski Federation, announced the disqualification after tests were made on ski clothing worn by the first four finishers and two other skiers in the race chosen at random.

A NEW RULE on ski clothes was introduced by this year's FIS Congress for safety purposes. It sets the impermeability limit of the material in ski suits at 50 liters per square meter per second and tests after Thursday's race showed Moser-Proell's suit to be well outside that limit.

The FIS established the new clothing standard at the request of many skiers for health and safety reasons. The old "fish skin" suits could become too hot and dangerous in the case of a fall and did not allow sufficient friction.

After the tests on Moser-Proell's clothing, the suit was sealed by the local police chief in the presence of Casper, an Austrian official and the race's technical delegate and will be taken to a laboratory in Saint Gallen, Switzerland, next week, probably Monday, for another test.

If results remain the same, Moser-Proell will be definitely disqualified from the first women's giant slalom event of the season.

Howe slaps in 1,000th goal, may retire to front office

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Gordie Howe, the first man to score 1,000 career hockey goals, Thursday said he expects to retire to the front office of the New England Whalers.

"I think this will be the last year," Howe said following a workout at the Birmingham-Jefferson Coliseum. "I'll be a grandfather before long, and not too many grandfathers play hockey."

Howe, 49, ended a 10-game scoring slump and shoved the elusive 1,000th goal past Birmingham goalie John Garrett Wednesday night in New England's 6-3, WHA win over the Bulls.

"JOHN'S A GREAT guy," Howe said with a chuckle. "This morning they painted '1,000' on his sweater and he took it well. He's one of the finest goalies in the league."

Howe scored on a power play with only 1:36 gone in the first period. He got assists frm Whaler wingers John McKenzie and Mike Antonovich.

Howe's teammates poured onto the ice for congratulatory hugs, and a crowd of more than 10,000 gave him a standing ovation.

The Whalers, at the top of the WHA with a mark of 17-6-3, remained in Birmingham for a second game Friday night against the Bulls, who are in the league's cellar with a record of 8-14-2.

Howe said age is eroding his playing ability, and "just experience helps me bluff through some games. Besides, 1,000 won't last long the way Hull is coming along."

WINNIPEG'S Bobby Hull was more than 970 goals.

Howe said he plans to recruit for the Whalers. "I've got some credibility with these youngsters when I tell them something."

As for coaching, Howe replied, "No, I enjoy the game too much. I've been on the ice too long. Coaches watch the game and never relax unless you have a big lead."

A native of Floral, Saskatchewan, Howe joined the Detroit Red Wings of the NHL weighing 204 pounds. Today he weighs 205 pounds.

"I THINK ONE of the strongest things about my career is that I've been able to maintain my weight. One of my goals was to keep myself in condition."

After hanging on 999 goals for nearly a month, Howe said his teammates were sharing the tension of anticipating the 1,000th goal.

"They told me they were tired of hearing about it and to get oft my behind and score it," Howe said with a grin. "They reminded me in the lockerroom that 1,000 goals don't necessarily make a career.

"The chase is over, the race run and won."

SNOW SHOW. Arlington Park, avoiding cancellation of its racing programs by keeping the main track clear and unfrozen, finally had to yield to the elements Thursday night. Heavy snow forced management to cancel the 10-race card. The track is seheduled to reopen tonight.

Austrian skier disqualified at meet

VAL D'ISERE, France (UPI) — Annemarie Moser-Proell of Austria was "provisionally disqualified" from a second place finish in Thursday's World Cup giant slalom for failing to conform to a new rule on ski attire.

The ruling in the event, won by defending World Cup champion Lisa-Marie Morerod of Switzerland, cost Moser-Proell the lead in the World Cup standings.

Franco Casper, director of the International Ski Federation, announced the disqualification after tests were made on ski clothing worn by the first four finishers and two other skiers in the race chosen at random.

A NEW RULE on ski clothes was introduced by this year's FIS Congress for safety purposes. It sets the impermeability limit of the material in ski suits at 50 liters per square meter per second and tests after Thursday's race showed Moser-Proell's suit to be well outside that limit.

Illini might-have-been eyes grid success via son

Loren Tate

The tale of University of Illinois athletics has spawned many success stories, and the names are well known: Dick Butkus, Jim Grabowski, Don Fretman, Craig Virgin, etc.

But there also were the almosts and the might-have-beens.

Who knows what impact Jerry Sloan, former Chicago Bulls guard and now a coach there, might have had on the UI basketball program if he had not returned home that first year. Or how many honors 255-pound Chicagoan Mike Rogers — called a potential Butkus in 1966 — might have won if he too hadn't departed.

Going back further to the Ray Eliot football era, one name stands out in Eliot's recollection of disappointments.

"ONE OF THE reasons we were so tough is 1953 (Big Ten co-champions) was the fact the varsity had to practice each day against a freshman tackle named Wayne Bock," Eliot said.

"He was just tremendous. We couldn't wait for him to become eligible. Wayne was one of the finest linemen we ever recruited."

But Bock, who came from UI All-American John Karras' home town of Argo, was not exactly devoted to the classroom. He had other interests. When the fall of 1954 rolled around, he was playing football in the U.S. Marines.

Still, Wayne had a dream of playing for the Illini and returned after service, once again demonstrating extraordinary skills but failing to meet academic standards.

IN 1957, WITHOUT ever playing a college game, he was drafted No. 2 by the Chicago Cardinals and played in the College All-Star game in Chicago. His pro career consisted of three years with the Cardinals and a year with the Los Angeles Rams.

Last Saturday, Wayne Bock returned to The News-Gazette. All-State banquet for the first time since 1952. It was the 25th anniversary of a team that included Chicago Austin's Abe Woodson, Peoria Central's Hiles Stout, Bloomington Trinity's John Gremer and Argo's Bock.

This time, a quarter-century later, the honored guests included Wayne's 6-4, 230-pound son, Tom Bock of Brother Rice.

Wayne gave Illini coaches considerable encouragement. He left no doubt he'd like to see Tom enroll at the UI and make up for his own personal failures here.

"Yes, it would mean a great deal to me," said the elder Bock, who commutes between Chicago and Florida in the car-leasing business.

"RAY ELIOT and a lot of people here have done so much for me, and I never really did anything in return. I love the place. As far as I'm concerned, he couldn't pick a better place to go to college. Tom understands how I feel."

Like others his age, Tom Bock isn't ready to make a commitment. The tender date is more than two months off, and he is being recruited with almost the same fervor as Player of the Year Chris Boskey of St. Francis de Sales. He already has visited Michigan at Bo Schembechler's request.

"Personally, I think Tom can play with any of them. It's hard to judge your own son, but I am confident he can play," Wayne said.

If it happens — if Tom Bock "makes it" with the Illini — it will be the fulfillment of a dream for Wayne Bock, who tried twice but, in his own words, "fouled it up."

Tom has shown good classroom prowess, ranking 64th in a senior class of 397 students, and carrying a 3.21 grade-point average on a 4.0 scale. Tom is, according to coach Tom Mitchell, "one of the best defensive players in Brother Rice history, a three-year regular and only 17."

Ski slopes ready for this weekend

In addition to making snow, most area ski resorts will be making hay this weekend after Thursday's heavy dose of powder.

In northern Illinois, Villa Olivia reports a 10-to-20-inch base, 5 inches of new snow and calls skiing very good to excellent. Holiday Pzrk has a 14-inch base, 4 new inches and is rated very good to excellent.

Four Lake opened Thursday night and should be in operation for the weekend. Buffalo Park will not open until the weekend.

IN WISCONSIN, Wilmot confirms a 6-to-24-inch base, 4 inches of new snow and very good to excellent conditions. Cascade Mountain says 33 per cent of its slopes are open and there are occasional bare spots despite 2 inches of new snow over a minimal base. Conditions are fair and snow is being made.

Devils Head has 60 per cent of its slopes open, no bare spots, 4 inches of new snow over an 8-inch base and skiing is good. Skyline is 99 per cent operational with a 5-to-36 inch base, 1 inch of new powder and good to very good skiing conditions.

Timberline will have all slopes open by weekend with no bare spots. Three inches of new snow are added to a 6-to-8-inch base making skiing good. Tyrol Basin lists all slopes open, 6 inches of new snow over a 6-to-12-inch base and good to very good skiing.

Wintergreen opens Saturday with 40 per cent of its slopes open. Two inches of new snow over a 10-to-20 inch base makes for very good skiing.

In Indiana, Pine Ski Area in Valparaiso boasts 12-to-14-inch base, 6-to-8 inches of new snow and excellent skiing conditions.

Chamberlain sets marks

Ex-Kansas great Wilt Chamberlain holds five all-time National Basketball Association records. They are scoring (31,419 points), most points scored in one game (100), most field goals made in one game (36), most free throws made in one game (28), and most rebounds in one game (55).

Timberline will have all slopes open by weekend with no bare spots. Three inches of new snow are added to a 6-to-8-inch base making skiing good. Tyrol Basin lists all slopes open, 6 inches of new snow over a 6-to-12-inch base and good to very good skiing.

Wintergreen opens Saturday with 40 per cent of its slopes open. Two inches of new snow over a 10-to-20 inch base makes for very good skiing.

In Indiana, Pine Ski Area in Valparaiso boasts 12-to-14-inch base, 6-to-8 inches of new snow and excellent skiing conditions.

Chamberlain sets marks

Ex-Kansas great Wilt Chamberlain holds five all-time National Basketball Association records. They are scoring (31,419 points), most points scored in one game (100), most field goals made in one game (36), most free throws made in one game (28), and most rebounds in one game (55).

Ram's QB Haden thankful for chance

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Pat Haden, the Los Angeles Rams' former backup quarterback, appreciates the way Joe Namath, the Rams' former No. 1 quarterback, has accepted the way things have worked out.

After four weeks of the regular season Haden and Namath switched roles. Haden says that Namath, who hasn't played since throwing four interceptions in Chicago Oct. 10, has made no flap over the demotion.

"For that," Haden said, "I'm very, very grateful and I think the whole team is grateful, too. I know how difficult and frustrating this all must be for Joe.

"CERTAINLY, he could be very ugly over the situation but he hasn't been. Instead, he's been very helpful to me. He's handled it like a perfect gentleman."

When Namath was removed from the starting lineup, the Rams were 2-2 after blowing a 13-0 lead and bowing to the Bears 24-23. With Haden at quarterback, the Rams have a 7-1 record.

When Namath, the 34-year-old veteran from the New York Jets, opened the regular season at quarterback, Haden, 24, was openly disappointed and said so.

But he also maintained a positive attitide and didn't sulk. He didn't criticize coach Chuck Knox and he didn't criticize owner Carroll Rosenbloom. He simply accepted his fate and hoptd he would get his chance. Namath has accepted his fate much the same way.

A YEAR AGO, Haden won the starting job from James Harris and Ron Jaworski, subsequently traded, and there were verbal barbs flying everywhere. From Harris' faction, there even were charges of racism since Harris is black and Haden is white.

"Coach Knox told me," Haden recalled, "he was going to start Joe because Joe had more experience. I was terribly disappointed and I felt I deserved to start ahead of Joe but it wouldn't have helped the team or myself to mope and complain about it.

"So all I could do was prepare myself for when my opportunity came. When it came, I was prepared and now I'm the No. 1 quarterback again."

The Rams had a 1-5 exhibition record and were struggling with Namath at the controls. Now, with Haden in charge they appear to be improving each week and ready to peak as the NFL playoffs approach.

HADEN, THE Rhodes Scholar and former University of Southern California Rose Bowl hero, thinks this might be the year when the Rams get into their first Super Bowl. They've won four straight NFC West titles and have been in the last three NFC championship games.

"I think our chances of getting to the Super Bowl are as good as anybody else. We have excellent personnel. But, of course, you have to have luck, too, and you can't have too many key people out with injuries."

In his second year in the NFL Haden has been calling his own plays since his first start this season against New Orleans Oct. 16. He says he's physically and mentally better than he was last season.

"I'M A MUCH better quarterback," he said. "I feel much more comfortable now. It's nice to have all the quarterback controversy stuff behind me now and to be just playing pro football."

Haden's size has been a question all of his football life. Although he was USC's all-time leading touchdown passer with 33, he still was available on the seventh round of the NFL draft in 1975 when the Rams took a flyer on him. He played half a season in the World Football League with the Southern California Sun.

He's listed at 5-foot-11 and once was considered slight. But he's built himself up to a solid 185 pounds during the off-season through a weight-lifting program and he says that has put more zip on his passes than ever before.

"But," he said, "there never was a doubt in my mind about my ability to play in this league. A lot of people said I was too small, I didn't have a strong enough arm and I wasn't durable enough.

"WELL, THEY had a right to their opinion but I think I proved I can play in this league and I think I've played very well."

Haden, the quarterback and the scholar, also is an author. He has a book out titled, "Pat Haden: My Rookie Season with the Los Angeles Rams." The book is candid and opinionated.

"I'm generally pleastd with it," he said. "And I'm glad I did it. Some people have taken things out of context that, standing by themselves, look a little negative. But read in its entirety, that's not the way the book comes across.

"I gave the book to a lot of my teammates and, generally, the reception has been favorable. A number of the guys have walked up and told me they liked it. That made me feel good."

Unitas to get retirement pay after court settlement

TOWSON, Md. (UPI) — Los Angeles Rams owner Carroll Rosenbloom, one-time owner of the Colts, has agreed to pay former Baltimore quarterback John Unitas $250,000 in retirement benefits, it was announced Thursday.

In the Baltimore County Circuit Court agreement, the Los Angeles Rams Football Co. said it will make the $250,000 payment to Unitas over 10 years, but sued its New York accounting firm for breach of contract and accounting malpractice.

The Rams filed suit for $300,000 against Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co. — the firm that prepared the financial accounts of the Colts prior to June 17, 1972, when Rosenbloom swapped the Colts for the Rams with Robert Irsay, then the Rams owner.

AT THE TIME of the franchise trade, Rosenbloom and Irsay agreed to assume the liabilities and assets of their new clubs.

However, the Rams, under current owner Rosenbloom, claim the obligation to pay Unitas $250,000 in deferred compensation was assumed erroneously.

The court suit revealed details of the financial pictures of the two clubs.

Unitas signed contracts of $125,000 per year for his last two seasons with the Colts in 1971 and 1972.

He also had retirement agreements intended to earn him about $615,000 in his first 10 years. However, he lost about $187,000 of it in a court fight with Irsay.

The court records also indicated Irsay agreed to pay Rosenbloom $1.9 million when he traded the Rams for the Colts.

Financial audits of the Colts showed they had pre-tax profits of $890,000 in 1969, $1.3 million in 1970 and $1.35 million in 1971. The Rams had earnings of $2.19 million in 1970 and $2.67 million in 1971.

Bowler Roth defends his sport

MARK ROTH . . . an athlete

NEW YORK (UPI) — Champion pro bowler Mark Roth is offended by a recently published article that his sport isn't strenuous enough to make the list of activities said to lessen the chance of heart attacks.

Roth, a 26-year-old kegler from Staten Island, N.Y., who has been on the procircuit for seven years, says he bowls up to 42 preliminary games and 24 in match play during a tournament and engages in about 25 tourneys a year.

"Pro bowlers consider themselves athletes," Roth says. "Your legs have to be strong. If they bother you, you can't bowl. I put in a lot of time on an exercise bike and job. But it's the number of games I bowl each week that keeps me in shape.

"A DEDICATED bowler, even if he's an amateur, can reach the stress level needed for good health by steady practice and competition. Bowling is strenuous and people have died of heart attacks at the lanes. Maybe they didn't bowl enough.

"I don't care for other sports. If I hurt myself playing another sport, it's 'out to lunch' for me. My career is finished."

He has earned $98,583 this year going into the invitation $100,000 Grand Prix of Bowling this week in Allen Park, Mich., where the top 20 men and women bowlers compete for a $10,000 first prize in each division.

Roth's 1,730 was high for men in the final 1977 Grand Pirx qualifying standings. Patty Costello topped the women with 693 points.

AVERAGING IN the "good" 200's, Roth's consistency can be found in victories this year at the Showboat Invitational, PBA Doubles Classic, the Fresno Open and the Southern California Open. He fashioned second place finishes in the Monro-Matic Open, Tucson Open, New England Open and World Open.

His winning of three straight tournaments this year matched a plateau that only Dick Weber and Johnny Petraglia had reached previously. Roth lost to George Pappas by only two pins in his next outing to ruin his bid to stand alone in the record book.

In San Antonio last May, Roth spun the fourth 300 career game last May, a feat tantamount to a grand slam home run in baseball.

He won't have much rest between seasons. The 1978 winter program starts in Los Angeles three weeks after the Grand Prix.

ROTH SAYS HIS strong points are his spin and semispin and overpowering pitch down the alley and "I'm a pretty good spare-shooter. Always around or close to the pocket."

As an example of his uncanny accuracy, Roth slid and fell while making his throw during a match last month and never saw the ball unerringly find its mark for a strike.

But putting the spin on the ball when he lets loose with an unorthodox delivery has ripped up his thumb and forced him to skip several tournaments. Happily, Roth hasn't had trouble with the thumb in almost a year.

"My hand is in good shape because I changed my pitch. My ball driller, Bob Simmonelli, helped me.We had to do something, or there was trouble. It took us a couple of months to overcome the difficulties in developing a new throw."

ROTH DOESN'T figure to remain in competition too many more years.

"I'd like to bowl a few more years and then open my own bowling center. But that's going to take a lot of money. With land, material and machinery, it'll cost like about a half-million dollars."

The conversion to owner would complete a cycle for Roth, who left his job at a Brooklyn, N.Y., bowling center in 1970 to seek his fortune on the tour.

Rex Lewis tournament Saturday

by KEITH REINHARD

Richards High School, the defending state wrestling champion after tying for the title in 1975 and placing second in 1976, generally are not billed as an also-ran in any tournament they enter.

But they earned no better than a second seed at Buffalo Grove's mat gathering Saturday, the second annual Rex Lewis Invitational.

The Bulldogs, who are paired off against the host Bison in opening round action, yielded top billing to an East Leyden outfit that possibly could be the best in the long career of coach Chuck Farina.

EIGHT TEAMS will jump into action on four mats at 1 p.m. at the Rex Lewis meet. Another eight-team tourney Saturday at Round Lake will see Prospect trying to improve on its third place showing of last season beginning 9:30 a.m.

Buffalo Grove's gathering is unusual inasmuch as the teams are seeded by computer and compete on a team basis, advancing as a group rather than on an individual basis.

The defending champion Eagles will bring a host of returning state qualifiers into the fray including Farina's son, Jim, who battled his way to third place at 132 pounds last year wearing York colors.

Dave Krist, who finished second in state at that same weight, also is back, as are vets Randy Conrad, Mike Garrett and Kurt Bankson. Garrett and Bankson also recently competed with Leyden's state championship football team.

RICHARDS, LED BY defending state 112-pound champ Jerry Kelly, earned the No. 2 seed over St. Patrick, which fashioned an 18-0 dual meet log last season. LaGrange was seeded fourth, New Trier West fifth and the Bison sixth.

Opening matches in addition to the Buffalo Grove-Richards faceoff include Leyden against the Cowboys, the Shamrocks against Carmel and the Lions against Glenbrook South.

Semifinals and consolation action begins at 3 p.m. with finals set for 6 p.m. followed by the championship match on one mat at 7:30.

The Knights will be aiming for the crown earned by Naperville North at last year's Round Lake tourney. Prospect will be led by returning meet 105-pound champ Jeff Munn, competing at 119 this season.

NBA started in 1946-47

The National Basketball Association did not begin play until the 1946-47 season. Member teams then included Washington, Philadelphia, New York, Providence, Toronto, Boston, Chicago, St. Louis, Cleveland, Detroit, and Pittsburgh.

FLASHY 1978 Pontiac Grand Prix SJ is equipped with a 301-cubic inch, four-barrel engine delivering a 0-50 acceleration in 7.6 seconds. The base sticker price is $6,087.

Smaller Grand Prix handles well

by DOYLE K. GETTER

Pontiac has done a good job of downsizing its sporty Grand Prix SJ for 1978.

Built on the same A-body frame as its other intermediate size cars, the Grand Prix potentially had more to lose by the shrinking process because of its previous racy lines.

The 1978 Grand Prix SJ — the high performance model of the line — is 16.9 inches shorter and 750 pounds lighter than its 1977 counterpart. Better use of interior space, however, has given the 1978 car increased front and rear legroom and headroom and a larger capacity trunk.

WHAT IS MORE, the test car, equipped with the optional $108 Rally RTS handling package, was as good if not a better handling and driving car than the 1977 model.

The standard engine in the SJ models this year is a four-barrel 301 cubic inch V-8. A two-barrel 301 was standard a year ago.

With anti-roll bars in front and rear and special steering gear, part of the Rally package, the SJ gives you a very sporty ride on twisting roads and will smooth out a fast rough ride with noexcessive wheel hop or lack of control.

The four-barrel 301 is a fast accelerating engine, driving the Grand Prix from zero to 50 miles an hour in 7.6 seconds and from 30 to 50 miles an hour in 4.2 seconds.

The test car, unfortunately, had only 400 miles of break-in driving before it was delivered to me and, of course, had not had even a 500 mile-tuneup. This was reflected in my gas mileage results.

I AVERAGED 12.8 miles per gallon in city driving and 20.9 miles per gallon on a 105-mile highway drive at 55 miles an hour. EPA estimates for a fully broken-in 301 are 17 and 24 miles per gallon.

General Motors' new tri-band Delco radio was an interesting $571 option in the test car.

Combining AM-FM stereo and CB in a single built-in package, along with a tri-band automatic retracting antenna, it would give vandals no reason to suspect a CB unit was in the car.

Power steering and brakes and automatic transmission, mounted on a console between the front bucket seats, are included in the base price of $6,087.

Other major optional features on the test car included custom air conditioning, cruise control, tachometer, power seats, power locks, power windows, a tilting steering wheel and electric rear window defroster.

Those and a number of other extras boosted the sticker price to $8,893.

Padding needed to stop noise from dash board

Doyle K. Getter

Your auto and you

There was a noise in my 1972 Ford LTD that seemed to come from the front panel or dash board on both sides. I removed the instrument panel and noticed some areas that seemed to have pressed against the windshield. Placing small pieces of carpet padding in these areas eliminated the noise on the right side when the dash board was replaced but the noise continues on the left side. I can stop it by pressing or pulling on the left side of the dash board while driving. Any suggestions?

LESTER J. BODLEY,
West Springfield, Mass.

You are on the right track. Put more insulating padding on the left side until you eliminate the noise there. It is a time-consuming hit and miss method but eventually you will succeed.

For the past four months I have had to add about a quart of water to my battery. Is this normal? The amp gauge always shows that the battery is charging and is never in the center.

JERRY WRIGHT,
Peoria, Ill.

Your battery may be starting to break down — you did not tell me how old it is, or something could be wrong with the voltage regulator.

I have a 1976 Regal Buick. The heater is constantly blowing out hot air, even when all of the dials are on off. I took it back to the place where I bought it and they said all new Regals will do that. This is something I cannot believe.

VIOLA MONACO,
Buffalo, N.Y.

Whoever told you that is full of prunes. Your dealer's service manager should adjust the temperature door on the heater to make certain that it is not allowing any passage of air through the heater core which, in turn, warms the air coming into the car.

I am considering purchasing a new heavy duty half-ton pickup truck and would like to know if there are any differences between a GMC and Chevrolet half-ton pickup, mechanically or otherwise. Some salesmen say none, others say there are some differences. What is your opinion?

MR. J.B.,
Escanaba, Mich.

Chevrolet tells me there is no difference in the half-ton pickups except in trim and appearance. I was told the engines, transmission and all heavy-duty parts are identical.

I was having to add an inch of water a week recently to the radiator in my '74 Pinto with the 2000 cc engine. A mechanic replaced the water pump and a hose. That cleared up that problem but now, on chilly mornings, it takes the heater about three times as long to get warm. Why should that be?

MRS. D. HOFFMAN,
Orlando, Fla.

Your thermostat seems to be stuck in the open position. The mechanic, in replacing it after working on your car, may not have seated it properly.

'Mummy' unwraps musicals

by SCOTT FOSDICK

MUMMY WRAPPINGS. Michael Mitchell searches the tomb, above, while author/composer Philip LaZebnik plays background music.

It's incredible. Wondrously, bizarrely, incredibly incredible.

We've seen it happen before. So much in the past decade, in fact, that it almost has lost its ability to surprise. But this time it's just too strange, too delightful to let pass with a mere lifting of a critical eyebrow.

On the Chicago stage, stars are not born. Constellations are.

RECENT YEARS have seen the rising of such groups as the Organic, Body Politic, Victory Gardens, St. Nicholas and more. Growing up in the fallow of the '60s, these companies are serious at root — even when doing comedy — and reveal a kind of "movement" mentality, (much to their credit).

They all began as youthful pipedreams but have matured to the point where they are now practically institutions.

But catch this, see what the children of the '70s hath wrought: Musical comedy, bloomin' musical comedy!

Musical comedy. You know, the kind of thing where the actors and actresses run around spouting the usual comic dialog and then all of a sudden burst into song. And dance.

Cnicago is fast becoming known as the land of theatrical opportunity; but who in their wildest dreams would ever guess that the latest thing on the North Side would be a group of Midwestern men and women trying to make it in such an antiquated genre as musical comedy?

The Chicago Premiere Society is all these things: young, musical and comic. The comic dialog spouted by its actors and actresses is hardly usual, however. Far from it; it is, in its own way, truly revolutionary.

WHAT LITTLE musical comedy the North Side has seen in the past has been "camp," a sort of inverted nostalgia. Victory Gardens' season opener this year was a marvelously sappy remake of the Ring Lardner/George S. Kaufman musical, "June Moon." An exaggerated spoof on a hopelessly outdated script, this was pure camp.

What makes the newborn Chicago Premiere Society revolutionary is its candid, straightforward approach to musical comedy. It meets it head-on and tries to make it work with modern audiences.

It's very rewarding to see a company in the stage the Chicago Premiere Society is in now. The members of the troupe are truly grateful for every word of encouragement and relish each burst of applause, clap by clap.

There's a name for this stage of theatrical development. Poverty.

The Chicago Premiere Society is pitifully poor. The piano sounds like it has got rocks in it, when the actors move into the upstage area they have to bend their heads to keep from knocking them on the low ceiling and the whole business is lit by coffee can lights.

All this can be chalked up to youth. Philip LaZebnik, 23, founded the company barely two months ago in a drafty storefront at 3450 N. Halsted St.

THE MOST incredible thing about the Chicago Premiere Society is told in its name. Not only does the group stick solely to musicals, it only does premieres of shows written by its members.

This first ambitious season features six musicals, written by Kingsley Day and Philip LaZebnik, together and singly. The shows' whimsical names give a good idea of the flavor of the group: "The Joy of Socks," "The Teeth of Mons Herbert," "The Dybbuk's Revenge."

These shows may be gems from the mouths of babes, but they are from the mouths of very educated babes indeed. Philip LaZebnik, who plays piano during the productions, is a professional violinist who has played occasionally with the Boston Symphony. He has a degree in the classics from Harvard, where he founded the Harvard Premiere Society (which is still going strong, he reports).

Last year Philip traveled to Egypt to get a first hand look at the tombs and relics. He came back with a new musical, "Mummy Wrappings," which is now playing each weekend through Jan. 1.

"Mummy Wrappings" undoubtedly is the most delightful ancient history lesson you'll ever receive. Philip's brother, Kenneth, plays a zany Marx Brothers-type character who travels through time to ancient Egypt to try to unravel the curse of the mummy. Jack believes the mummy has killed his father, but the insurance company says it was suicide.

THE SHOW IS filled with comic one-liners: "Who will remember me when I am forgotten?" "We don't grieve about death in this family, we only grieve about life."

And classical exchanges:

Isis asks Pharoah, "Seth, are we in a rut?"

Pharoah replies, "A rut? No, we're all on the back of a giant turtle."

The tunes are delightful and the lyrics are sophisticated, replete with references to Goethe, Homer and Oedipus Rex.

Talented as the five-member cast is, the material deserves a more professional staging. The direction is spotty, the acting is inspired but amateurish, and the singing — with the notable exception of Susan Goodman-Determan — is weak.

Regardless, one's expectation level is so low in such cheap surroundings that the show is a nonstop gas from start to finish.

WHEN PHILIP LaZebnik returned from Egypt last year, he got together with his childhood chums from Columbia, Mo., and they decided to form a professional version of the Harvard Premiere Society. None of them had any particular ties to the Windy City, and the group could just as easily have become the Minneapolis or Detroit or St. Louis Premiere Society.

But when Philip went hunting for a home this summer, the climate here seemed ripe for musical comedy.

"Just now Chicago is really about to take off," he says. "We feel we're jumping on the bandwagon at just the right moment.

"Chicago just seemed like the right place."

Lucky us.

Let us have music (or art) for Christmas

Music: It's the year of Elvis and Bing

by BILL GOWEN

From Elvis and Bing to Bach, this is a music-lover's Christmas.

Gift-giving time is here and no Christmas should be without man's universal gift — music.

This is the season record companies dig into their archives and come up with oldies as well as newly issued recordings just for the season. Even the classical music crowd annually jumps on the bandwagon with Handel's "Messiah," the traditional leader in sales during December.

ELVIS FANS made a run on record stores shortly after their idol's death in August. RCA couldn't fill the demand fast enough.

But fear not. Stores have been well stocked with more than 20 Presley albums just in time for the Christmas rush as RCA's plants have been working overtime to grind them out.

The Elvis "Wonderful World of Christmas" album is one of "The King's" all-time bestsellers and it has a place of prominence in the stores. Elvis sings a couple of traditional carols, "O Come, All Ye Faithful," and "The First Noel" and adds several contemporary selections: "Silver Bells," "Winter Wonderland," "On a Snowy Christmas Night," "I'll Be Home Christmas Day," "Holly Leaves and Christmas Trees," and "Merry Christmas Baby" to name a few.

THE ALBUM, RCA ANL 1-1936, is a reissue and is available for a discount price of around $3.

MCA is checking their stock of "Merry Christmas Bing Crosby," the crooner's original and best-selling album of such yuletide favorites as "White Christmas," "Silver Bells" and "Silent Night." It's available on MCA 15024 for about $3.50.

Other Crosby Christmas albums include "That Christmas Feeling," MCA 15019, and "Two Favorite Stories," MCA 15017, an album designed for children's listening. Both sell for approximately $3.50.

Frank Sinatra's Christmas album made for Capitol nearly two decades ago is still on the market for about $3. Called, naturally, "The Sinatra Christmas Album," it includes such favorites as "Jingle Bells," "The Christmas Song," and a bunch of traditional carols: "Silent Night," "The First Noel," "Adeste Fideles," "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," and "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear," among others. The catalog number is Capitol SM-894.

Barbara Streisand had a similar collection on Columbia (CS-9557), also for around $3 and you'll also find Christmas albums by Robert Goulet, John Denver, Mahalia Jackson and the Mitch Miller sing-along gang, to name several.

What is a Christmas without the all-time favorite, "Twas the Night Before Christmas"?

The famous poem was adapted to music by Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians and happily this version is still available on Waring's old Capitol release, "The Meaning of Christmas."

IN ADDITION TO "Twas the Night Before Christmas," Waring and his chorus sing the "Carol of the Bells," "A Musical Christmas Card" and five others.

Also a $3 special, this is the one Christmas album to buy if you're buying just one.

Arthur Fiedler, the age 80-plus magician who conducts the Boston Pops, also likes to be heard from during the holidays. In addition to his traditional televised Christmas concert he has an album.

The Fiedler collection includes "White Christmas," "Silent Night," "Sleigh Ride," "The Little Drummer Boy," "March of the Toys," "What Child is This?" "Santa Claus

Art: A personal gift for someone special

by SCOTT FOSDICK

There's only one way to come up with a thoughtful Christmas gift. Think.

Think about what Maggie likes, study her horoscope, talk to her relatives. Probe John's consciousness, search his life for a void that just the right present could fill. Consult an oracle.

If you're fed up with going through anguished searches only to end up with less than ingenious gifts, you might consider this creative solution to the holiday blues: buying art for Christmas.

EVERYONE HAS walls. And everyone could use an attractive painting or lithograph to put on them. The same goes for coffee tables and sculpture. What's more, a work of art is a constant reminder of the person who gave it. To run the risk of sounding like an advertisement for the Starving Artists Foundation, giving art can be a truly personal statement to those you care for.

And they won't necessarily have to visit you in the poor house to thank you for it, either.

Original watercolors and miniatures by relatively unknown artists can be had for less than $10. So can reproductions of works by better-known artists. Many critics believe that reproductions, with their poor color accuracy and lack of texture, are criminal bastardizations of the original work. But if you're willing to settle for something other than what the artist had in mind, reproductions are highly affordable.

Art reproductions are the bread and butter of the museum store. Museum stores across the nation have grown tremendously during the past decade, however, and now sell scores of other art-related products, from books to Persian kites.

CHICAGO'S ART Institute has three stores, each of which does a booming Christmastime business. In the basement is the Sales and Rental Gallery, where they sell and rent works by local and Midwestern artists. More than 800 pieces are displayed, ranging in price from $35 to $2,000.

Marta Pappert, director of Art Rental and Sales, says she doesn't notice much of an increase in sales at Christmas, "but we do notice a marked rise in rentals. A lot of people want their houses to look nice for the holidays."

Just down the hall from the rental and sales gallery is the children's store, featuring coloring books, paper soldiers, art for children books, post cards, and kits for making your own stuffed animals.

The main store is upstairs, just off the entrance of this rambling museum. In addition to reproductions, post cards, coffee table books, jewelry and $150 limited edition paperweights, this store has a Christmas section complete with specially made Christmas cards.

Store director Ralph Weil says he does twice the business in November and December that he does in other months.

THE MUSEUM of Contemporary Art on Ontario Street also does good business during the holidays. In addition to a selection of posters announcing its past shows, the MCA has a number of unique items: a "K-Motion" book by Chicago artist Thomas Kovachevich, with all the materials you need to make your own paper dancing forms; and a $100 wool rug/wall hanging fashioned after a drawing by Paul Klee.

The serious art buyer goes to look at the Museum of Contemporary Art, but he goes across the street to buy. More than a dozen galleries are clustered between the museum and Michigan Avenue's "Magnificent Mile." These Ontario Street shops tend to be small

'Mummy' unwraps musicals

by SCOTT FOSDICK

It's incredible. Wondrously, bizarrely, incredibly incredible.

We've seen it happen before. So much in the past decade, in fact, that it almost has lost its ability to surprise. But this time it's just too strange, too delightful to let pass with a mere lifting of a critical eyebrow.

On the Chicago stage, stars are not born. Constellations are.

RECENT YEARS have seen the rising of such groups as the Organic, Body Politic, Victory Gardens, St. Nicholas and more. Growing up in the fallow of the '60s, these companies are serious at root — even when doing comedy — and reveal a kind of "movement" mentality, (much to their credit).

They all began as youthful pipedreams but have matured to the point where they are now practically institutions.

But catch this, see what the children of the '70s hath wrought: Musical comedy, bloomin' musical comedy!

Musical comedy. You know, the kind of thing where the actors and actresses run around spouting the usual comic dialog and then all of a sudden burst into song. And dance.

Chicago is fast becoming known as the land of theatrical opportunity; but who in their wildest dreams would ever guess that the latest thing on the North Side would be a group of Midwestern men and women trying to make it in such an antiquated genre as musical comedy?

The Chicago Premiere Society is all these things: young, musical and comic. The comic dialog spouted by its actors and actresses is hardly usual, however. Far from it; it is, in its own way, truly revolutionary.

WHAT LITTLE musical comedy the North Side has seen in the past has been "camp," a sort of inverted nostalgia. Victory Gardens' season opener this year was a marvelously sappy remake of the Ring Lardner/George S. Kaufman musical, "June Moon." An exaggerated spoof on a hopelessly outdated script, this was pure camp.

What makes the newborn Chicago Premiere Society revolutionary is its candid, straightforward approach to musical comedy. It meets it head-on and tries to make it work with modern audiences.

It's very rewarding to see a company in the stage the Chicago Premiere Society is in now. The members of the troupe are truly grateful for every word of encouragement and relish each burst of applause, clap by clap.

There's a name for this stage of theatrical development. Poverty.

The Chicago Premiere Society is pitifully poor. The piano sounds like it has got rocks in it, when the actors move into the upstage area they have to bend their heads to keep from knocking them on the low ceiling and the whole business is lit by coffee can lights.

All this can be chalked up to youth. Philip LaZebnik, 23, founded the company barely two months ago in a drafty storefront at 3450 N. Halsted St.

THE MOST incredible thing about the Chicago Premiere Society is told in its name. Not only does the group stick solely to musicals, it only does premieres of shows written by its members.

This first ambitious season features six musicals, written by Kingsley Day and Philip LaZebnik, together and singly. The shows' whimsical names give a good idea of the flavor of the group: "The Joy of Socks," "The Teeth of Mons Herbert," "The Dybbuk's Revenge."

These shows may be gems from the mouths of babes, but they are from the mouths of very educated babes indeed. Philip LaZebnik, who plays piano during the productions, is a professional violinist who has played occasionally with the Boston Symphony. He has a degree in the classics from Harvard, where he founded the Harvard Premiere Society (which is still going strong, he reports).

Last year Philip traveled to Egypt to get a first hand look at the tombs and relics. He came back with a new musical, "Mummy Wrappings," which is now playing each weekend through Jan. 1.

"Mummy Wrappings" undoubtedly is the most delightful ancient history lesson you'll ever receive. Philip's brother, Kenneth, plays a zany Marx Brothers-type character who travels through time to ancient Egypt to try to unravel the curse of the mummy. Jack believes the mummy has killed his father, but the insurance company says it was suicide.

THE SHOW IS filled with comic one-liners: "Who will remember me when I am forgotten?" "We don't grieve about death in this family, we only grieve about life."

And classical exchanges:

Isis asks Pharoah, "Seth, are we in a rut?"

Pharoah replies, "A rut? No, we're all on the back of a giant turtle."

The tunes are delightful and the lyrics are sophisticated, replete with references to Goethe, Homer and Oedipus Rex.

Talented as the five-member cast is, the material deserves a more professional staging. The direction is spotty, the acting is inspired but amateurish, and the singing — with the notable exception of Susan Goodman-Determan — is weak.

Regardless, one's expectation level is so low in such cheap surroundings that the show is a nonstop gas from start to finish.

WHEN PHILIP LaZebnik returned from Egypt last year, he got together with his childhood chums from Columbia, Mo., and they decided to form a professional version of the Harvard Premiere Society. None of them had any particular ties to the Windy City, and the group could just as easily have become the Minneapolis or Detroit or St. Louis Premiere Society.

But when Philip went hunting for a home this summer, the climate here seemed ripe for musical comedy.

"Just now Chicago is really about to take off," he says. "We feel we're jumping on the bandwagon at just the right moment.

"Chicago just seemed like the right place."

Lucky us.

Let us have music (or art) for Christmas

Music: It's the year of Elvis and Bing

by BILL GOWEN

From Elvis and Bing to Bach, this is a music-lover's Christmas.

Gift-giving time is here and no Christmas should be without man's universal gift — music.

This is the season record companies dig into their archives and come up with oldies as well as newly issued recordings just for the season. Even the classical music crowd annually jumps on the bandwagon with Handel's "Messiah," the traditional leader in sales during December.

ELVIS FANS made a run on record stores shortly after their idol's death in August. RCA couldn't fill the demand fast enough.

But fear not. Stores have been well stocked with more than 20 Presley albums just in time for the Christmas rush as RCA's plants have been working overtime to grind them out.

The Elvis "Wonderful World of Christmas" album is one of "The King's" all-time bestsellers and it has a place of prominence in the stores. Elvis sings a couple of traditional carols, "O Come, All Ye Faithful," and "The First Noel" and adds several contemporary selections: "Silver Bells," "Winter Wonderland," "On a Snowy Christmas Night," "I'll Be Home Christmas Day," "Holly Leaves and Christmas Trees," and "Merry Christmas Baby" to name a few.

THE ALBUM, RCA ANL 1-1936, is a reissue and is available for a discount price of around $3.

MCA is checking their stock of "Merry Christmas Bing Crosby," the crooner's original and best-selling album of such yuletide favorites as "White Christmas," "Silver Bells" and "Silent Night." It's available on MCA 15024 for about $3.50.

Other Crosby Christmas albums include "That Christmas Feeling," MCA 15019, and "Two Favorite Stories," MCA 15017, an album designed for children's listening. Both sell for approximately $3.50.

Frank Sinatra's Christmas album made for Capitol nearly two decades ago is still on the market for about $3. Called, naturally, "The Sinatra Christmas Album," it includes such favorites as "Jingle Bells," "The Christmas Song," and a bunch of traditional carols: "Silent Night," "The First Noel," "Adeste Fideles," "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," and "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear," among others. The catalog number is Capitol SM-894.

Barbara Streisand had a similar collection on Columbia (CS-9557), also for around $3 and you'll also find Christmas albums by Robert Goulet, John Denver, Mahalia Jackson and the Mitch Miller sing-along gang, to name several.

What is a Christmas without the all-time favorite, "Twas the Night Before Christmas"?

The famous poem was adapted to music by Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians and happily this version is still available on Waring's old Capitol release, "The Meaning of Christmas."

IN ADDITION TO "Twas the Night Before Christmas," Waring and his chorus sing the "Carol of the Bells," "A Musical Christmas Card" and five others.

Also a $3 special, this is the one Christmas album to buy if you're buying just one.

Arthur Fiedler, the age 80-plus magician who conducts the Boston Pops, also likes to be heard from during the holidays. In addition to his traditional televised Christmas concert he has an album.

The Fiedler collection includes "White Christmas," "Silent Night," "Sleigh Ride," "The Little Drummer Boy," "March of the Toys," "What Child is This?" "Santa Claus

Art: A personal gift for someone special

by SCOTT FOSDICK

There's only one way to come up with a thoughtful Christmas gift. Think.

Think about what Maggie likes, study her horoscope, talk to her relatives. Probe John's consciousness, search his life for a void that just the right present could fill. Consult an oracle.

If you're fed up with going through anguished searches only to end up with less than ingenious gifts, you might consider this creative solution to the holiday blues: buying art for Christmas.

EVERYONE HAS walls. And everyone could use an attractive painting or lithograph to put on them. The same goes for coffee tables and sculpture. What's more, a work of art is a constant reminder of the person who gave it. To run the risk of sounding like an advertisement for the Starving Artists Foundation, giving art can be a truly personal statement to those you care for.

And they won't necessarily have to visit you in the poor house to thank you for it, either.

Original watercolors and miniatures by relatively unknown artists can be had for less than $10. So can reproductions of works by better-known artists. Many critics believe that reproductions, with their poor color accuracy and lack of texture, are criminal bastardizations of the original work. But if you're willing to settle for something other than what the artist had in mind, reproductions are highly affordable.

Art reproductions are the bread and butter of the museum store. Museum stores across the nation have grown tremendously during the past decade, however, and now sell scores of other art-related products, from books to Persian kites.

CHICAGO'S ART Institute has three stores, each of which does a booming Christmastime business. In the basement is the Sales and Rental Gallery, where they sell and rent works by local and Midwestern artists. More than 800 pieces are displayed, ranging in price from $35 to $2,000.

Marta Pappert, director of Art Rental and Sales, says she doesn't notice much of an increase in sales at Christmas, "but we do notice a marked rise in rentals. A lot of people want their houses to look nice for the holidays."

Just down the hall from the rental and sales gallery is the children's store, featuring coloring books, paper soldiers, art for children books, post cards, and kits for making your own stuffed animals.

UFO film sparks close encounters of the Ad-Men

Movie guide on Page 6

They're coming.

Into our homes and into our minds they'll creep, pumping us full of thought implants and making us their slaves.

Who are they, and what do they want?

They are the ad-men, and their aim is to goad us into seeing a $20 million UFO spectacle, "Close Encounters of the Third Kind."

To this end Columbia Pictures is spending an additional $7.5 million for a multimedia advertising blitz so thorough it probably will reach the extra-terrestrial aliens as well as American citizens.

IF YOU BELONG to the latter category, you'll find it next to impossible to escape the ad-men's hooks over the next several weeks. This PG-rated film opens all over the Chicago area next week, and will soon be accompanied by a record, toys, dolls and magazine, newspaper, radio and especially television ads.

Columbia will use a new television technique to promote the film: "roadblocking." Designed to reach nearly all of the persons watching television at any one time, this technique involves airing 90-second commercials simultaneously on all three major networks.

The ads themselves, like all promotions for the film, are carefully designed to whet the appetite without giving you anything to bite into. Columbia is being very stingy about releasing pictures of the massive special effects — from spaceships to aliens — and instead is focusing on shots of anxious crowds searching the skies for UFOs, along with ad copy that reads, "What you will see has never been seen before. It will lead you to one conclusion. We are not alone."

Columbia is jumping on a bandwagon built by 20th Century Fox with the film "Star Wars." There's no doubt now: science fiction, once the province of B-film hacks, is big business. "Star Wars" recently overtook "Jaws" as the greatest box-office success of all time. Both "Close Encounters" and "Jaws," not-so-incidentally, were written and directed by 29-year-old Steven Spielberg.

BECAUSE OF THE topical subject matter of "Close Encounters," all the ad-men may be unnecessary. UFOs sell themselves. With their flashing lights and the promise of exotic beings within, they are just like those signs outside Las Vegas strip joints.

What ultimately will attract the most people to "Close Encounters," however, is the power of the idea. Unlike "Star Wars," this firm is no futuristic fantasy. It is drama based on an altogether contemporary human phenomenon.

As such, it has a built-in audience. An amazing 11 per cent of America's adults — including Jimmy Carter — say they have seen an unidentified flying object.

"Close Encounters of the Third Kind" gets its name from the system used to classify such encounters. First kind: sighting of a UFO. Second kind: physical evidence. Third kind: contact.

If you haven't seen a UFO, chances are you know somebody who has. To Columbia's great joy, the one most sweeping effect of these sightings is to tickle the appetite for more. It remains to be seen whether "Close Encounters" will do anything to satisfy that craving.

SNOOPY, Susan Machnica, is about to pounce on Linus, Leigh Heflin, and steal his blanket while Charlie, Scott Kenyon, and Lucy, Bonnie Willemssen, offer him food to top in "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown" on stage at Schaumburg Township Library theater. The Players of Schaumburg Repertory Co. presents the musical at 2 and 8 p.m. Saturday and Dec. 17, and at 2 p.m. Sunday and Dec. 18. Tickets are $3 adults, $2.50 students, $2 children under 10; all 50 cents more at the door. Reservations are recommended at 885-2360 after 4 p.m. escape to a long, long weekend this NEW YEAR'S EVE.

No need to spend any of the precious New Year's weekend time in traveling to faraway places when you can spend ALL of your weekend enjoying indoor tennis & swimming, skiing, fine dining, dancing, or "star-gazing" at our famous celebrity theatre. A splendid array of pleasurable activities is waiting for you right here at the Midwest's finest resort . . . practically in your own backyard.

Our special NEW YEAR'S CELEBRATION begins with dinner Friday, breakfast & dinner Saturday, and an evening at Marriott's Lincolnshire Theatre. You'll bring in the New Year at a fabulous STEAK & LOBSTER DINNER PARTY (CHAMPAGNE TOO) in the King's Wharf with everything from live entertainment to hats, horns & noisemakers. Follow it all with our lavish brunch on Sunday morning. A GREAT WEEKEND WAY TO START THE NEW YEAR RIGHT!

TIME IS GETTING SHORT. CALL 634-0100 NOW FOR NEW YEAR'S WEEKEND RESERVATIONS.
Several two or three night packages available . . . including meals, theatre and all activities.

An art gift for someone special and often turn over their entire premises to a one-artist show.

In marked difference to the holiday crush at the museum stores, most galleries are open and quiet throughout the year. There is a refreshing lack of bustling crowds, though gallery managers report a 20 per cent to 25 per cent rise in business during November and December, as compared with other months.

Merrill Chase was the first of these galleries to open a store in a suburban shopping mall, and their Woodfield gallery is one of the largest in the Northwest suburbs.

It's true that you don't have to trade an arm and a leg to afford original works of art. Merrill Chase has modest pieces for less than $20. Moreover, as with most commercial galleries, works can be exchanged within five years for another work (or works) of the same cost.

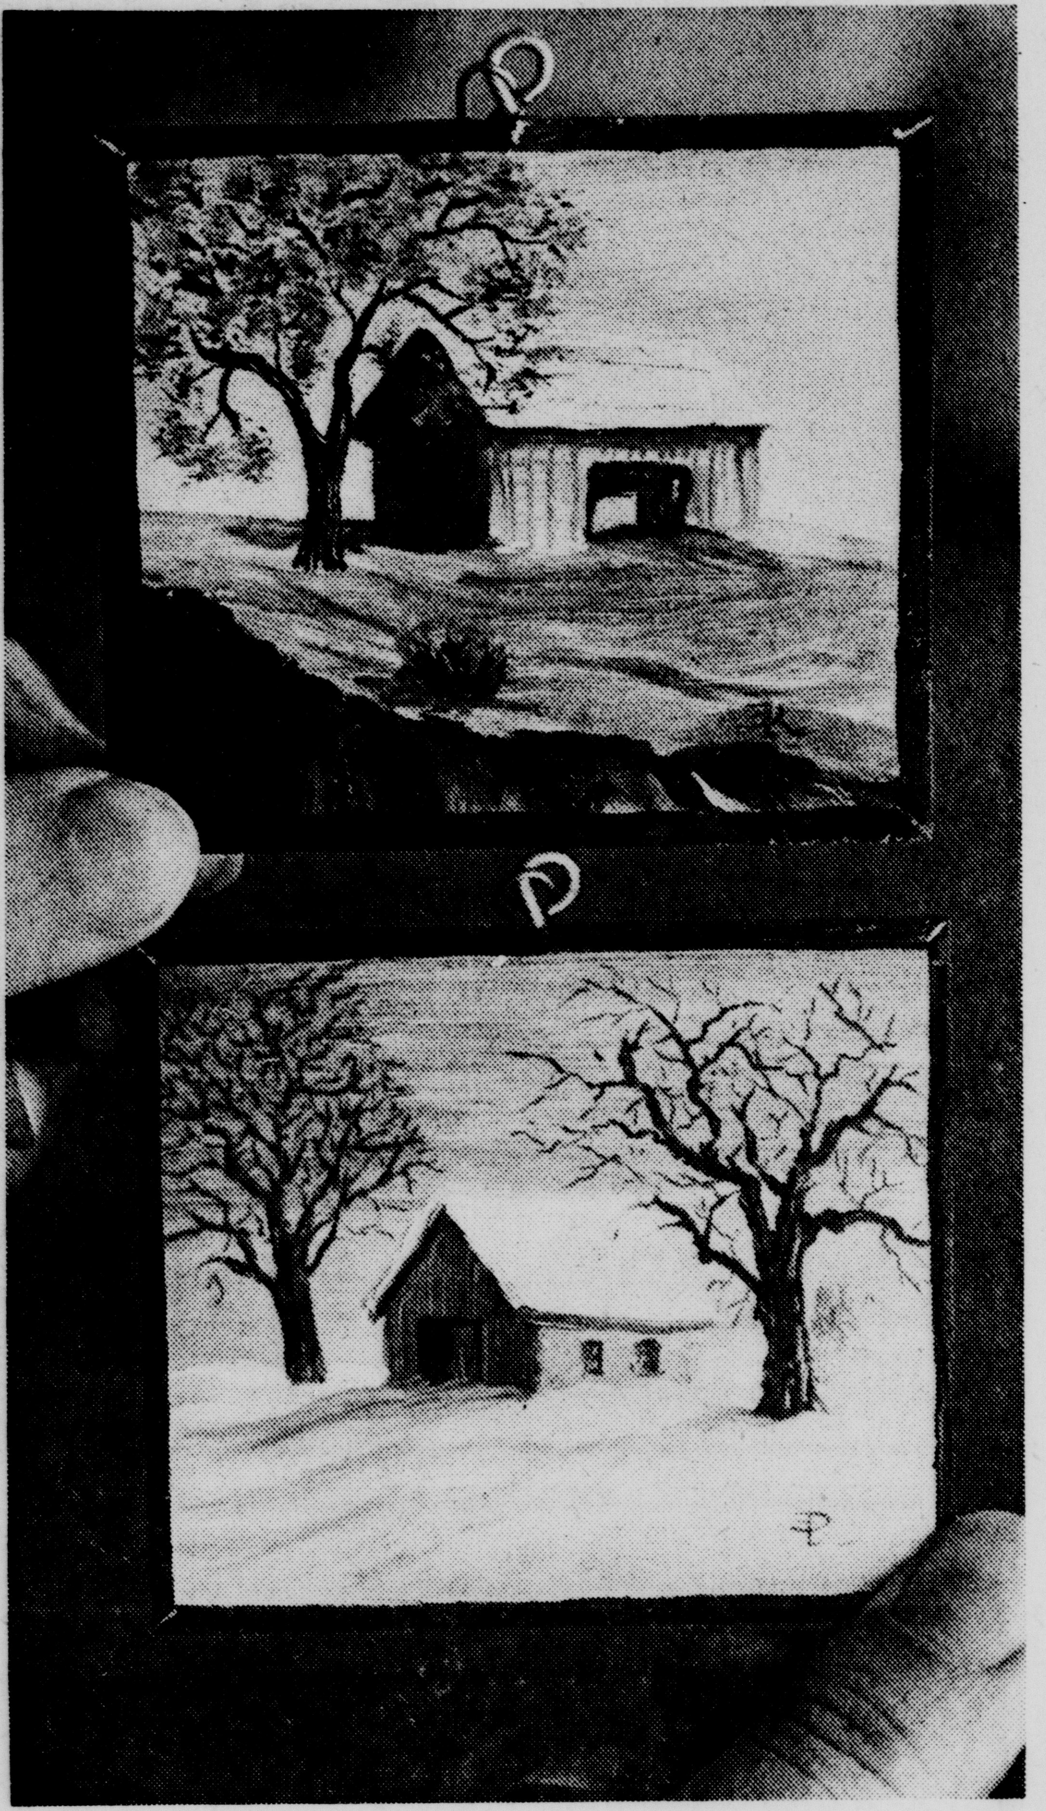
OF COURSE, if you'd rather buy art than that new home you've been dreaming of, Merrill Chase has on display several works with impressive price tags: a Dali for $32,500, a Rodin sculpture for $26,000 and a Renoir print for $29,500, to name a few.

Ther are several less expensive galleries in the Northwest suburbs. One of the most interesting, and certainly among the most reasonable, is the Countryside Gallery in Arlington Heights.

Countryside is more of a club than a gallery, but its little house at 407 N. Vail is bursting with marvelously inventive pieces by predominantly local artists.

Countryside's current show features a collection of miniatures. This gallery has a decidedly modern bent that shows up even in this traditional medium. Prices range from $4.50 for 3 by 3 inch paintings by Ellen Rose, Palatine, (which can be hung on the wall or on the tree), to $120.

Finding the right work of art at the right price isn't always easy, no matter where you look. But the reward can be both personal and fun. In any case, gallery browsing sure beats standing in line at a garment store.



COUNTRYSIDE GALLERY in Arlington Heights sells these and other miniatures by Ellen Rose, Palatine, for $4.50 each.

Songs, drama for children

An afternoon full of planned activities for children, including a 30-minute version of "How the Grinch Stole Christmas," is scheduled by Pentangle Productions for Saturday, Sunday and Dec. 17 and 18. The program will be presented at Limelight Theatre, 1165 Tower Rd., Schaumburg.

Children and adults are welcome at $1 each for the 3 p.m. show.

Limelight Theatre also offers a babysitting service for children ages 4 and over from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. each of the days. For this three-hour program the children will be supervised in songs, creative dramatics, pantonite and in viewing the "Grinch." Cost of this service is $5 per child.

"How the Grinch Stole Christmas" is available to groups for touring at a minimal fee. Information may be obtained at 884-0137.

is Comin' to Town," "Carol of the Bells," "Rudolph the Red - Nosed Reindeer," "Winter Wonderland," and a medley of traditional carols. The full-priced RCA album is numbered LSC-3324. Expect to pay around $6, the area discount range for $7.98 list-price albums.

BOTH COLUMBIA and RCA have two-disc Christmas "collection" albums featuring many of the artists under contract to each company. The Columbia album (CG-30763) has offerings by Barbra Streisand, Andy Williams, Johnny Mathis, Jim Nabors, Johnny Cash, Tony Bennett, Percy Faith, Frank Sinatra, Patti Page and tops it off with the Mormon Tabernacle Choir and the New York Philharmonic conducted by Leonard Bernstein.

The RCA set (VPS-6046) features Ed Ames, Perry Como, Jose Feliciano, Sergio Franchi, Al Hirt, Mario Lanza, Kate Smith, the Robert Shaw Chorale and, of course, the ever-present Fiedler and the Boston Pops.

The two-record sets can be bought for around $8 apiece.

The Mormon Tabernacle Choir has several Christmas albums on Columbia, one titled "White Christmas" (M-34546), another called "The Holly and the Ivy" (XMS-6192) and a collection of 14 traditional carols (XMS-6777). The latter two, as reissues, can be purchased for around $3. "White Christmas" goes for the full price of around $6, discounted.

CAPITOL RECORDS has an enterprising series of international Christmas albums with carols and songs from various countries, sung in the native language.

The series includes "Christmas in Ireland," "Christmas in Poland," "Christmas in France," "A Greek Christmas," and similar titles covering music from Mexico, Italy and Germany. Area discounts list each album for around $3.

How about the classical music listener?

For the prospective "Messiah" purchaser, the best performance at a low price is that by the English Chamber Orchestra and the Amor Artis Chorale conducted by Johannes Somary on Vanguard (C-10090), a three-record set. The list price is $11.94 and it can be bought for around $9 at discount.

THE HIGH-PRICED "Messiah" selection ($23.94 list for a three-disc set) is a tossup between that conducted by Colin Davis on Philips (SC71AX300) or that by Neville Marriner on Argo (5442). You can't go wrong with either.

Colin Davis has just added the Hector Berlioz "L'Enfance du Christ" to his nearly complete recorded cycle with the London Symphony of Berlioz orchestral-choral works. This album (Philips 6700 106) lists for $15.96 and is available at discount for $10-$12.

Want something really different? Try Ralph Vaughn Williams' Christmas cantata, "Hodie" (This Day), written in 1954.

The world-premiere Angel disc (S-36297 $7.98 list) is a delight as performed by conductor David Willcocks and English choral and solo vocal artists.

FOR OPERA LOVERS, tenor Luciano Pavarotti and soprano Leontyne Price have solo albums. The Price album, "A Christmas Offering," is accompanied by the Vienna Philharmonic conducted by Herbert Von Karajan (London OS-25280, $7.98 list). Thirteen traditional carols are offered.

Pavarotti sings traditional carols with the National Philharmonic under the direction of Kurt Adler, also on London Records (OS-26473, $7.98 list).

Yet another collection of carols is played by the Philadelphia Brass Ensemble "A Festival of Carols in Brass," on Columbia XMS-7033. Twenty-five carols are jammed onto a single disc for a bargain price of $3.

And finally, there is Bach.

The "Christmas Oratorio" is the German master's early masterpiece and several outstanding recordings are available. Recommended are those by Karl Richter and the Munich Bach Chorus and Orchestra (DG Archive ARC-2710004, three discs); by Nikolas Harnoncourt and the Concentus Musicus of Vienna (Telefunken 3635022, three discs) or the bargain-priced set by Kurt Thomas on Angel's Seraphim budget line, the three-disc set available for around $10, half the price of the other two albums. The catalog number is S-6040.

Suburbanites, city dwellers clash in 'Lunching'

by SCOTT FOSDICK

Review/theater

Alan Gross has written a first play which is not only the most enjoyable of this still-young season, but is also one of the best.

"Lunching," which premiered Wednesday at The Body Politic and will run through Feb. 5, is hilarious, sad, and interesting without pause.

It is a story of two young couples: one sleeps in the city and the other sleeps in the suburbs. Jill Shellabarger and Danny Goldring are perfect as the nouveau sophisticates of the North Side, P.J. and Joel Topa. Debbie and Mickey Roth, the prosperous but bored Northbrook couple, are equally on the mark as played by Betsy Katz and Glenn Kovacevich. Mike Nussbaum directs — perhaps a better word is "choreographs" — with ingenuity and grace.

Debbie and Mickey and P. J. and Joel have a grand time together visiting the restaurants and theaters of New Town. As a group they are best of friends. As couples, they spend much of their energy alternately knocking and envying each other's lives.

Riding home in their Mercedes after an evening at the theater with P.J. and Joel, Debbie remarks, "I just got so tired of the city life, city people, city this, city that. It was nauseating. The vitality of the city, the convenience, the pace. No one mentioned the dog-doo, the vandals, the rapists or Lincoln Towing."

Debbie resents being made to feel like some "truck farmer" whenever she goes into town.

"We're city people," she says.

"As opposed to country people?"

"As opposed, Mickey, to some stereotypical polyester-suited right-wing conservative imbecile they think inhabits the earth once you get past Howard Street."

"Oh, I don't think they think that," Mickey replies. "I think they think the imbeciles start at Irving Park Road."

What gives the play its drive is the couples' shared memory of a more vital, desperate past.

At root, "Lunching" is just another version of the myth of the '70s we see so much of these days: children of the '60s grow up, slide into marriage and careers, and suddenly awaken to find their lives empty and purposeless.

The virtue of "Lunching" is that it repeats this myth with greater force and clarity than any of its predecessors.

Still missing, however, is any sense of "Where do we go from here?" No solution is offered, and we are left with a statement which, if taken by itself, is highly negative.

But as Gross hints, the real drama takes place after the play, during the conversations on the ride home. It is here in the hurtling cauldrons of our automobiles that the future will be found — or lost. "Lunching" provides excellent grist for such dialogue; it's as much as we have a right to ask of a play.

Through the rumble of the Kennedy Expressway you can almost hear the old prince moan, "Ask not what the theater can do for you. Ask what you can do for the theater."

Filling feast at Love and Knishes

Joyce Lofstrom

Bill o' fare

Haven't eaten all day and your stomach is demanding consideration? Are you just in one of those "time to eat out" moods? Well, bundle up and treat yourself to a feast of Jewish traditions at Love and Knishes, 1750 Hintz Rd., Wheeling. There's no doubt you'll leave satisfied if not stuffed.

Open since September, the deli-restaurant offers patrons selections to meet any Jewish-style craving. Have some chicken soup — with matzo or kreplach, a knish with seasoned gravy or chopped liver. We tried them all and could have stopped with these appetizers. The servings are overwhelming and two easily can share the chopped liver, served with onion slices, and the knish, seasoned ground meat encased in a browned yeast dough. No complaints about the flavor; it was homemade goodness to be sure. But we would have enjoyed the soup and the knish even more if they had been warmer.

NOW FOR THE corned beef on rye or "The Ivy Hill," as coined by Love and Knishes. In the deli tradition, Love and Knishes has christened their sandwiches with celebrated titles, not of entertainment personalities, but of area subdivisions. All sandwiches, whether a deli combination or a sirloin burger, are served with a potato pancake and cole slaw. The potato pancake is a thick homemade delight and the corned beef is lots of meat with little fat.

We also tried the stuffed cabbage filled with ground beef and rice and topped with a sweet 'n' sour sauce. We found the meat somewhat gristly but the sauce savory. Each dinner comes with a choice of potato and bialy bread, a chewy yeast bread sprinkled with poppy seed and a salad bar of greens, prepared salads and even bite-sized pieces of herring. Entrees, which range from $3.75 to $5.00, include fried liver and onions, fried chicken and sweet and sour meatballs.

IF YOU ARE in the neighborhood but are hungry for a spicy enchilada or an Oriental vegetable medley, call ahead. Love and Knishes features homemade ethnic dinners throughout the week for those with international taste buds. On weekends, you'll find a deli-soup bar with meats, vegetables, soup, desserts and relishes. The cost is $5.95 for adults and $2.95 for children four to 10.

There's no sense in leaving any deli without a sample of dessert. At Love and Knishes, demand a piece of chocolate chip cheesecake. It's New York style and at this deli that means a melt-in-your mouth wedge of cream cheese and chocolate bits deliciously supported by a chocolate crumb crust. You'll find cherry, strawberry and blueberry cheesecake plus a variety of pastry and ice cream specialties. Suburban carrot cake freaks will find a thick slice of cake with a butter cream icing. Desserts range from 95 cents to $1.95.

YOU'LL FIND omelettes from $1.65 to $2.65; blintzes for $1.95; meal-in-one salads for $2.75 and even good old Midwestern breakfast selections from $1.05 to $1.80. Sunday brunch also is available.

Whether it's a quick sandwich from the deli or a sit-down meal in the restaurant, Love and Knishes specializes in homemade Jewish cuisine at sensible prices. And don't worry, there's no ducking the hanging sausages at this deli.

Graham Parker making waves

by ROB PATTERSON

DISCovering rock

Great Britain is drawing a good bit of attention in the music world again with the advent of punk (or new wave) rock, but some of the better sounds coming out of the Isles today are actually a good bit older in origin.

Much like the "British Invasion" of the early '60s, Britons again are showing off their peculiar knack for taking the American-born art of rock and roll and synthesizing its elements into new and exciting forms.

Graham Parker is a British artist whose Atlantic crossing has made big waves with both the critics and a vocal, growing cult. Parker is the spearhead of a movement which, while it hasn't reached invasion proportions, still is making serious inroads.

HE STARTED playing as a teenager in various combos and "skiffle" bands in the London suburb where he grew up. Parker pumped petrol by day and wrote songs by night.

While taking his tapes around to various record companies in London, Parker met Dave Robinson, who at that time owned Hope and Anchor Studios, located above the Hope and Anchor Pub, the focal point of Britain's once-burgeoning "pub rock" scene.

The pub rock bands (such as Dr. Feelgood, Brinsley Schwarz and Ducks Deluxe) were formed as a reaction to the dearth of live music in Britain in the early '70s. They brought music back to the people in a vaguely discernible style that was marked by a return to basics — gutsy, bluesy, high-energy rock and roll. Though the movement caught fire in Britain and sparked the interest of the press here, it never ignited in the States.

AFTER MEETING, Parker and Robinson got together three times a week. "We'd record every song I had," Parker recalls. "Gradually we got an idea of what we were going to do, which is get a good band, get it on the road and make records, which is what we've been doing ever since."

The band became The Rumour, composed of such pub rock notables as guitarist Brinsley Schwartz and Martin Belmont of Ducks Deluxe, whose own bands then were coping with the probelms of limited success.

"After I had finally decided that I had to propel myself into the music business," Graham says, "my main interest when I first started with the Rumour was turning people on to my songs." But now, he says, Graham Parker and the Rumour "are a band."

IT WAS CLEAR from Parker's first album — "Howling Wind" — that his tough, wiry voice and flair for writing classic blue-eyed-soul rockers heralded the debut of perhaps the most important new rock voice since Bruce Springsteen. When I heard Parker and The Rumour rock out New York's stuffy Bottom Line as an almost unknown opening act, I also saw a potentially powerful melding of a songwriter and his band.

He hit the States again this fall with his third album —"Stick to Me" — and a tour with Thin Lizzy. "It really happened with the band and crowds," Graham says. "Before I was nailed behind the microphone and couldn't really feel the power of the band. Now I get off and have a good time up there. And the band has come to the same kind of awareness that I have, that it's songs we should try to play. Ya know . . . give the music to the songs."

AND AS THEIR fans already know, if you want to feel the power of the songs and the band, there are none better than Graham Parker and The Rumour. Catch them on their return tour this spring, and hear the best Britain has to offer.

Since everyone seems to hate Don Kirshner's Rock Awards (really, what does television have to do with rock?), the rush is on to create viable alternatives. The best yet is King Biscuit's Rock Radio Awards, which was broadcast on more than 250 FM stations over the Thanksgiving Holidays.

THE NOMINEES were selected by radio programmers, and the winners were decided by public ballot. The no-frills, no-jokes show — co-hosted by sharp Grace Slick — gave each performer a chance to perform in-concert after accepting the awards. The emphasis was placed on rock and the radio, where it belongs, and not on peripheral pop personalities and stale chit-chat.

Another interesting idea is The Billboard No. 1 Music Awards to be broadcast over NBC Sunday, with the BeeGees and Kris Kristofferson hosting. Though I don't entirely trust the producer's instincts (Burt Sugarman, who fashioned the gaudy Midnight Special) the fact that the awards are based on the Billboard sales charts cuts out some of the hype. During the show a tribute to Goddard Lieberson, long-time president of CBS Records, also will celebrate 100 years of recorded sound. We shall see if this fine idea is wrecked by Hollywood.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

GRAHAM PARKER, front center, and the Rumour are giving British rock 'n' roll a good name again, making big waves with critics.

Kids' theater classes signup

Children ages 6 through high school may enroll in the Des Plaines Theatre Guild's Children's Theatre acting workshops to begin in January.

Registration will be conducted at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the Guild Playhouse, 620 Lee St., second floor. The fee is $10 a child; $5 for each additional child from the same family.

An orientation period following Saturday's registration will explain plans for the acting classes to be directed by Macky Cohen of Niles and Carol Potter, Hoffman Estates.

The 10-week session begins Jan. 14 and runs through March 18, culminating in a production on the Guild Playhouse stage.

Classes will be Saturday afternoons at the Playhouse.

Macky Cohen will work with the teen-agers in this season's Children's Theatre. She formerly directed the younger children and has written and produced their shows.

Carol Potter, a former fifth and sixth grade teacher, will direct the classes for children ages 6 though 11.

Anyone seeking more information may call the Playhouse at 296-1211 between noon and 8 p.m. daily.

Graham Parker making waves

by ROB PATTERSON

DISCovering rock

Great Britain is drawing a good bit of attention in the music world again with the advent of punk (or new wave) rock, but some of the better sounds coming out of the Isles today are actually a good bit older in origin.

Much like the "British Invasion" of the early '60s, Britons again are showing off their peculiar knack for taking the American-born art of rock and roll and synthesizing its elements into new and exciting forms.

Graham Parker is a British artist whose Atlantic crossing has made big waves with both the critics and a vocal, growing cult. Parker is the spearhead of a movement which, while it hasn't reached invasion proportions, still is making serious inroads.

HE STARTED playing as a teenager in various combos and "skiffle" bands in the London suburb where he grew up. Parker pumped petrol by day and wrote songs by night.

While taking his tapes around to various record companies in London, Parker met Dave Robinson, who at that time owned Hope and Anchor Studios, located above the Hope and Anchor Pub, the focal point of Britain's once-burgeoning "pub rock" scene.

The pub rock bands (such as Dr. Feelgood, Brinsley Schwarz and Ducks Deluxe) were formed as a reaction to the dearth of live music in Britain in the early '70s. They brought music back to the people in a vaguely discernible style that was marked by a return to basics — gutsy, bluesy, high-energy rock and roll. Though the movement caught fire in Britain and sparked the interest of the press here, it never ignited in the States.

AFTER MEETING, Parker and Robinson got together three times a week. "We'd record every song I had," Parker recalls. "Gradually we got an idea of what we were going to do, which is get a good band, get it on the road and make records, which is what we've been doing ever since."

The band became The Rumour, composed of such pub rock notables as guitarist Brinsley Schwartz and Martin Belmont of Ducks Deluxe, whose own bands then were coping with the probelms of limited success.

"After I had finally decided that I had to propel myself into the music business," Graham says, "my main interest when I first started with the Rumour was turning people on to my songs." But now, he says, Graham Parker and the Rumour "are a band."

IT WAS CLEAR from Parker's first album — "Howling Wind" — that his tough, wiry voice and flair for writing classic blue-eyed-soul rockers heralded the debut of perhaps the most important new rock voice since Bruce Springsteen. When I heard Parker and The Rumour rock out New York's stuffy Bottom Line as an almost unknown opening act, I also saw a potentially powerful melding of a songwriter and his band.

He hit the States again this fall with his third album —"Stick to Me" — and a tour with Thin Lizzy. "It really happened with the band and crowds," Graham says. "Before I was nailed behind the microphone and couldn't really feel the power of the band. Now I get off and have a good time up there. And the band has come to the same kind of awareness that I have, that it's songs we should try to play. Ya know . . . give the music to the songs."

AND AS THEIR fans already know, if you want to feel the power of the songs and the band, there are none better than Graham Parker and The Rumour. Catch them on their return tour this spring, and hear the best Britain has to offer.

Since everyone seems to hate Don Kirshner's Rock Awards (really, what does television have to do with rock?), the rush is on to create viable alternatives. The best yet is King Biscuit's Rock Radio Awards, which was broadcast on more than 250 FM stations over the Thanksgiving Holidays.

Another interesting idea is The Billboard No. 1 Music Awards to be broadcast over NBC Sunday, with the BeeGees and Kris Kristofferson hosting. Though I don't entirely trust the producer's instincts (Burt Sugarman, who fashioned the gaudy Midnight Special) the fact that the awards are based on the Billboard sales charts cuts out some of the hype. During the show a tribute to Goddard Lieberson, long-time president of CBS Records, also will celebrate 100 years of recorded sound. We shall see if this fine idea is wrecked by Hollywood.

Kids' theater classes signup

Children ages 6 through high school may enroll in the Des Plaines Theatre Guild's Children's Theatre acting workshops to begin in January.

Registration will be conducted at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the Guild Playhouse, 620 Lee St., second floor. The fee is $10 a child; $5 for each additional child from the same family.

An orientation period following Saturday's registration will explain plans for the acting classes to be directed by Macky Cohen of Niles and Carol Potter, Hoffman Estates.

The 10-week session begins Jan. 14 and runs through March 18, culminating in a production on the Guild Playhouse stage.

Classes will be Saturday afternoons at the Playhouse.

Macky Cohen will work with the teen-agers in this season's Children's Theatre. She formerly directed the younger children and has written and produced their shows.

Carol Potter, a former fifth and sixth grade teacher, will direct the classes for children ages 6 though 11.

Anyone seeking more information may call the Playhouse at 296-1211 between noon and 8 p.m. daily.

Designed to help readers decide which movies they want to see, this guide includes a listing of movies currently playing the area, plus capsule summaries and comments. Films reviewed are rated excellent, four stars; good, three stars; fair, two stars and poor, one star.

"Another Man, Another Chance" — Claude Lelouch's near remake of his successful "A Man and a Woman" this time set in the American West in the 1870s. Genevieve Bujold and James Caan star as widow and widower who find new lives together. Overlong, though it has a nice period flavor. (R)

"The Bad News Bears in Breaking Training" — A disappointing sequel to the oroginal "Bears" with none of the sharply intelligent humor and pivotal performances. Instead, sloppy sentimentality and sitcom one-liners are substituted (PG).

"Day of the Animals" — Okay action thriller in the "animals-can-be-awful" trend. Just about everything that prowls the North Woods gangs up on a group of back packers. Never very scary but it holds the eye. (PG)

"Wizards" — The wicked powers of technology do battle with the gentler forces of magic in this animated version of a war between wizards of 10 million years into the future. A trite message and despite splashes of color and some good special effects it all becomes very tiring. (PG)

"Grizzly" — Stilted dialogue and mangled subplots mar this man-against-claws tale that nevertheless possesses enough gore and chills to grab some viewers. (PG)

"Jaws" — The smash box-office hit about a giant killer shark terrorizing an East Coast beach resort. Audiences will be enthusiastically hooked from the start to finish. Director Steve Spielberg made a name for himself with this gripping adventure that pits Robert Shaw, Richard Dreyfuss and Roy Schneider against the demon shark. (PG)

"Heroes" — An extremely touching, sensitive love story starring Henry Winkler and Sally Field. No traces of "The Fonz" remain in Winkler's portrayal of an emotionally scarred Vietnam War veteran. (PG)★★★

"Looking for Mr. Goodbar" — Diane Keaton bar-hops dashingly in this sensationalized adaptation of Judith Rossner's best seller. Keaton's brilliant performance, however, doesn't save the film from becoming a pointless, and ultimately sexist display of sex and violence. (R)★★

"Oh God!" — A clever script, a charming George Burns as God and a totally believable John Denver as a modern day Moses who carries God's message to the people makes for a delightful, entertaining film. (PG)★★★

"Rocky" — Sylvester Stallone wrote the script and stars as the title character in this small, unpretentious and genuinely involving story of a local clubhouse prizefighter who gets a chance-of-a-lifetime shot at the world heavyweight title and finds love and self-respect along the way. (PG)★★★★

"Rolling Thunder" — William Devane stars as a Vietnam War prisoner who returns to his Texas home town after being released by the Viet Cong only to find his wife ready to marry another man and robbers at his door. Repulsively violent. (R)

"The Song Remains the Same" — The hard rock group Led Zeppelin stars in this surreal and sophisticated film of a concert at Madison Square Garden. One of the best rock films ever. (PG)

"Star Wars" — Director George Lucas ("American Graffiti") pulled out all stops in mounting this space fantasy about intergalactic warfare, and the dazzling filmmaking, technical wizardry and rousing adventure make for one of the most spectacular entertainments of this or any other year. Not a heavy, heady "2001" trip, it aims to entertain, and the sky is the limit. (PG)★★★★

Suburban Youth Symphony's full concert orchestra, directed by Russell Harvey, will perform a variety of holiday favorites. The Expressions, a 21-member swing choir from Buffalo Grove High School, directed by Linda McEachran, will present several choreographed numbers.

The symphony's string chamber ensemble and intermediate orchestra also will play a selection of classical and lighthearted music.

Tickets are $1 for adults, 50 cents for students, all available at the door.

Designed to help readers decide which movies they want to see, this guide includes a listing of movies currently playing the area, plus capsule summaries and comments. Films reviewed are rated excellent, four stars; good, three stars; fair, two stars and poor, one star.

"Another Man, Another Chance" — Claude Lelouch's near remake of his successful "A Man and a Woman" this time set in the American West in the 1870s. Genevieve Bujold and James Caan star as widow and widower who find new lives together. Overlong, though it has a nice period flavor. (R)

"The Bad News Bears in Breaking Training" — A disappointing sequel to the oroginal "Bears" with none of the sharply intelligent humor and pivotal performances. Instead, sloppy sentimentality and sitcom one-liners are substituted (PG).

"Day of the Animals" — Okay action thriller in the "animals-can-be-awful" trend. Just about everything that prowls the North Woods gangs up on a group of back packers. Never very scary but it holds the eye. (PG)

"Wizards" — The wicked powers of technology do battle with the gentler forces of magic in this animated version of a war between wizards of 10 million years into the future. A trite message and despite splashes of color and some good special effects it all becomes very tiring. (PG)

"Grizzly" — Stilted dialogue and mangled subplots mar this man-against-claws tale that nevertheless possesses enough gore and chills to grab some viewers. (PG)

"Jaws" — The smash box-office hit about a giant killer shark terrorizing an East Coast beach resort. Audiences will be enthusiastically hooked from the start to finish. Director Steve Spielberg made a name for himself with this gripping adventure that pits Robert Shaw, Richard Dreyfuss and Roy Schneider against the demon shark. (PG)

"Heroes" — An extremely touching, sensitive love story starring Henry Winkler and Sally Field. No traces of "The Fonz" remain in Winkler's portrayal of an emotionally scarred Vietnam War veteran. (PG)★★★

"Looking for Mr. Goodbar" — Diane Keaton bar-hops dashingly in this sensationalized adaptation of Judith Rossner's best seller. Keaton's brilliant performance, however, doesn't save the film from becoming a pointless, and ultimately sexist display of sex and violence. (R)★★

"Oh God!" — A clever script, a charming George Burns as God and a totally believable John Denver as a modern day Moses who carries God's message to the people makes for a delightful, entertaining film. (PG)★★★

"Rocky" — Sylvester Stallone wrote the script and stars as the title character in this small, unpretentious and genuinely involving story of a local clubhouse prizefighter who gets a chance-of-a-lifetime shot at the world heavyweight title and finds love and self-respect along the way. (PG)★★★★

"Rolling Thunder" — William Devane stars as a Vietnam War prisoner who returns to his Texas home town after being released by the Viet Cong only to find his wife ready to marry another man and robbers at his door. Repulsively violent. (R)

"The Song Remains the Same" — The hard rock group Led Zeppelin stars in this surreal and sophisticated film of a concert at Madison Square Garden. One of the best rock films ever. (PG)

"Star Wars" — Director George Lucas ("American Graffiti") pulled out all stops in mounting this space fantasy about intergalactic warfare, and the dazzling filmmaking, technical wizardry and rousing adventure make for one of the most spectacular entertainments of this or any other year. Not a heavy, heady "2001" trip, it aims to entertain, and the sky is the limit. (PG)★★★★

Ohlmeyer 1980 Olympics wizard

DON OHLMEYER

Don Ohlmeyer is the Chicago wiz-kid who is going to bring an unprecedented 150 hours and two weeks worth of live coverage of the 1980 Moscow Olympics into American livingrooms, compliments of NBC.

NBC was the wild-card favorite in the negotiations for American network coverage of the events and won exclusive broadcast rights for a cool $85 million over ABC and CBS under circumstances that still seem a little odd.

Then the network rushed to hire Ohlmeyer as the executive producer who, at 32, has directed and helped to produce six other Olympic extravaganzas for ABC.

ALREADY NBC is assembling an entourage of 500 production and engineer experts, and a team of on-air commentators of whom only O. J. Simpson has been announced.

The network already has sold 65 per cent of its advertising airtime for the events at projected 1980 prices.

You just can't start planning too soon for this kind of mammoth job, contend NBC executives who are elated that this particular "Big Event" will afford them fantastic profits, high ratings, an increased number of affiliates and heapings of prestige.

There is, however, in this rosey package with the Russians, room for skepticism. Consider propaganda programming, press freedom snags, and the political influence and interference that is inevitable with all Olympic events.

A FRIENDLY and candid Ohlmeyer did just that in Chicago Thursday.

"I assure you there will be no propaganda. We have complete control over what goes on the air," he said.

However, NBC has agreed to purchase 14 television shows, many of them Russian-oriented, from Lothar Bock, the mysterious West German impresario who negotiated the Olympics package with the Russians, only after the network paid him $1 million for his services.

The first of the independent producer's shows, the Bolshoi Ballet's version of "The Nutcracker" hosted by former First Lady Betty Ford, airs at 6 p.m. Dec. 18.

OHLMEYER INSISTS the network has complete editing and scheduling power over the remaining 13 shows, which will air between now and 1981.

"If anything, I think it will be healthy for the American people to become familiar with different aspects of the culture and life in the Soviet Union before the Olympics, but there will not be any propaganda," he said.

"But there are some people who feel that if we show the Russian people doing anything other than eating their babies that we'd be providing propaganda. They're people just like us," Ohlmeyer said. "There's a whole atmosphere, an ambiance about Moscow just as there was in Montreal that the camera can capture. We're in a dilemma because if we show Russian people smiling, people will say we're making a statement on the Russian way of life."

OHLMEYER WAS eager to quash all of the recent "misconceptions" about NBC's planned coverage of the Olympics.

The going rate for air rights was astronomical "because the competition for network coverage in this country is so tough and not because NBC was taken to the cleaners by the Russians," he said.

It will cost NBC more than $100 million to provide coverage of the Olympics, which breaks down to about $35 million paid to the Russians for air rights, $55 million paid to the Russians for technical services and the remainder to cover the network's travel and talent expenses.

"Every piece of equipment we take with us to Moscow, we bring back. There are no covert agreements and nothing will be left there afterwards," Ohlmeyer said.

AMERICAN TELEVISION isn't going to lose any of its technical secrets in the process, he said, "because there are no technical secrets we have that the Russians aren't already privy to."

But, Ohlmeyer admits that anything can happen in three years.

For all the money that the 1980 Olympics are worth to NBC, it is disturbing that the network has nothing in writing from the Russians to assure journalistic freedom in covering the events in a country where American print journnalists still are detained at times by the Soviet government.

"What if they pull the plug on us the way they did during the presidential visit to Russia not long ago?" Ohlmeyer said. "I just don't know."

A radio package that doesn't quit

This week on radio

It is ironic that the two Chicago discjockeys who have the most successful back-to-back radio shows in the country have such contrasting approaches to not just broadcasting, but life in general.

If Wally Phillips is the grand conversationalist weekday mornings before dawn and during the rush hour, then Roy Leonard certainly is the grand inquisitor later in the morning as the city's work day gets under way.

They both enjoy strong identification with their listeners and success in what they do, but their styles on the air and their personal pleasures are as different as night and day.

"RISE AND SHINE" has become synonymous with Phillips' chat, wit and service during the past 10 years. He commands one of the largest morning audiences anywhere in the country weekdays from 5:30 to 10 a.m. and delights in randomly selecting from his estimated 1.5 million lisetners during the week to help make his show work.

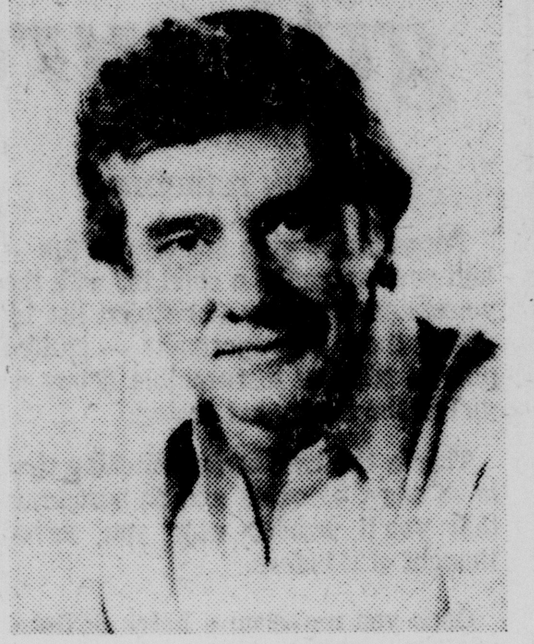
In those difficult, starting hours of the morning, people are looking for help, information and a friendly, reassuring voice, Phillips

"They want to know what the weather is, what the traffic conditions are and what has happened in the world overnight while they were sleeping," he said. "They want to be reassured that all is considerably well with the world and that they can make it through another day."

BY THE TIME Leonard takes over at 10 a.m., people are off doing chores and errands. "By that time, they are simply looking for companionship or some interesting information while they do their work," he said.

And so, Leonard serves up appetizing, well balanced helpings of music, personality interviews, public affairs information, entertainment reviews and entertainment world gossip through 2 p.m. He faces the difficult task each day of bridging his show over the agriculturally dominated "noon Show," which airs nooon to 1 p.m.

Although Leonard's listening audience drops off from the early morning, leaving him mostly with homemakers and small businessmen, the audience becomes more specific and the pace becomes more leisurely, he said.



ROY LEONARD

THE TWO MEN have developed very different ways of using the telephone and integrating their audiences into their shows.

Phillips admits that the star of his show is the audience and the most important element of his operaton is the telephone. Among the weather, traffic reports and commercials stunted with pre-recorded and comic remarks and noises, Phillips lets his audience take the show and run with it.

A man calls up with a problem and before you know it, half of Chicago is on the phone with advice and generous assistance. A woman calls up with a question, and someone has the answer in minutes.

Phillips is a natural for bringing people together, and Chicago loves it.

Loenard runs his business a little differently. "I give my audience something and then they react to it," he said. "I use the telephone, but I control it more. No one knows how to use the telephone better than Wally, but I don't rely on it quite as much as he does."

"It's amazing, but we are probably as different as two people can be," Leonard said. "We're good friends and we share an awful lot between shows in the way of information that might help each other. But what we do on our shows is very different."

LEONARD'S OWN broad application for the arts coupled with a change in WGN station philosophy has precipitated a growth in music programming on Leonard's show from a steady diet of Ray Coniff to a diversity that includes popular rock and Broadway hits.

His interviews with everyone from the resident plant doctor to a theater great, entertainment reviews and telephone conversations with listeners carry the same enthusiasm Leonard brought to WGN nearly 10 years ago from his native Massachusetts.

It was out East where the would-be actor learned he'd rather do on-air interviews with artists than cover hard news as a reporter in the streets.

"My proudest experience was to interview then Sen. John F. Kennedy on my radio show, only to have to cover his assassination in Hyannisport when he was President some years later," Leonard said. "I knew after that experience, that I didn't want to be a radio newsman but a communicator instead."

HIS CAREER "just happened," Leonard said, and the golden voice "is all the doing of an old orator who taught me how to speak," he said.

Phillips, on theother hand, a Portsmouth, Ohio native, moved up the ranks in the radio world from his days as an Air Force disc jockey to a genuine satirist and humorist. He was interrupting music and commercials with his collection of recorded bits, words and sounds in the interest of commentary and folly long before he set foot in Chicago.

His style is trivia, spontaneity and people touching other people over the airwaves. Phillips has been known to pull pranks on his show on April Fools' Day and turn his show over to serious coverage of a breaking news story. But, somehow, under any circumstance, Phillips the Philosopher shines through.

"MY OWN FEELING is that radio should be a personal medium. Television is a box, but radio is a friend. You can put your make-up on with it and cook with it," Phillips said.

WALLY PHILLIPS

"I try to sense and perceive what the morning is all about. It's tough enough a struggle just to get up in the morning without controversy. We give them what they need and a little more, hopefully. We keep a lot of material around and try to make it palatable."

Phillips believes there is much to be said for a radio braodcaster who talks to his listeners like people rather than like a processed, analyzed entity.

"People are really desparate to get some love going and that's what I'm after. We try to bring people together and help them out," Phillips said.

And that kind of love starts with the man at the mike.

Leonard is the kind of old-fashioned family man and father of six sons who gathers his family at the station for an annual Christmas broadcast while Phillips, separated from his wife, gets misty-eyed talking about how proud he is of his three children.

Their shows stand alone and must be judged on their own merits. But together, Phillips and Leonard make for one of the most successful packages on radio — living proof, after all, that opposites do attract.

Ohlmeyer 1980 Olympics wizard

Don Ohlmeyer is the Chicago wiz-kid who is going to bring an unprecedented 150 hours and two weeks worth of live coverage of the 1980 Moscow Olympics into American livingrooms, compliments of NBC.

NBC was the wild-card favorite in the negotiations for American network coverage of the events and won exclusive broadcast rights for a cool $85 million over ABC and CBS under circumstances that still seem a little odd.

Then the network rushed to hire Ohlmeyer as the executive producer who, at 32, has directed and helped to produce six other Olympic extravaganzas for ABC.

DON OHLMEYER

ALREADY NBC is assembling an entourage of 500 production and engineer experts, and a team of on-air commentators of whom only O. J. Simpson has been announced.

The network already has sold 65 per cent of its advertising airtime for the events at projected 1980 prices.

You just can't start planning too soon for this kind of mammoth job, contend NBC executives who are elated that this particular "Big Event" will afford them fantastic profits, high ratings, an increased number of affiliates and heapings of prestige.

There is, however, in this rosey package with the Russians, room for skepticism. Consider propaganda programming, press freedom snags, and the political influence and interference that is inevitable with all Olympic events.

A FRIENDLY and candid Ohlmeyer did just that in Chicago Thursday.

"I assure you there will be no propaganda. We have complete control over what goes on the air," he said.

However, NBC has agreed to purchase 14 television shows, many of them Russian-oriented, from Lothar Bock, the mysterious West German impresario who negotiated the Olympics package with the Russians, only after the network paid him $1 million for his services.

The first of the independent producer's shows, the Bolshoi Ballet's version of "The Nutcracker" hosted by former First Lady Betty Ford, airs at 6 p.m. Dec. 18.

OHLMEYER INSISTS the network has complete editing and scheduling power over the remaining 13 shows, which will air between now and 1981.

"If anything, I think it will be healthy for the American people to become familiar with different aspects of the culture and life in the Soviet Union before the Olympics, but there will not be any propaganda," he said.

"But there are some people who feel that if we show the Russian people doing anything other than eating their babies that we'd be providing propaganda. They're people just like us," Ohlmeyer said. "There's a whole atmosphere, an ambiance about Moscow just as there was in Montreal that the camera can capture. We're in a dilemma because if we show Russian people smiling, people will say we're making a statement on the Russian way of life."

OHLMEYER WAS eager to quash all of the recent "misconceptions" about NBC's planned coverage of the Olympics.

The going rate for air rights was astronomical "because the competition for network coverage in this country is so tough and not because NBC was taken to the cleaners by the Russians," he said.

It will cost NBC more than $100 million to provide coverage of the Olympics, which breaks down to about $35 million paid to the Russians for air rights, $55 million paid to the Russians for technical services and the remainder to cover the network's travel and talent expenses.

"Every piece of equipment we take with us to Moscow, we bring back. There are no covert agreements and nothing will be left there afterwards," Ohlmeyer said.

AMERICAN TELEVISION isn't going to lose any of its technical secrets in the process, he said, "because there are no technical secrets we have that the Russians aren't already privy to."

But, Ohlmeyer admits that anything can happen in three years.

For all the money that the 1980 Olympics are worth to NBC, it is disturbing that the network has nothing in writing from the Russians to assure journalistic freedom in covering the events in a country where American print journnalists still are detained at times by the Soviet government.

"What if they pull the plug on us the way they did during the presidential visit to Russia not long ago?" Ohlmeyer said. "I just don't know."

A radio package that doesn't quit

This week on radio

It is ironic that the two Chicago discjockeys who have the most successful back-to-back radio shows in the country have such contrasting approaches to not just broadcasting, but life in general.

If Wally Phillips is the grand conversationalist weekday mornings before dawn and during the rush hour, then Roy Leonard certainly is the grand inquisitor later in the morning as the city's work day gets under way.

They both enjoy strong identification with their listeners and success in what they do, but their styles on the air and their personal pleasures are as different as night and day.

"RISE AND SHINE" has become synonymous with Phillips' chat, wit and service during the past 10 years. He commands one of the largest morning audiences anywhere in the country weekdays from 5:30 to 10 a.m. and delights in randomly selecting from his estimated 1.5 million lisetners during the week to help make his show work.

In those difficult, starting hours of the morning, people are looking for help, information and a friendly, reassuring voice, Phillips

"They want to know what the weather is, what the traffic conditions are and what has happened in the world overnight while they were sleeping," he said. "They want to be reassured that all is considerably well with the world and that they can make it through another day."

BY THE TIME Leonard takes over at 10 a.m., people are off doing chores and errands. "By that time, they are simply looking for companionship or some interesting information while they do their work," he said.

And so, Leonard serves up appetizing, well balanced helpings of music, personality interviews, public affairs information, entertainment reviews and entertainment world gossip through 2 p.m. He faces the difficult task each day of bridging his show over the agriculturally dominated "noon Show," which airs nooon to 1 p.m.

Although Leonard's listening audience drops off from the early morning, leaving him mostly with homemakers and small businessmen, the audience becomes more specific and the pace becomes more leisurely, he said.

ROY LEONARD

THE TWO MEN have developed very different ways of using the telephone and integrating their audiences into their shows.

Phillips admits that the star of his show is the audience and the most important element of his operaton is the telephone. Among the weather, traffic reports and commercials stunted with pre-recorded and comic remarks and noises, Phillips lets his audience take the show and run with it.

A man calls up with a problem and before you know it, half of Chicago is on the phone with advice and generous assistance. A woman calls up with a question, and someone has the answer in minutes.

Phillips is a natural for bringing people together, and Chicago loves it.

Loenard runs his business a little differently. "I give my audience something and then they react to it," he said. "I use the telephone, but I control it more. No one knows how to use the telephone better than Wally, but I don't rely on it quite as much as he does."

"It's amazing, but we are probably as different as two people can be," Leonard said. "We're good friends and we share an awful lot between shows in the way of information that might help each other. But what we do on our shows is very different."

LEONARD'S OWN broad application for the arts coupled with a change in WGN station philosophy has precipitated a growth in music programming on Leonard's show from a steady diet of Ray Coniff to a diversity that includes popular rock and Broadway hits.

His interviews with everyone from the resident plant doctor to a theater great, entertainment reviews and telephone conversations with listeners carry the same enthusiasm Leonard brought to WGN nearly 10 years ago from his native Massachusetts.

It was out East where the would-be actor learned he'd rather do on-air interviews with artists than cover hard news as a reporter in the streets.

"My proudest experience was to interview then Sen. John F. Kennedy on my radio show, only to have to cover his assassination in Hyannisport when he was President some years later," Leonard said. "I knew after that experience, that I didn't want to be a radio newsman but a communicator instead."

HIS CAREER "just happened," Leonard said, and the golden voice "is all the doing of an old orator who taught me how to speak," he said.

Phillips, on theother hand, a Portsmouth, Ohio native, moved up the ranks in the radio world from his days as an Air Force disc jockey to a genuine satirist and humorist. He was interrupting music and commercials with his collection of recorded bits, words and sounds in the interest of commentary and folly long before he set foot in Chicago.

His style is trivia, spontaneity and people touching other people over the airwaves. Phillips has been known to pull pranks on his show on April Fools' Day and turn his show over to serious coverage of a breaking news story. But, somehow, under any circumstance, Phillips the Philosopher shines through.

WALLY PHILLIPS

"MY OWN FEELING is that radio should be a personal medium. Television is a box, but radio is a friend. You can put your make-up on with it and cook with it," Phillips said.

"I try to sense and perceive what the morning is all about. It's tough enough a struggle just to get up in the morning without controversy. We give them what they need and a little more, hopefully. We keep a lot of material around and try to make it palatable."

Phillips believes there is much to be said for a radio braodcaster who talks to his listeners like people rather than like a processed, analyzed entity.

"People are really desparate to get some love going and that's what I'm after. We try to bring people together and help them out," Phillips said.

And that kind of love starts with the man at the mike.

Leonard is the kind of old-fashioned family man and father of six sons who gathers his family at the station for an annual Christmas broadcast while Phillips, separated from his wife, gets misty-eyed talking about how proud he is of his three children.

Their shows stand alone and must be judged on their own merits. But together, Phillips and Leonard make for one of the most successful packages on radio — living proof, after all, that opposites do attract.

Lawrence E. Lamb

The doctor says

Leg lifts can reduce lower abdomen flab

I had a heart attack in March, 1970. I recovered after 30 days in the hospital. I was on a strict diet, — no egg yolks, etc. Now I can eat anything, but not to excess.

I think I read in one of your columns that if you have a low cholesterol, you can eat all the eggs you want. Is this true?

I am 6 foot 3, and weigh 200 pounds. I lift weights and exercise an hour daily. My physician says I'm in good health, but I must get the flabbiness, which is minor, off my abdomen. Please tell me how. I do numerous situps, to no avail.

Cholesterol is an important risk factor only if the amount in the blood is elevated. If your cholesterol level is below 220 and the test is accurate, certainly it is not an important factor in heart or vascular disease. If it stays that way, you can indeed eat cholesterol in your diet as long as eating foods containing it doesn't result in too many calories and in turn too much body fat.

The only reason we recommend restriction of dietary cholesterol is to prevent the blood level from being too high and increasing the risk of heart and vascular disease. It is a good idea to have fairly frequent checks if you decide to consume more than 300 milligrams of cholesterol a day.

Body weight also is important, and anyone who has had a heart attack should indeed get rid of every ounce of body fat that is evident under the skin. If you have moderate glab over your abdomen — take it off.

The only way you can do that is by eating less calories (regardless of what they come from) than your body uses. Exercise will help you burn calories, but will not enable you to "spot reduce." If you don't get rid of the excess fat, you won't get rid of the flab by sit ups.

Sit ups only help the upper abdomen anyway. If you can, put one hand over the upper abdomen when you do a sit up and notice which muscles contract.

You should be doing some type of leg lift. These affect the lower abdomen. You should consciously tighten up your abdominal muscles with each leg lift. That will help keep the strain off your back and will put the lower abdominal muscles to work.

People would get a lot better results from dieting if they really did it right. Right means losing all the excess body fat, not just part of it. When a person is 50 pounds overweight, and loses only 10 pounds it is like Rockefeller losing a dime. A lot of physicians do not insist that their patients lose all the excess fat. You can tell when you have lost it all only by the absence of any significant fat around your waist, the small of the back, and around the navel area. If you have fat there, you have some to lose, regardless of your weight on the scales or how tall you are.

Walking is a great aid in controlling body weight, and should be part of every diet program. The more you are able to exercise daily, the easier it will be to control body fat.

Earthworms won't help potted plant soil

Dear Roberta: A friend gave me a plant which she potted in soil with earthworms. She says they're good for the soil. I say, yuck, but I'll leave them where they are if that's true. — Vita Nix Earthworms are beneficial out-of-doors, but they don't have adequate space to move around in a pot without breaking fine roots. Take the pot outside, turn it upside down so you can lift out all the contents, and knock out the worms.

Dear Roberta: We've found an answer to your question about how to "stretch coffee;" we use those coffee filters with holes that fit over the center post of the coffee pot. With them we use one-half the amount of fine-grind coffee we formerly used. The results are very satisfactory. One size filter fits any percolator or drip coffee maker, and perforations in the four corners enable one to enclose the grounds completely. — Elmer Downs.

I like those filters because by trapping the sediment and grounds in a little package, they make cleaning the coffee pot a snap. However, I find that with an electric coffeemaker one can't skimp on the initial amount of coffee used. But, if more water is added to the reservoir and allowed to brew after the first water has dripped through, an extra couple of cups of coffee can be produced and blended with what's already in the pot.

Dear Roberta: How does one crack black walnuts? — M.S.

One method that used to work for people with muscle and a good aim was hammering them open on the flat plate of an old iron. Since I don't know where you can get one of those irons these days, I recommend pouring boiling water over the nuts, letting them stand for 20 minutes, and then cracking them with new-fangled equipment.

Easy-to-make pillow portraits gift sure to be a hit for holidays

by JOANN SCHREIBER

Personalized gifts are always fun — and you can make a solid hit with the youngsters on your Christmas list by giving them pillowportraits — stuffed pillows stitched to resemble a boy or girl or the family cat or dog.

This is the kind of fun-stitching that is so easy, so quick and so humorous that you'll wonder why you never thought of it before.

Once you make up a batch of these pillow portraits, you won't stop till you've caricatured everyone you know. The ingredients are easily available: Armtex Acrilan fleece and Malina's Acrilan yarn, both Wear-dated by Monsanto, scraps of felt and fabric, a few buttons and barrettes and polyester fiberfill for stuffing.

These pillows are made without boxing strips. Just use a dinner plate to trace a circle on a double thickness of fleece, add rounded or pointed ears if you are making a cat or dog. You will complete the face, then stitch the two sections together, leaving an opening for the stuffing. Turn the sections right side out, stuff the pillow and hand-stitch the opening.

TO MAKE THE CAT: make eyes of bright green felt, mouth of pink felt and nose of beige felt. White felt forms the white of the eyes. Glue or stitch felt sections in place. Outline eyes with black yarn. Make whiskers of more yarn, all stitched in place with the zigzag stitch for your sewing machine. Choose fleece that is the same color as your cat, and select yarn that will contrast nicely.

To make the dog, use black felt for his ears, eyebrows, pupils and nose. Use white for his muzzle and the whites of his eyes and pink for his mouth. Glue or stitch felt sections in place and outline eyes and muzzle with yarn.

To make the girl pillow, use felt to make the features as sketched and yarn for the hair and eyebrows. Sew the yarn strands down with a zigzag stitch. Use real barrettes (from the dime store) to anchor the hair. A scrap of calico can suggest a dress.

THE BOY IS created in the same way and you can use real buttons for his shirt. If you like, you can use buttons for any of the noses — which might stay in place better than tiny felt scraps.

If your girl pillow has pigtains or a pony tail, use real ribbon to secure the hair. You could make a cap for the boy pillow.

Just keep the expressions cheerful and the detailing lifelike and you'll have an instant specialty which can come in handy on all sorts of gift occasions.

FLEECE AND felt combine to make pillow portraits — a charming and original sew-it gift for youngsters at Christmas or any other tine.

Competition applications ready

Women over age 30 who need help to qualify for better positions or to re-enter the job market may apply for assistance from Soroptimist and McCall-Life Pattern Fund Training Awards.

Local applications for the competition may be obtained from Bridget Sommerfield, chairman of the award must be over 30 years old, be either the head of the household or have a family financially dependent on them and preferably not have completed college.

Entries are due Jan. 2, 1978. The local winner will receive a $100 prize and be eligible for the regional competition, which gives two awards of $1,000 each and an award of $2,500 from the McCall-Life Pattern Fund.

Junior Woman's Christmas dinner

A Christmas dinner complete with Santa Claus will be held Dec. 15 at 6 p.m. for needy children and their families.

The Junior Woman's Club of Des Plaines is sponsoring the event, to be held at the Northwest Suburban Day Care Center in Des Plaines.

Eighty presents for boys and girls from ages 2 to 11 have been donated by persons of the community. Santa will distribute these gifts to the children after the dinner.

Lawrence E. Lamb

The doctor says

Leg lifts can reduce lower abdomen flab

I had a heart attack in March, 1970. I recovered after 30 days in the hospital. I was on a strict diet, — no egg yolks, etc. Now I can eat anything, but not to excess.

I think I read in one of your columns that if you have a low cholesterol, you can eat all the eggs you want. Is this true?

I am 6 foot 3, and weigh 200 pounds. I lift weights and exercise an hour daily. My physician says I'm in good health, but I must get the flabbiness, which is minor, off my abdomen. Please tell me how. I do numerous situps, to no avail.

Cholesterol is an important risk factor only if the amount in the blood is elevated. If your cholesterol level is below 220 and the test is accurate, certainly it is not an important factor in heart or vascular disease. If it stays that way, you can indeed eat cholesterol in your diet as long as eating foods containing it doesn't result in too many calories and in turn too much body fat.

The only reason we recommend restriction of dietary cholesterol is to prevent the blood level from being too high and increasing the risk of heart and vascular disease. It is a good idea to have fairly frequent checks if you decide to consume more than 300 milligrams of cholesterol a day.

Body weight also is important, and anyone who has had a heart attack should indeed get rid of every ounce of body fat that is evident under the skin. If you have moderate glab over your abdomen — take it off.

The only way you can do that is by eating less calories (regardless of what they come from) than your body uses. Exercise will help you burn calories, but will not enable you to "spot reduce." If you don't get rid of the excess fat, you won't get rid of the flab by sit ups.

Sit ups only help the upper abdomen anyway. If you can, put one hand over the upper abdomen when you do a sit up and notice which muscles contract.

You should be doing some type of leg lift. These affect the lower abdomen. You should consciously tighten up your abdominal muscles with each leg lift. That will help keep the strain off your back and will put the lower abdominal muscles to work.

People would get a lot better results from dieting if they really did it right. Right means losing all the excess body fat, not just part of it. When a person is 50 pounds overweight, and loses only 10 pounds it is like Rockefeller losing a dime. A lot of physicians do not insist that their patients lose all the excess fat. You can tell when you have lost it all only by the absence of any significant fat around your waist, the small of the back, and around the navel area. If you have fat there, you have some to lose, regardless of your weight on the scales or how tall you are.

Walking is a great aid in controlling body weight, and should be part of every diet program. The more you are able to exercise daily, the easier it will be to control body fat.

Earthworms won't help potted plant soil

Dear Roberta: A friend gave me a plant which she potted in soil with earthworms. She says they're good for the soil. I say, yuck, but I'll leave them where they are if that's true. — Vita Nix

Earthworms are beneficial out-of-doors, but they don't have adequate space to move around in a pot without breaking fine roots. Take the pot outside, turn it upside down so you can lift out all the contents, and knock out the worms.

Dear Roberta: We've found an answer to your question about how to "stretch coffee;" we use those coffee filters with holes that fit over the center post of the coffee pot. With them we use one-half the amount of fine-grind coffee we formerly used. The results are very satisfactory. One size filter fits any percolator or drip coffee maker, and perforations in the four corners enable one to enclose the grounds completely. — Elmer Downs.

I like those filters because by trapping the sediment and grounds in a little package, they make cleaning the coffee pot a snap. However, I find that with an electric coffeemaker one can't skimp on the initial amount of coffee used. But, if more water is added to the reservoir and allowed to brew after the first water has dripped through, an extra couple of cups of coffee can be produced and blended with what's already in the pot.

Dear Roberta: How does one crack black walnuts? — M.S.

One method that used to work for people with muscle and a good aim was hammering them open on the flat plate of an old iron. Since I don't know where you can get one of those irons these days, I recommend pouring boiling water over the nuts, letting them stand for 20 minutes, and then cracking them with new-fangled equipment.

Mrs. Mathews welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, The Daily Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Easy-to-make pillow portraits gift sure to be a hit for holidays

by JOANN SCHREIBER

Personalized gifts are always fun — and you can make a solid hit with the youngsters on your Christmas list by giving them pillowportraits — stuffed pillows stitched to resemble a boy or girl or the family cat or dog.

This is the kind of fun-stitching that is so easy, so quick and so humorous that you'll wonder why you never thought of it before.

Once you make up a batch of these pillow portraits, you won't stop till you've caricatured everyone you know. The ingredients are easily available: Armtex Acrilan fleece and Malina's Acrilan yarn, both Wear-dated by Monsanto, scraps of felt and fabric, a few buttons and barrettes and polyester fiberfill for stuffing.

These pillows are made without boxing strips. Just use a dinner plate to trace a circle on a double thickness of fleece, add rounded or pointed ears if you are making a cat or dog. You will complete the face, then stitch the two sections together, leaving an opening for the stuffing. Turn the sections right side out, stuff the pillow and hand-stitch the opening.

TO MAKE THE CAT: make eyes of bright green felt, mouth of pink felt and nose of beige felt. White felt forms the white of the eyes. Glue or stitch felt sections in place.

Outline eyes with black yarn. Make whiskers of more yarn, all stitched in place with the zigzag stitch for your sewing machine. Choose fleece that is the same color as your cat, and select yarn that will contrast nicely.

To make the dog, use black felt for his ears, eyebrows, pupils and nose. Use white for his muzzle and the whites of his eyes and pink for his mouth. Glue or stitch felt sections in place and outline eyes and muzzle with yarn.

To make the girl pillow, use felt to make the features as sketched and yarn for the hair and eyebrows. Sew the yarn strands down with a zigzag stitch. Use real barrettes (from the dime store) to anchor the hair. A scrap of calico can suggest a dress.

THE BOY IS created in the same way and you can use real buttons for his shirt. If you like, you can use buttons for any of the noses — which might stay in place better than tiny felt scraps.

Free career training for jobs in high demand

Looking for a career you can prepare for in just eight weeks, and then turn to the want ads for a job?

Harper College is beginning a training program for geriatric-home health aides to fill an enormous demand in Northwest suburban nursing homes. The intensive eight-week course will not cost students a penny, because it is funded through the federal Comperhensive Employment and Training Act.

The program will last "eight weeks, 36 hours a week, much like a full-time job," said Patricia Bourke, chairman of Harper's life and health sciences division. Twenty-four of those 36 hours will be spent working with patients in local nursing homes, Mrs. Bourke said. The rest of the time will be spent in classes studying the psychological aspects of caring for the elderly, medical terminology and basic nursing skills.

TO QUALIFY FOR CETA funding, which will pay for tuition, fees and books, a student must have been unemployed for seven calendar days, Mrs. Bourke said.

The only other admission requirement is a "simple" reading comprehension test to ensure the person is "equipped to succeed in the program," she said.

The first eight-week program is due to start this month. The course will be offered again beginning mid-February and mid-April.

While nursing homes normally provide on-the-job training, the Harper program is the first of its kind in the area, said Shirley Maurer of the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged, 800 W. Oakton St., Arlington Heights, one of the homes where students will be working.

"It (the Harper program) will make our job a lot easier," Ms. Maurer said. She said the Lutheran home, which has about 450 residents, is "desperate for help" and could use as many as 15 full-time aides immediately.

SHE SAID OTHER area homes are in the same boat, adding that "a lot of nursing homes will be grateful" for those who come from the Harper program knowing how to give a bed bath, get a resident dressed, transfer patients from wheelchairs to beds, take temperature and pulse and do all the other tasks of a nurse's aide.

For more information, call Mary Jane Sullivan at Harper, 397-3000, extension 523.

Clinic offers free immunization for school children monthly

Free immunizations for school-age children will be available monthly at an evening clinic at Wheeling High School, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd., Wheeling.

The first session will be 5:30 to 7:30 p.m., Dec. 12. Clinics will be held on the second Monday of each month thereafter, said Dr. John B. Hall, medical director of the Cook County Dept. of Health which is co-sponsoring the clinic with the Wheeling Board of Health.

Children from infancy to 18 years of age can be immunized at no cost for measles, rubella, polio, diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus.

"We are urging parents to have their children re-immunized against measles if they received the killed vaccine, 1963-67, or the live vaccine before 15 months of age," Hall said.

All children must be accompanied by a parent or guardian who are urged to bring their child's immunization record to the clinic. Children who are sick, have allergies or neurological disorders will not be immunized.

Free career training for jobs in high demand

Looking for a career you can prepare for in just eight weeks, and then turn to the want ads for a job?

Harper College is beginning a training program for geriatric-home health aides to fill an enormous demand in Northwest suburban nursing homes. The intensive eight-week course will not cost students a penny, because it is funded through the federal Comperhensive Employment and Training Act.

The program will last "eight weeks, 36 hours a week, much like a full-time job," said Patricia Bourke, chairman of Harper's life and health sciences division. Twenty-four of those 36 hours will be spent working with patients in local nursing homes, Mrs. Bourke said. The rest of the time will be spent in classes studying the psychological aspects of caring for the elderly, medical terminology and basic nursing skills.

TO QUALIFY FOR CETA funding, which will pay for tuition, fees and books, a student must have been unemployed for seven calendar days, Mrs. Bourke said.

The only other admission requirement is a "simple" reading comprehension test to ensure the person is "equipped to succeed in the program," she said.

The first eight-week program is due to start this month. The course will be offered again beginning mid-February and mid-April.

While nursing homes normally provide on-the-job training, the Harper program is the first of its kind in the area, said Shirley Maurer of the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged, 800 W. Oakton St., Arlington Heights, one of the homes where students will be working.

"It (the Harper program) will make our job a lot easier," Ms. Maurer said. She said the Lutheran home, which has about 450 residents, is "desperate for help" and could use as many as 15 full-time aides immediately.

SHE SAID OTHER area homes are in the same boat, adding that "a lot of nursing homes will be grateful" for those who come from the Harper program knowing how to give a bed bath, get a resident dressed, transfer patients from wheelchairs to beds, take temperature and pulse and do all the other tasks of a nurse's aide.

For more information, call Mary Jane Sullivan at Harper, 397-3000, extension 523.

Clinic offers free immunization for school children monthly

Free immunizations for school-age children will be available monthly at an evening clinic at Wheeling High School, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd., Wheeling.

The first session will be 5:30 to 7:30 p.m., Dec. 12. Clinics will be held on the second Monday of each month thereafter, said Dr. John B. Hall, medical director of the Cook County Dept. of Health which is co-sponsoring the clinic with the Wheeling Board of Health.

Children from infancy to 18 years of age can be immunized at no cost for measles, rubella, polio, diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus.

"We are urging parents to have their children re-immunized against measles if they received the killed vaccine, 1963-67, or the live vaccine before 15 months of age," Hall said.

All children must be accompanied by a parent or guardian who are urged to bring their child's immunization record to the clinic. Children who are sick, have allergies or neurological disorders will not be immunized.

Champagne brunch Sunday for GOP candidate Sharon Sharp

A champagne fund raising brunch for Sharon Sharp, Arlington Heights, Republican candidate for Illinois Secretary of State will be given from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., Dec. 11 at Casa Royale, 783 Lee St., Des Plaines. Tickets are $25 and will be sold at the door, or may be ordered from Anne Marzullo, 296-3171.

200 years at the same location.

Maybe folks were a little skeptical about taking stock in America 200 years ago.

We were young. At war. With no experience.

And who knew if we'd ever pay back the money?

Well, 200 years have passed. And the U.S. government has always paid in full. To the penny.

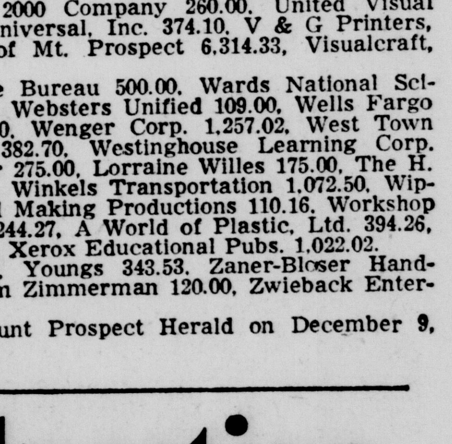
Now that's not a bad record.

In fact, you might say we're now a pretty well-established outfit to do business with.

So join the Payroll Savings Plan and save with today's Bicentennial issue of Series E Savings Bonds. It's easy. It's automatic.

It's safe. After 200 years, you know we're here to stay.

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4½% the first year). Lost, stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. When needed, Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.



Take stock in America.

200 years at the same location.

Maybe folks were a little skeptical about taking stock in America 200 years ago.

We were young. At war. With no experience.

And who knew if we'd ever pay back the money?

Well, 200 years have passed. And the U.S. government has always paid in full. To the penny.

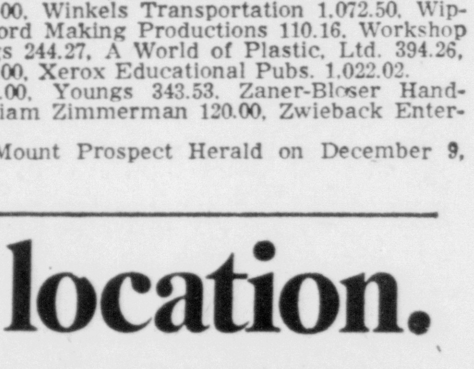
Now that's not a bad record.

In fact, you might say we're now a pretty well-established outfit to do business with.

So join the Payroll Savings Plan and save with today's Bicentennial issue of Series E Savings Bonds. It's easy. It's automatic.

And it's safe. After 200 years, you know we're here to stay.

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4½% the first year). Lost, stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. When needed, Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.



Take stock in America.

TRY A WANT AD

just another savings & loan open house. WRONG!

Literally.

150 tasty and colorful gingerbread houses will be given away to visitors at our Rolling Meadows office on December 17, 1977. Gingerbread houses yummy enough to attract Hansel and Gretel, attractive enough to serve as a centerpiece for the entire holiday season.

Security Savings wants you to know that we're different, and this timely drawing is just one of the things that sets us apart from others.

We're the people who gave away money during our open house celebration; and we're the folks who offer free N.O.W. account checking to our savers.

We'd like to show you personally why Security Savings is not just another Savings and Loan. Join us during our celebration and see our special gifts, our free souvenirs, our wide range of services; and learn about our savings accounts which yield up to 8.17% annually. (7-3/4% certificate, compounded daily, for six years.)*

Come on in and bring the coupon below. You may walk away with the house. We're open to serve you:

TRY A WANT AD

just another savings & loan open house.

WRONG!

Literally.

150 tasty and colorful gingerbread houses will be given away to visitors at our Rolling Meadows office on December 17, 1977. Gingerbread houses yummy enough to attract Hansel and Gretel, attractive enough to serve as a centerpiece for the entire holiday season.

Security Savings wants you to know that we're different, and this timely drawing is just one of the things that sets us apart from others.

We're the people who gave away money during our open house celebration; and we're the folks who offer free N.O.W. account checking to our savers.

We'd like to show you personally why Security Savings is not just another Savings and Loan. Join us during our celebration and see our special gifts, our free souvenirs, our wide range of services; and learn about our savings accounts which yield up to 8.17% annually. (7-3/4% certificate, compounded daily, for six years.)*

Come on in and bring the coupon below. You may walk away with the house. We're open to serve you:

Mondays & Fridays—9:30 to 8:00
Tuesdays & Thursdays—9:30 to 4:00

Gift wrap gets face lift treatment

Trying to work up a new way to wrap up a gift? Why not do packages as portraits of the receiver?

To add this piquant touch under the tree use almost any medium or large-sized box — round, square, short or tall — cardboard, pens, ribbon, Christmas wrappings.

The box containing the gift becomes a "body" and the cardboard the face by adding features with a felt-tipped pen or crayon and hair made of yarn or paper.

The portrait boxes can include mother, father, sister and brother and other family members if you want to make a big scene under the tree or on a gift table.

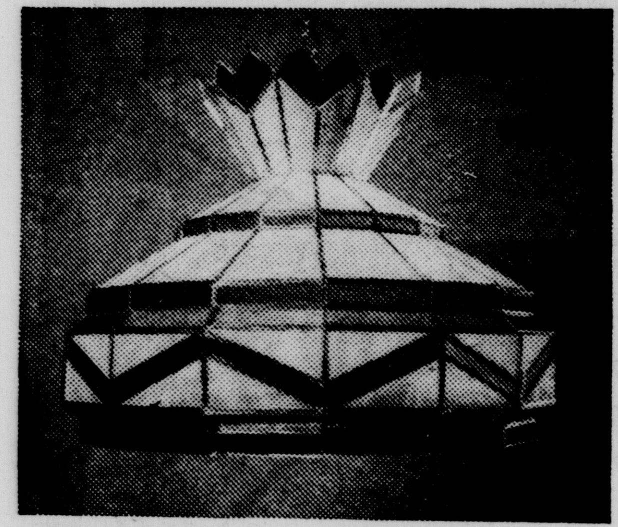
For neat packages, wrap on a flat surface, one that is large enough to accommodate all your materials. Don't try to wrap on a bed or on your lap. Also, measure the paper around the box, leaving just enough for a two-inch overlap. As you wrap, secure each fold with tape so the ends won't slip away from you.

To make the faces, draw a big circle on plain white cardboard or shirtboard. Trace around a medium-sized mixing bowl for the face pattern and cut out. Draw in eyes, lips, cheek color, eyeglasses with felt tip pens. If you use yarn for hair, cover the hair area with glue, or double stick tape, and then lay the yarn over the glue or tape and snip off the ends.

Make hair from construction paper by cutting a series of two-inch wide paper strips in varying lengths — some longer for hair at the side, some shorter for hair at the top. Then cut one end of each strip and curl ends over a pencil. Attach curls piece by piece and trim along the edge of the head for a neat outline.

To make additional costume details experiment with ribbon and scraps of paper and yarn. For example, Dad gets a striped shirt of white ribbon or yarn on red paper. Cut out small circles of gift paper for buttons. Dress up Mom by banding her package with shiny gold ribbon.

To attach the head to its package, designers at American Greetings say to tape and mount it on the top of the box. One end of the tape should be on the top of the box and the other should extend up the back of the "head." The bottom of the face should come well below the top of the box to give the right balance for the head. Be sure to use enough tape so the head will stay on and upright.



TIFFANY-style lighting fixtures provide a unique gift idea. This reproduction of antique stained glass and brass produces a glow to warm any home this holiday season. Available in various styles and sizes at Litemart in the Grove Court shopping center, Buffalo Grove.

Varied customs highlight Greek Yule celebration

Christmas in Greece isn't Santa Claus or a lighted tree, but it is a time when children sing carols, when special foods are prepared, and ancient rituals observed.

Travelers in Greece for the 12 days of Christmas, particularly those visiting villages, will see and even participate in many traditional customs which include carol singing by young boys to the rhythmical accompaniment of small metal triangles and tiny clay drums. The carols tell of Christ's birth and also bring good wishes. The children receive buns, chestnuts and walnuts at each house.

In Greece there is a 40-day fast before the holiday so that Christmas Eve is a time of great preparation for breaking the fast. Everything focuses on the slaughter of the fattened pig, for pork is the staple dish at Christmas. At this time every housewife bakes a christopsomo or Christ-bread, sweet loaves of various shapes that have ornaments engraved on the crust representing some aspect of the family's life and profession.

For instance, a farmer's loaf is decorated with a plough and oxen, a wine barrel and a house; a shepherd's, with lambs, kids and a sheepfold. Special buns are baked for the cattle and hens and are given various shapes; the bun for the lamb and sheep is made like a harness, the one for cattle are crumbled and fed to them as a protection against illness.

Just as the American table is laid carefully with turkey, stuffing, cranberry sauce, sweet potatoes and other traditional foods, so is the Greek table. The Christmas loaf is first put down with a pot of honey and around this are scattered various dried fruits and nuts. Each family begins the meal with bread and honey followed by pork and other dishes which vary from region to region.

In many places the first slice from the Christmas loaf is given to the first beggar that stops by the house. The leftovers from the meal are considered sacred and are never thrown away, but are dedicated to vegetation. Often they are put into a small bag and taken to the fields and orchards and a handful thrown at the root of each tree.

Pouring oil or wine over the hearth is also a common custom, a survival from the libations of the ancient Greeks to the hearth symbolized by the goddess Hestia. In rural areas many customs center around securing a good crop for the farmer.

In Drymos, a village in Macedonia, the Christmas cake is placed in the middle of the table and covered with a plate filled with wheat grain, garlic, silver coins, pomegranates, dried fruit, grapes, watermelon, and a glass of wine in which the housewife dips buns.

The family and guests drink the wine first to wish each a good year. But actually the purpose of these practices is to protect the cattle from evil and ensure good crops and prosperity for the household. At this time the ploughshare is placed close to the hearth fire and the smoking embers used instead of incense to bless the Christmas loaf.

Some other customs that are not part of Western culture include the village women staying up all night in order to see the dawn, and they believe that any wish made at this time will come true. Water drawn from the fountain at dawn on Christmas Day is believed to have magical powers, and the yeast for the year's bread is kneaded with this water.

On Christmas, as on many feast days, the villagers seek to read the future. One of the most common methods is to take a handful of wheat grain or green leaves from an olive or walnut tree and throw them on the hot tiles of the hearth. The way in which the grains or leaves burst on contact with the heat indicates whether the person will live or leave the village.

A tale of roses

The legend of the Christmas rose goes like this:

A group of peasants was driven far into the forest where they had no Christmas preparations for the children.

During the night the entire forest took on a whitish glow. By morning the ground was covered with red roses.

How to trim your tree to last, keep you safe

That lovely Christmas tree, heavy with decorations and surrounded with colorfully wrapped gifts, is a potential killer. The National Safety Council says, "Even a small tree can turn your living room into a raging inferno in seconds."

The council recommends these safety guidelines:

- Buy a fresh tree; one that has springy branches, green and tight needles.
- Keep it outdoors in water or snow until ready to set up.
- Saw off at least two inches of trunk.
- Use a water reservoir tree holder and keep it filled.
- Keep the tree away from drying and heat sources such as radiators and fireplaces.
- Use only Underwriters' Laboratories labeled lights in good repair.
- Use fireproof decorations whenever possible.
- Do not place electrical toys beneath the tree.
- Remove the tree to the outdoors as soon as possible. Do not burn it or gift wrappings in the fireplace.

If you use a metallic tree, illuminate it with an off-tree spotlight. "Light strings on a metallic tree can electrocute you," the Council says.

The Council has this to say about flame retardant treatment for Christmas trees.

"Around this time of year we frequently learn of some well meaning agency recommending an easy, do it yourself treatment for rendering Christmas trees fire retardant. Usually the solution suggested is the borax boric acid compound.

"While this treatment is satisfactory when used for the temporary fire retarding of cellulosic fabrics such as cotton and rayon, according to the National Fire Protection Association, it is of little value when used on Christmas trees since the conifer needles do not soak up the chemicals as a fabric does nor can the needles be readily coated on all sides.

Save those receipts

THIS YEAR it's the sweater for that sure-to-please Christmas gift. Mike's Indian print wraparound shawl sweater is fashioned from machine washable Orlon. Find it at the Man's Shop in the Countryside Court, Mount Prospect.

That lovely Christmas tree, heavy with decorations and surrounded with colorfully wrapped gifts, is a potential killer. The National Safety Council says, "Even a small tree can turn your living room into a raging inferno in seconds."

The council recommends these safety guidelines:

- Buy a fresh tree; one that has springy branches, green and tight needles.
- Keep it outdoors in water or snow until ready to set up.
- Saw off at least two inches of trunk.
- Use a water reservoir tree holder and keep it filled.
- Keep the tree away from drying and heat sources such as radiators and fireplaces.
- Use only Underwriters' Laboratories labeled lights in good repair.
- Use fireproof decorations whenever possible.
- Do not place electrical toys beneath the tree.
- Remove the tree to the outdoors as soon as possible. Do not burn it or gift wrappings in the fireplace.

If you use a metallic tree, illuminate it with an off-tree spotlight. "Light strings on a metallic tree can electrocute you," the Council says.

The Council has this to say about flame retardant treatment for Christmas trees.

"Around this time of year we frequently learn of some well meaning agency recommending an easy, do it yourself treatment for rendering Christmas trees fire retardant. Usually the solution suggested is the borax boric acid compound.

"While this treatment is satisfactory when used for the temporary fire retarding of cellulosic fabrics such as cotton and rayon, according to the National Fire Protection Association, it is of little value when used on Christmas trees since the conifer needles do not soak up the chemicals as a fabric does nor can the needles be readily coated on all sides.

Save those receipts

A good rule to follow is to save all receipts, sales slips and price tags from your Christmas gift purchases. It makes exchanges easier.

THIS YEAR it's the sweater for that sure-to-please Christmas gift. Mike's Indian print wraparound shawl sweater is fashioned from machine washable Orlon. Find it at the Man's Shop in the Countryside Court, Mount Prospect.

Being Santa no easy job

The operator of a Santa Claus employment service says Santa Claus standards are higher each year.

There are black Santas, bilingual Santas and Santas of all sizes and shapes. This was stated by an agency that has placed more than four hundred Santas around the country over the years.

In an average day Santa may interview 1200 children. For the average $3 an hour they are paid, the fat, jolly gents that are hired are expected to work six days a week; avoid smoking and drinking like the plague; roll out the Santa spiel endlessly — and prepare for the worst.

College-age men make the best Santas because they get along best with children and can take the wear and tear. Santas are taught to handle children like fragile china, and to use the word 'folks' instead of mother or father, because so many children don't live with their original parents.

MAKE TWO important fashion points with her this Christmas and color them red, white and navy. Back-lastic fly front pants mix and match with the two-pocket blazer and scarf-tie shirt on the left or the jewel-neck soft jacket with cowl sweater. Either way, the crisp tailoring of supple, comfortable classics provides the bold, new lift she'll love for the holidays . . . from Jeanine's in Mount Prospect.

Looking glamorous for the coming holidays is for every woman, and those with a fuller figure are no exception.

At Fashions at Large we make it easier for the shopper who's looking for full-figure fashions because we carry only large-size clothing. And the selection for this season will really get you in the spirit.

Long skirts in fashionable plaids with matching jackets are only one of the party styles. For relaxed entertaining, you'll find a big assortment of party pants and tunic tops. If you prefer the peasant look of soft and ruffled femininity, you'll find it in muted prints and colors. Blacks and whites predominate this winter season, but pastels are popular, too. If you haven't visited either of our two locations before, you're in for a new experience. Owner Dorothy Robbins caters only to the large woman because she understands her needs. "Because of me, I'm thinking of you," Dorothy says. When you see Fashions at Large, you'll know you — and women like you — are at the heart of Dorothy's philosophy.

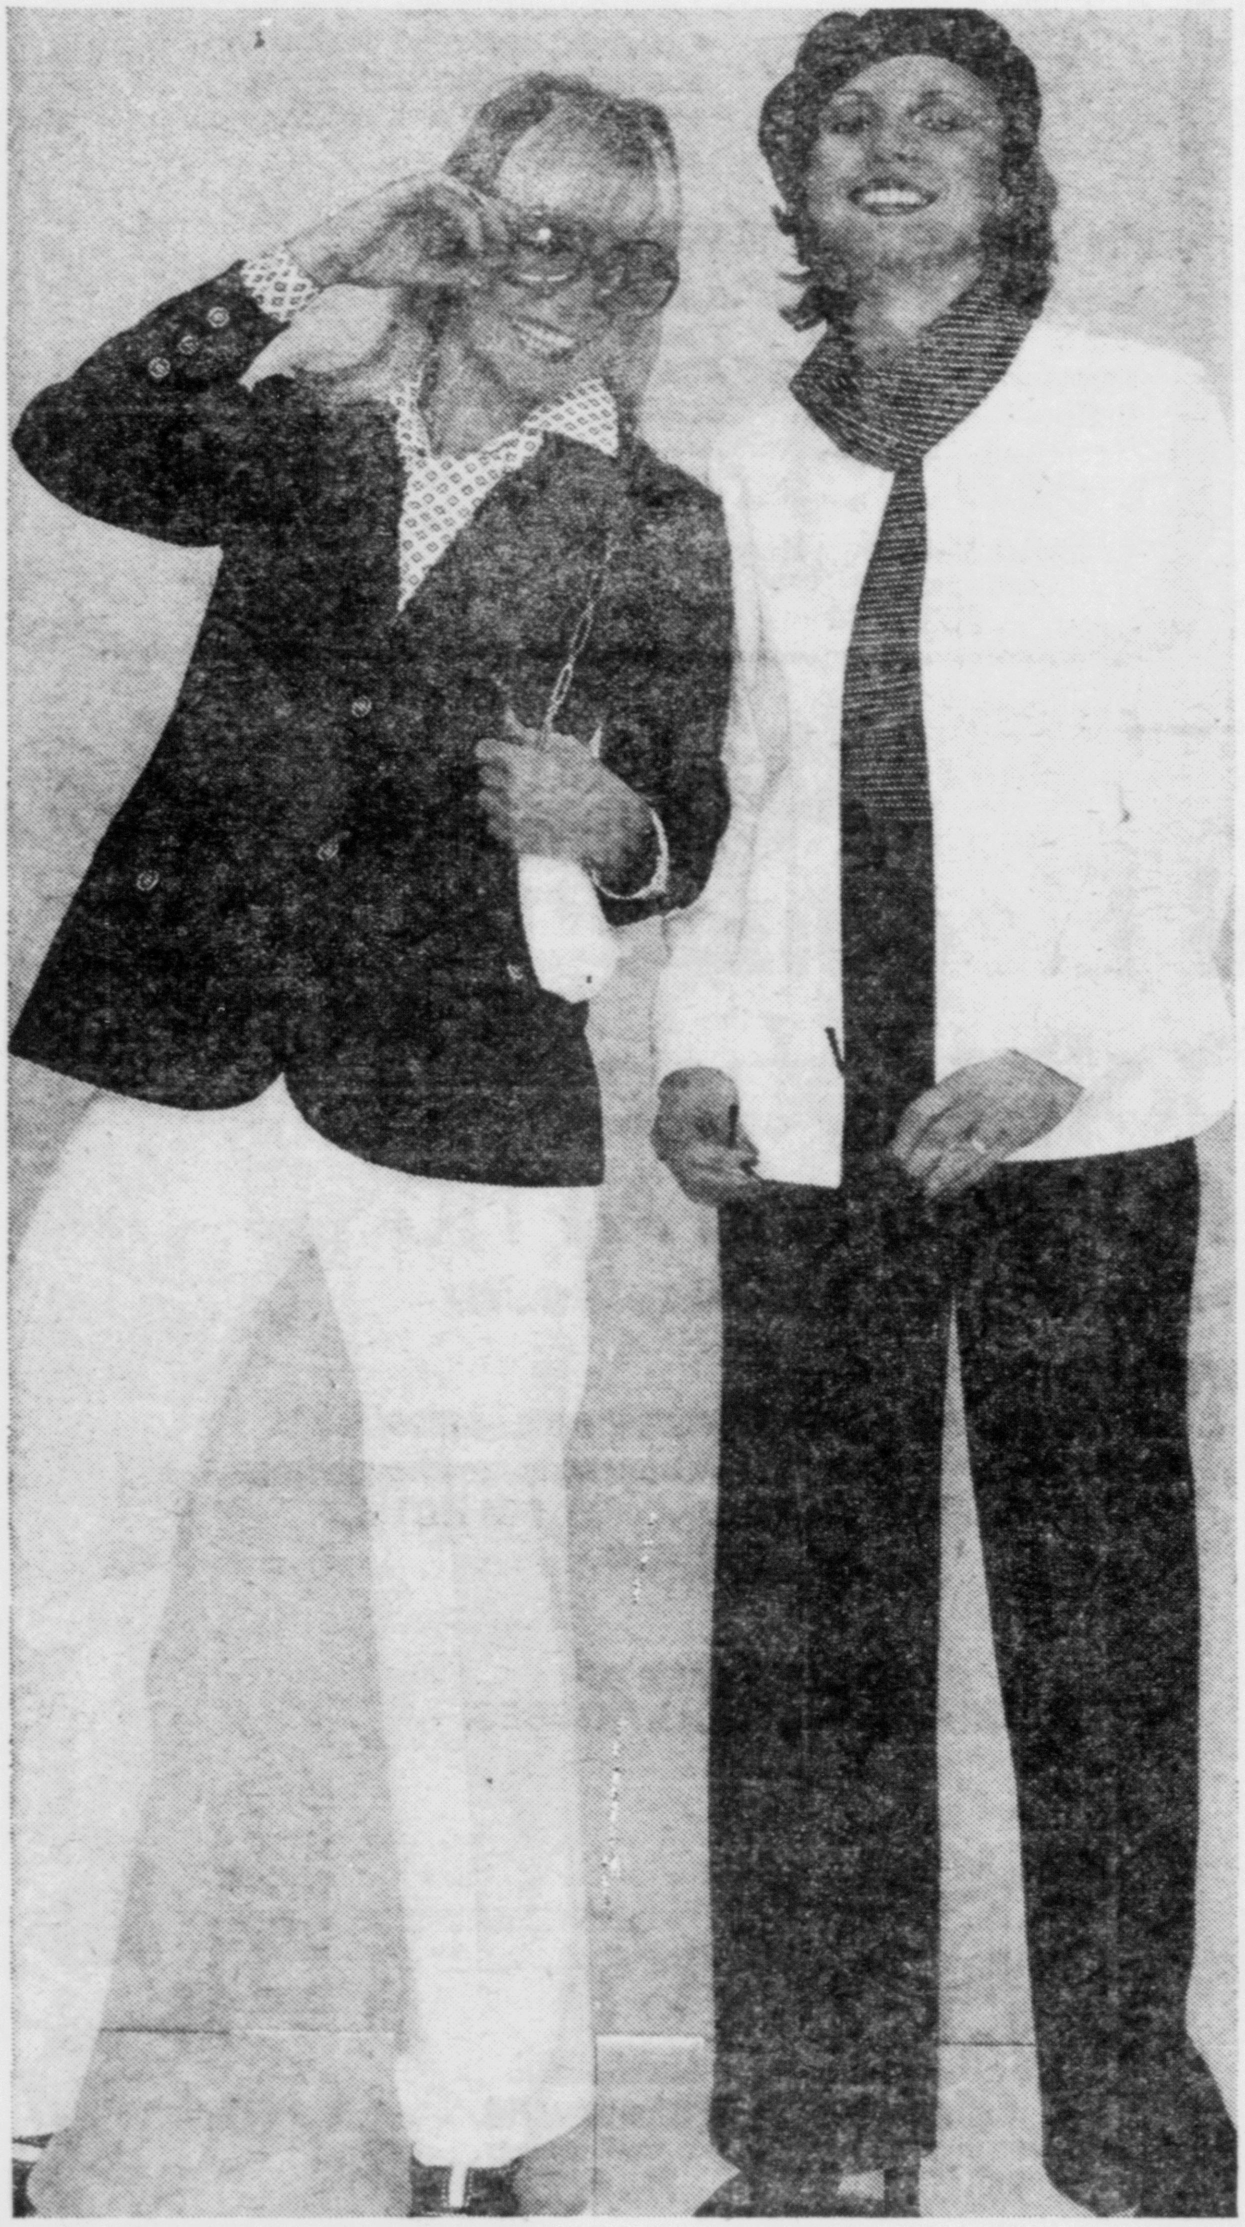
Being Santa no easy job

The operator of a Santa Claus employment service says Santa Claus standards are higher each year.

There are black Santas, bilingual Santas and Santas of all sizes and shapes. This was stated by an agency that has placed more than four hundred Santas around the country over the years.

In an average day Santa may interview 1200 children. For the average $3 an hour they are paid, the fat, jolly gents that are hired are expected to work six days a week; avoid smoking and drinking like the plague; roll out the Santa spiel endlessly — and prepare for the worst.

College-age men make the best Santas because they get along best with children and can take the wear and tear. Santas are taught to handle children like fragile china, and to use the word 'folks' instead of mother or father, because so many children don't live with their original parents.



MAKE TWO important fashion points with her this Christmas and color them red, white and navy. Back-lastic fly front pants mix and match with the two-pocket blazer and scarf-tie shirt on the left or the jewel-neck soft jacket with cowl sweater. Either way, the crisp tailoring of supple, comfortable classics provides the bold, new lift she'll love for the holidays . . . from Jeanine's in Mount Prospect.

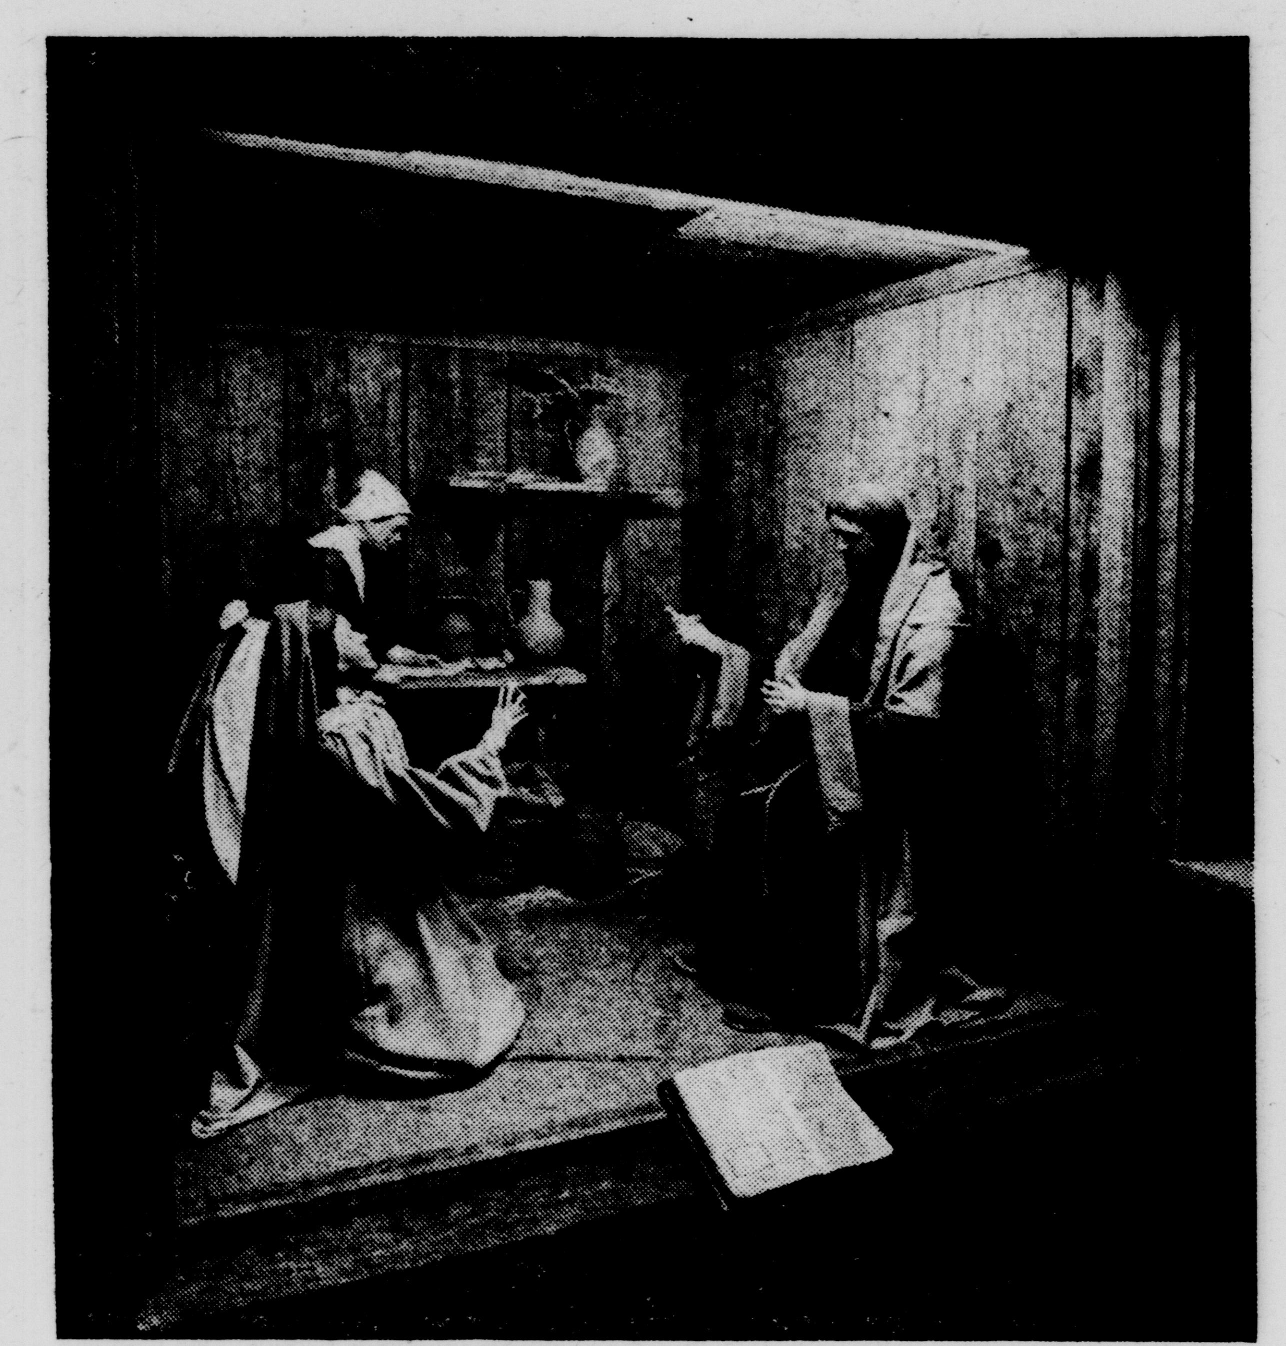
BRING the works of America's most beloved illustrator into your favorite person's home this holiday season by way of Don Burton Galleries in Long Grove. "The School Teacher" pictured here is just one of the many original Norman Rockwell lithographs and reproductions available.



FOUR GLASS CASES, each depicting a scene from the life of Jesus Christ, can be admired this holiday season in the Good Shepherd Chapel on the grounds of Charles Klehm and Son Nursery in Arlington Heights. The figures, made by Mrs. Geneva Todd, bring to life the greatest story ever told — Christ's birth in Bethlehem, His ministry, His work with little children and His appearance before the disciples after the crucifixion. Each figure is robed in hand-sewn costumes, set in scenes of the time.

VICTORY OVER DE FEET.

People these days do a lot of running around.

Sometimes for fun. But most of the time they're going someplace. Or coming home from same.

So along comes Puch with a great idea. A method of getting there and back that beats walking by a country mile because it's a lot more fun and doesn't cost a whole lot more.

A Puch has pedals for starting and a peppery little engine for zipping you around without blisters, bunions, or getting out of breath.

It travels at the rate of up to 150 miles per gallon. Starts at about $469. And goes for a long time with practically no maintenance at all.

Do something nice for your feet. Come in and ride a Puch today.

Christmas musical comedy held annually in Jamaica

As the curtain goes up at Kingston's Ward Theatre on the Christmas Pantomime this year, a wiry little guy in sagging tights and an oversized helmet will 'discover' Jamaica. He is the island's favorite comedian and he is going to play the title role in an original show called 'Hail Columbus.'

Jamaicans call their Christmas musical comedy the Pantomime (or Panto) because it was modeled after Britain's famous holiday pageants of that name. But in the 31 years of productions in Jamaica, the Panto has become totally Jamaican — written, staged, danced and performed by the highly talented members of the theatrical community. It's funny, topical, with bright music and brighter costumes and it's different every year.

The Panto, of course, is only one of the ways Jamaicans celebrate the Christmas season. The show is performed on the stage of the Ward Theatre in Kingston, while shows of other kinds are going on all around the island. The most familiar are the troupers of Jonkunnu dancers, who parade through the streets in elaborate masks to the music of fifes and drums.

They are usually in groups of six to ten, led by traditional characters: 'The King,' his 'Queen,' the 'Bull' and the 'Pitchy-Patch' — or 'Rag' Man. Jonkunnu — sometimes spelled John Canoe — is a legendary West Indian folk hero, probably from Africa, and music is a combination of early Jamaican, European and African.

During the Christmas season, which in the West Indies is celebrated for the full Old English twelve days, there are street dances, fireworks, traditional 'Jump-ups' and the very contemporary reggae, an irresistible dance beat that is as attractive to visitors as to locals and not at all hard to learn.

Vendors sell paper hats and feefees (whistles), braebrees (wooden rattles), toys and traditional sweets. There are carols sung everywhere, just as at home.

Christmas Day is a bit more sedate but on Boxing Day — another derivative from England — gifts are opened and the Panto raises the curtain on Miz Lou and Ranny for the new show.

Oddly enough, during this tropical style Christmas, the whole island is aflame with scarlet poinsettia, growing wild at every turn of the road.

"BUSY MUSICAL Moving Picture Block" by Gabriel . . . is not just your basic child's block. This one's a tote-along musical story-book in a cube, featuring four Mother Goose pictures that actually move. The cow really does jump over the moon. At the same time, the whole block rotates in tune on any level surface, presenting new nursery rhyme scenes as it turns. There's a built-in carry handle, and the sturdy winder has a center portion little fingers can turn.

Daisy TOY SAFE

FOR A BANG-UP time this Christmas, Daisy suggests this five-piece toy gun set for children 4 to 7. Playing cowboys has been a favorite pastime for generations and this set will help the fun by providing a 28-inch replica carbine, leather holster, pistol, two metal jailer keys and sheriff's badge.

Treat your tree with special care

Many measures of safety seem obvious enough, but easy to overlook in the excitement of the season.

Don't keep your Christmas tree in the house too long; once it has become dry, it is a very dangerous article.

Prolong the freshness of the tree by leaving it outside until you are ready to decorate it and be sure it is put in a stand that holds plenty of water. Don't place the tree near sources of heat — fire places, stoves, television sets, radiators or electric lights, which can cause it to dry faster.

Check the wiring on your lights carefully, and don't use lights with frayed wires or loose connections.

Beware of fireproofing sprays, they may not be effective unless used in very large quantities, and perhaps not then.

Never, never allow candles on, or near your Christmas tree. Use non-flammable decorations of glass or metal, approved lights and fire treated materials on and around the tree. Remember that decorations and lights present hazards to children and pets.

Holly legends

Two kinds of holly are native to the British Isles, the prickly and the smooth. These once were called "he" and "she" varieties.

Natives believed that if the prickly variety first was brought into the home at Christmas, the husband would rule supreme during the ensuing year. If the smooth entered first, it would be the woman ruling the homefront.

FRAN TARKENTON'S Pass Play is this year's new concept in football training. It is designed to improve passing and catching techniques for youngsters. Fonas Corp., the Good Sports, developed this device "with a memory." When a perfect spiral pass is thrown, that's just what comes back. The ball, which is made of expanded polyurethane and is 80% of N.F.L. size, has a pigskin texture and realistic football color. The ball is attached to a cord and swivel clip that can be snapped to an eye hook or rope attachment on a tree, garage or backyard swing set stand.

Greek lore tells of goblins, spirits

Among the most fascinating of Greek folklore customs from ancient times is the appearance of the Kallikantzaroi during the twelve days of Christmas from December 24 to January 6.

Who are the Kallikantzaroi? They are a species of goblins or spirits who appear from the earth's center and slip into people's houses through the chimney to pester the inhabitants in every imaginable way.

Popular imagination has given them varied descriptions. Some say they look like humans but are very tall and wear iron clogs; others believe them to have red eyes and a monkey's body.

According to Nicholas Politis, the pioneer of Greek folklore research, the Kallikantzaroi are a creation of neo-Hellenic mythology originating from the fact that the time of their appearance has always been a period of intensive masquerading, and that masqueraders were known to frighten and pester people.

It is also thought that there is some relation between the Kallikantzaroi and the souls of the dead who are commonly believed to return among the living for a short while each year. In ancient times the Athenians used to surround their temples with a red threat thus making a magic circle which the souls of the dead could not cross.

Fear of these spirits gives rise today to similar protective measures. The lower jaw of a pig (which is believed to have special powers) is hung behind the front door or inside the chimney or a handful of salt or an old shoe is thrown into the fireplace. The bursting noise and smell from burnt leather are believed to keep the goblins away.

In some villages it is the custom to hang a tuft of tangled flax over the door, and by the time the Kallikantzaroi have finished untangling the flax and counting the threads, the cock crows and the sun scatters the spirits of darkness. Some villagers prefer to coax them away with sweets and honey cakes.

The principal means of keeping them away from the home is a fire which burns in the hearth day and night for twelve days. On Christmas Eve a large log from a thorny tree (prickly pear or wild cherry) is cut and this is known as the Twelve-Day log. Certain wild plants such as asparagus, pine and thistle which make loud bursting noises are also thrown into the fire.

In many villages people never go out into the street without a candle or torch. But the only truly effective means of dispersing these spirits is the blessing of the waters at the Epiphany. Then all the evil spirits scuttle away quickly pursued by the priest's sprinkler — a cluster of sweet basil dipped in holy water.

Then the Kallikantzaroi must return to middle earth where for the rest of the year they work to cut away the tree which supports the earth. By the time they have nearly completed this feat, Christ is born, the tree grows anew and the spirits leap to the surface of earth in a rage. Thus continues an ancient myth in modern times.

Greek lore tells of goblins, spirits

Among the most fascinating of Greek folklore customs from ancient times is the appearance of the Kallikantzaroi during the twelve days of Christmas from December 24 to January 6.

Who are the Kallikantzaroi? They are a species of goblins or spirits who appear from the earth's center and slip into people's houses through the chimney to pester the inhabitants in every imaginable way.

Popular imagination has given them varied descriptions. Some say they look like humans but are very tall and wear iron clogs; others believe them to have red eyes and a monkey's body.

According to Nicholas Politis, the pioneer of Greek folklore research, the Kallikantzaroi are a creation of neo-Hellenic mythology originating from the fact that the time of their appearance has always been a period of intensive masquerading, and that masqueraders were known to frighten and pester people.

It is also thought that there is some relation between the Kallikantzaroi and the souls of the dead who are commonly believed to return among the living for a short while each year. In ancient times the Athenians used to surround their temples with a red threat thus making a magic circle which the souls of the dead could not cross.

Fear of these spirits gives rise today to similar protective measures. The lower jaw of a pig (which is believed to have special powers) is hung behind the front door or inside the chimney or a handful of salt or an old shoe is thrown into the fireplace. The bursting noise and smell from burnt leather are believed to keep the goblins away.

In some villages it is the custom to hang a tuft of tangled flax over the door, and by the time the Kallikantzaroi have finished untangling the flax and counting the threads, the cock crows and the sun scatters the spirits of darkness. Some villagers prefer to coax them away with sweets and honey cakes.

The principal means of keeping them away from the home is a fire which burns in the hearth day and night for twelve days. On Christmas Eve a large log from a thorny tree (prickly pear or wild cherry) is cut and this is known as the Twelve-Day log. Certain wild plants such as asparagus, pine and thistle which make loud bursting noises are also thrown into the fire.

In many villages people never go out into the street without a candle or torch. But the only truly effective means of dispersing these spirits is the blessing of the waters at the Epiphany. Then all the evil spirits scuttle away quickly pursued by the priest's sprinkler — a cluster of sweet basil dipped in holy water.

Then the Kallikantzaroi must return to middle earth where for the rest of the year they work to cut away the tree which supports the earth. By the time they have nearly completed this feat, Christ is born, the tree grows anew and the spirits leap to the surface of earth in a rage. Thus continues an ancient myth in modern times.

Schaumburg Mattress Factory

HOW TO SHOP FOR A MATTRESS

1. Pay attention to all the radio and TV ads by the big name manufacturers. Each one will tell you what famous medical group or orthopedic society or surgical committee designed that particular mattress.

2. Go to a retail store and find the famous Bleepy "This A Pedic" or the Blurpo "Bumpy Rest" and poke it with your fingers. Use all four fingers because you can't really tell how it feels by poking with just two fingers.

3. By all means do not lie down on it because you might be a little embarrassed to have people see you lying on a mattress in a real store. Besides, that way you can get a bigger surprise the first time you try to sleep on it.
Anyway, if it's one of those Pedic kinds, the salesman would probably just as soon you wouldn't find out how hard it really is.

4. Don't act shocked when the salesman tells you the King size set is only $500.00. After all, the super deluxe model is only $50.00 or $100.00 more.

5. Before you make a final decision, go to the Schaumburg Mattress Factory. We have a small showroom in the front of the factory, and we want our customers to lie down on our comfortable mattresses. And if you just happen to doze off for awhile, we won't even bother you — until closing time of course.

HOW TO SHOP FOR A MATTRESS

1. Pay attention to all the radio and TV ads by the big name manufacturers. Each one will tell you what famous medical group or orthopedic society or surgical committee designed that particular mattress.
2. Go to a retail store and find the famous Bleepy "This A Pedic" or the Blurpo "Bumpy Rest" and poke it with your fingers. Use all four fingers because you can't really tell how it feels by poking with just two fingers.
3. By all means do not lie down on it because you might be a little embarrassed to have people see you lying on a mattress in a real store. Besides, that way you can get a bigger surprise the first time you try to sleep on it. Anyway, if it's one of those Pedic kinds, the salesman would probably just as soon you wouldn't find out how hard it really is.
4. Don't act shocked when the salesman tells you the King size set is only $500.00. After all, the super deluxe model is only $50.00 or $100.00 more.
5. Before you make a final decision, go to the Schaumburg Mattress Factory. We have a small showroom in the front of the factory, and we want our customers to lie down on our comfortable mattresses. And if you just happen to doze off for awhile, we won't even bother you — until closing time of course.

The Little Old Mattress Maker

Don't forget — we also sell Hollywood Headboards and Frames.

KRUPS "FAST Touch Coffee Mill" will be well-received by the coffee connoisseur. The oval shape results in more even grinding, less waste and a wider choice of grind selection . . . from coarse to ultra-fine in 10 to 15 seconds. Krups Fast Touch Coffee Mill has a stainless steel cutting blade and grinding receptacle. A quiet powerful motor grinds up to three ounces and also grinds spices, breadcrumbs and nuts. Its dimensions . . . 3¾" x 3⅛" x 6¹/₁₆" . . . allow this coffee mill to fit into the most limited space.

RECREATE the rustic setting of the old West with Lincoln Logs Double L Ranch. All the ranch buildings are there for young cowpokes to build, including the bunk house and lookout tower. Build a ranch house or stable or fenced-in corral — or whatever kind of structure they want! The Double L Ranch set includes wood logs, roofs, gables and chimneys, plus decorated woodboard pieces to "pretty-up" the place. The pieces of the Double L Ranch set can be combined with regular Lincoln Logs sets for extra special playtime fun. Available from Playskool.

BOYS AND LIBERATED girls will enjoy the authenticity of this Allis-Chalmers Combine replica from the Ertl Company. It features a fully operational grainhead with rotating auger and reel, grain hopper and movable grain spout.

Garden fans like presents for use in hobby

What gardeners wouldn't be pleased with a gift that will help prevent tired, aching backs? A well-balanced, high-wheel lawn cart will take much of the drudgery out of pushing a wheelbarrow. A rotary tiller or a new light weight chain saw is a labor saver.

Less costly work saving gifts are: garden knee pads, soil soaker, bulb planter, lawn edger, hose hanger or reel.

Magazines help gardeners keep up-to-date on new techniques and are a source of information on where to buy plants and garden supplies not available locally. Some of the very best gardening publications are the least expensive. Handbooks of the Brooklyn Botanic Garden, for example, are unsurpassed and should be a must for every gardener.

Gifts to brighten up the lawn, garden or patio are always pleasing. A 12 volt outdoor lighting system will give the garden a new look, as well as a fountain or waterfall kits, or a bronze sun dial, trellis, patio torch, or a set of redwood planter boxes.

Birds are a delightful part of any garden. They can be attracted with a bird feeder, Martin house, or no-freeze bird bath. One of the books on housing and feeding is a fine gift, including one that lists plants to grow for birds.

Paper collage fun to design

Probably the most fun of all the arts and crafts, especially for amateurs, is paper collage: pictures or designs made of cutout paper pasted on a backboard. If you draw well, you can make pictures; if not, stick to designs.

The fun lies not only in manipulating bits of colored paper till they form a pattern that's pleasing to the eye, but also in finding the paper to use. You never know when one will pop up: in a Christmas card, a gift wrapping, a page in a magazine, a label on a soup can. And at this time of year, particularly, you can buy paper with all sorts of interesting colors and textures.

Pleasure, freedom, freshness: these are the essence of collage.

OPEN EVENINGS AND SUNDAYS 'TIL CHRISTMAS

Cakes improve with age

Fruitcakes made early may be served Thanksgiving, though the rich fruit laden cake will be better if aged for a few weeks. Baking fruitcakes early allows time for the rich flavor, which makes them a glory of American cookery, to age. Fruitcakes are a heritage from the English cookery, but Americans have changed them, altered and adapted. No American food commands quite the esteem of a fine homemade fruitcake.

Even a novice can bake a fruitcake if he or she can follow a good recipe. Texture among fruits is not all that important, so a minor error in measuring or mixing may not show, as in a layer cake. A fruitcake is heavy by nature, so you can hardly overbeat or underbeat.

The major hazard of fruitcakes is their tendency to scorch. They are baked at low temperatures, and it is wise to have your oven checked before baking fruitcakes. They should be baked in pans heavily lined with paper or placed over a pan of hot water in the oven. If tops brown too rapidly, insulate them with a loose sheet of foil.

Beware of over-baking. A cake tester or skewer inserted in the center will come out free of unbaked dough, but distinctly moist or sticky, when the cake is done. Don't bake a fruitcake until the tester comes out dry.

Fruitcakes are finally glorified by soaking them with brandy, bourbon, port or other sweet wine. Sprinkle the cooled fruitcake with your choice of spirits, wrap it in cheesecloth soaked with the spirits, then wrap in foil or plastic film, or store in a tightly covered tin. Let it age until Christmas, unwrapping and remoistening every couple of weeks.

To bake fruitcakes any kind of pan which is not too shallow may be used. However, it is difficult to remove fruitcakes from a bundt pan without crumbling. Coffee cans or clean fruit cans may be used. Grease the pans thoroughly and line with waxed paper or flour lightly. Fill pans no more than ¾ full. Spread batter evenly with a rubber spatula, but do not pack.

Preheat oven to 275 degrees and place a shallow pan of hot water on lowest rack. Arrange fruitcakes on center rack, spacing them so pans do not touch each other or sides of oven.

HER HEART will skip a beat when she finds Baby Heartbeat under the tree. Children can listen to the real sounding "heartbeat" of this newborn doll with a special "stethoscope," or take her temperature with a safe "thermometer." Sitting, her temperature is 104. When she's put to bed, it drops to 98.6. The 13" doll has rooted hair and soft skin, from Kenner.

WARM THE COCKLES of his heart with a Weber BBQ kettle, or one of the many accessories offered in this unique cooking system. The gas, electric, charcoal and little "Smokey Joe" kettles are available at Robert F. Krug in Park Ridge. The Weber accessory kit comes complete with charcoal rails, roast holder, tool and grill holder and drip pans ... all in one gift box. For the serious outdoor chef, check out the rib rack, corn and tator rack, hickory chunks, Wok pan, condiment holder and BBQ covers.

Shop the sales after Christmas

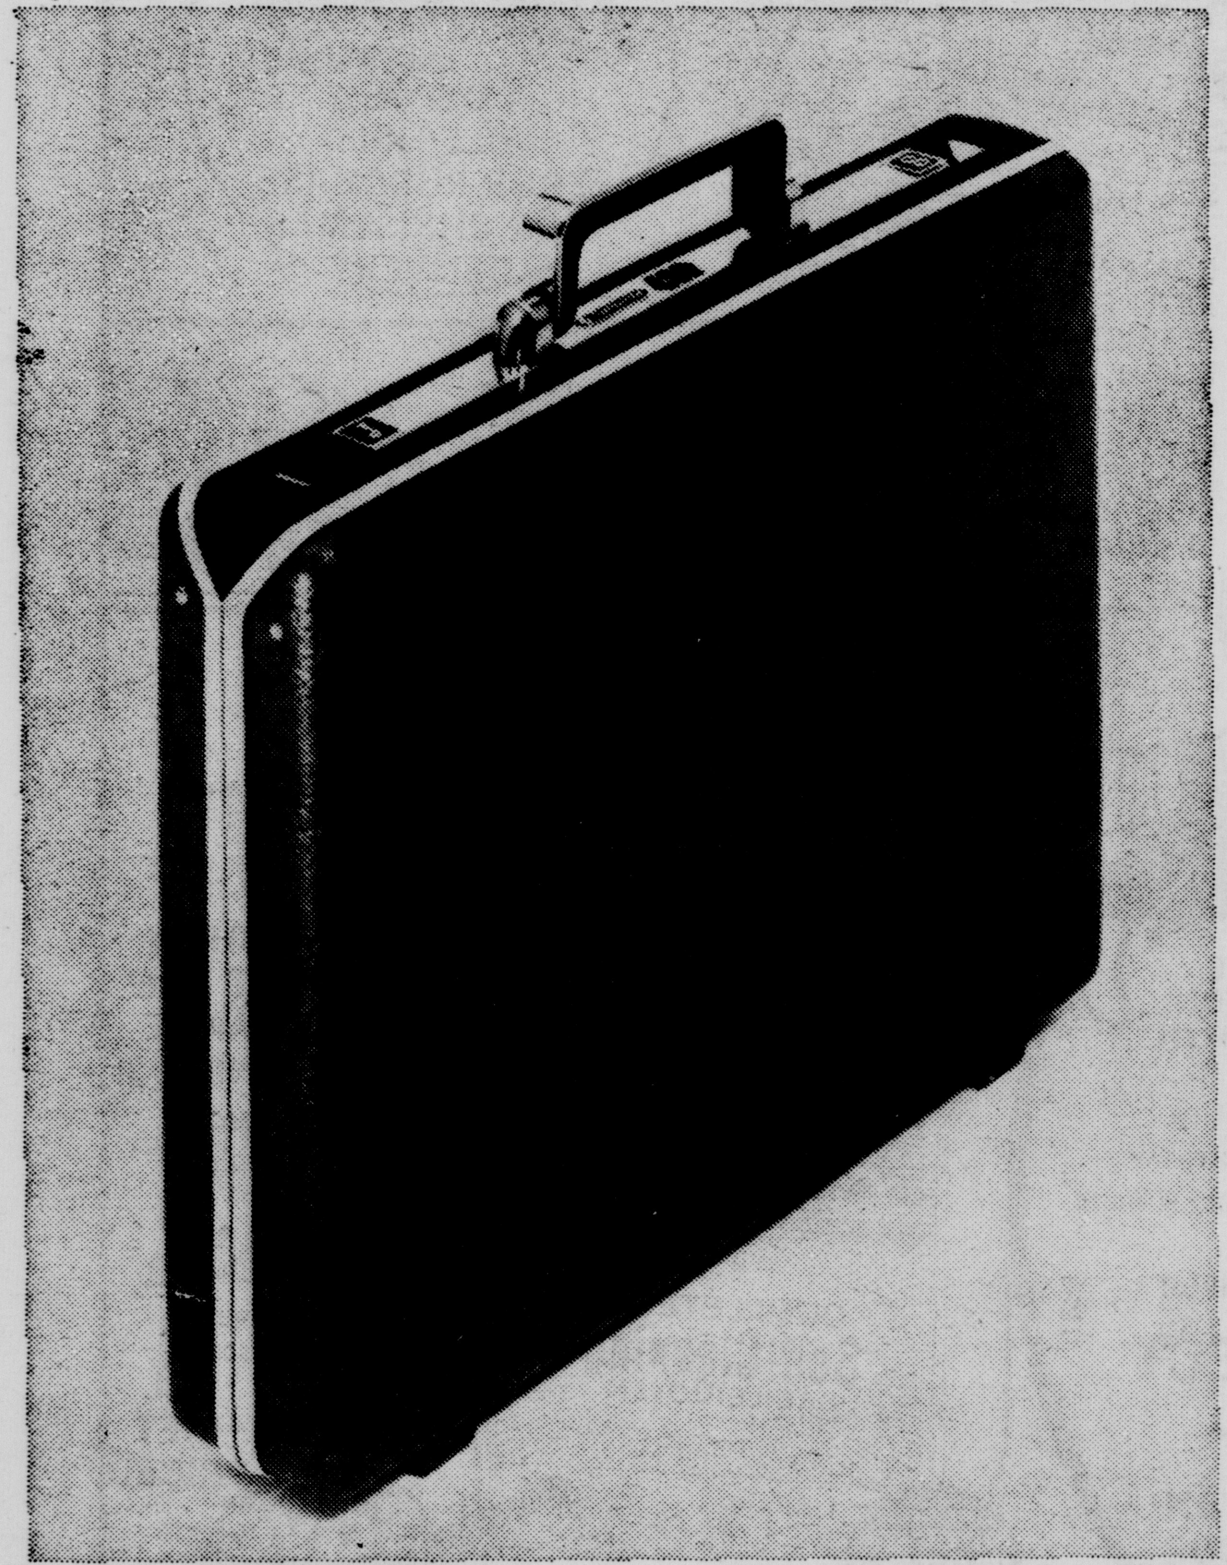
After Christmas is an ideal time to buy things you need. It is also an excellent time to buy Christmas toys, Christmas cards and Christmas wrappings.

A basic money saving guide to keep in mind lies in taking advantage of the post-Christmas clearances. This is when the stores clear out what's left of their Christmas stock to make way for fresh merchandise. If you know you'll need gifts, try to stock up now and save time as well as money.

It's a great time to find real bargains in the stores in costume jewelry, bicycles, men's shirts, radios, phonographs — many other treasured and traditional Christmas gifts — those which millions of Americans paid all-time high prices for shortly before Christmas.

The Potter's Pleasure

STOCKING STUFFERS to satisfy your little elf's sweet tooth are from Potter's Pleasure at Haeger Pottery, Dundee. Choose from a wide assortment of quality candies or enjoy a pick-me-up of steaming coffee, tea or hot chocolate or refreshing frozen yogurt during your shopping visit.



THE LAST WORD in business cases is "Omega" by Samsonite for a functional gift for the business person in your life. Distinctive in appearance, incomparable in organization, the sleek hard-side exterior features innovative recessed slide locking mechanism, cushion-comfort handle and personal combination lock. High-performance interior provides the ultimate in functional aids including a handy step-down portfolio; large expandable front pocket; compartments for business cards, airline tickets and important papers; as well as a separate space for a calculator or dictating machine. And, Samsonite's exclusive "right-side-up" feature helps prevent accidental spilling of contents.

Living, loving holiday gifts.

Systemark by Parker brings a new look and feel to writing.

The unique Systemark Floating Ball point lets you glide freely across the page with a crisp line of slick, glistening liquid ink (not the thick paste ink used in ordinary ballpoints). It adds dash and verve to your handwriting.

You can feel the Systemark difference in two other points: a fine-line Stylus or a bold, long-lasting Super Soft Tip. A touch better gift, too! At $5, $10 and $20.

PARKER

Try Systemark: the touch of tomorrow.

Hot Tomato
Hot Tomato
Hot Tomato

THE GAME of mad hops and crazy bounces from Parker Brothers makes a great gift for your excitement seekers. Be quick with your hands and keep your eyes on the Hot Tomato to earn the most points. Players use one finger at a time to hit the paddle key, trying to move the fickle tomato to the opponent's side. It curves and bounces every which way — never in a straight line — and the game's not over until the last bounce. Easy to assemble, it will be enjoyed by ages 6 to 12.

How to plant living trees

For a living Christmas tree, tubbed or balled, a generous hole should be dug ahead of time, the soil enriched and kept from freezing. The tree itself should be sprayed with an antidrying ingredient or otherwise kept moist while in the house.

After planting outdoors stake it and mulch the soil at least six inches deep not only over the ball but a foot or two around the tree. If you can't plant it until early spring, the best location is outdoors in a corner protected from the sun and wind. Soak the ball or tub and mound leaves over it to keep the roots from freezing.

Some people have even carried it over in a very cool basement. Firs are better than spruces as they retain their needles better.

SIXTEEN "MAKE and play" toy items guarantee that SKILCRAFT Corp's. new activity set, the Woodshop Toymaker, will be a sure winner with young boys and girls. Besides the fun of making and decorating the toy projects — such as a dump truck, earthmover, airplane, jeep and sailboat — children can spend countless hours of imaginative play with them. Forty-two pieces of cedarwood come in the Woodshop Toymaker set, along with iron-on transfer blueprints to simplify pattern layout. Also included are a hammer, handsaw, coping saw frame with two blades, ruler, nails, sandpaper, and eight watercolor paints and a brush for painting the finished toy projects.

NEW! STATE-OF-THE-ART RECEIVERS FROM YAMAHA

Since 1887 YAMAHA has been making some of the finest musical instruments in the world. Pianos, organs, guitars, woodwinds, and brass. With their musical instruments, they have defined the standards in the production of fine sound. And today, with their line of state-of-the-art components, are defining the standard of their reproduction.

However, at one time, owning a YAMAHA stereo system tended to be a rather expensive proposition. Their "ultimate" system, for example, hailed by the critics for such innovations as Vertical-FET circuitry and berryllium dome speakers, carried a suggested retail price of over $7,000.00.

But now, YAMAHA introduces a new selection of stereo components which allows us to offer complete YAMAHA systems for around $600.00.

yamaha receivers:

You'll enjoy brilliant tonality resulting from super-low distortion — 0.05% intermodulation and total harmonic distortion. (These figures are amazing, considering most other receivers are typically .5% to 1.0%!)

Most interesting is the fact that there is no need to purchase their most expensive receiver to get their low distortion and essential features. All YAMAHA receivers have the same low distortion and features necessary for the more discriminating listener, as well as recording buffs. For example, all four receivers shown include a continuously variable loudness control as opposed to the more common in/out loudness switch. Most in/out loudness controls (used at lower listening levels) produce a boomy, juke-box type bass response. The use of a variable loudness control significantly enhances music reproduction by permitting you to better compensate for listening deficiencies at lower listening levels.

Record Out as well as input selectors are also included in all four Yamaha receivers. The record out selector is an extra convenience for tape enthusiasts. You can record any source while listening to another. For example, copy a tape or disc at the same time you're enjoying an FM program. When you're in the mood to play recording engineer, you can use all the tone controls and filters to compensate for poor quality sound sources.

NOTE: LOWER DISTORTION, variable loudness and record out selectors are only three of the reasons you'll find so many other receivers at bargain prices. Its all a matter of technology.

You'll find all Yamaha receivers as well as their tape decks, turntables and speaker systems on display at all Hi Fi Hutch home entertainment centers.

Popular popcorn balls are easy

One of the most popular Christmas candies is the popcorn ball: round and delicious, although sometimes a real challenge to the teeth.

But such Christmas sweets are fun to make. Get together with the kids and try it. Here are all the ingredients you need.

POPCORN BALLS

1½ cups of popcorn
4 tablespoons of butter or oleomargarine
⅓ cup of water
1 cup of sugar
⅓ cup of corn syrup
1 teaspoon of salt
1 teaspoon of vanilla

First, of course, make the popcorn. The amount of unpopped popcorn indicated will make about seven cups of popped corn, anywhere from 12 to 15 popcorn balls. Set the popcorn aside for a second in a large bowl.

In a saucepan, mix the butter (or oleomargarine), water, sugar, corn syrup and salt. Cook this over a medium heat until (via your own testing method) a few drops form a hard ball when dropped into cold water. Remove from heat.

Then stir in the vanilla, pouring it in a thin stream over the popped corn and stirring constantly to mix well. Shape the popcorn into balls with buttered hands and set the balls down on waxed paper to cool for awhile.

Soon the popcorn balls will be ready for consumption.

By merely straightening a paper clip, you can create a tree decoration. Push one hooked end of a paper clip into the popcorn ball for a hanger. The other end can hang from the tree branches.

Reg, green and yellow cellophane paper is perfect for making party favors or surprise treats out of the popcorn balls. Merely cut out a piece of the cellophane in a square which wraps nicely around the entire ball, then tie one end with colorful ribbon.

Communities display tree

The custom of the Community Christmas Tree began in the early 1900's with the people of Pasadena, Calif., who decorated a tall evergreen on Mount Wilson with lights and tinsel.

Madison Square in New York and the Common in Boston were the scene of trees set up in 1912. In 1914 Independence Square in Philadelphia had its first holiday tree.

Around each of these trees choirs gathered and sang carols.

You've never bought meat like this before.

Never. We're the Chicago Beef Co. We feel our meat is the finest restaurant quality beef you can buy. Yet at much less than restaurant prices. It comes from the best beef cattle. Corn fed and pampered. Each cut is guaranteed to be bright and finely textured, marbled and flavorful and very, very tender.

But we don't stop there. Our beef is portion controlled. You never buy too much or too little. So there's no waste, no excess fat, no gristle. And we vacuum seal it for quality and fresh, full beef flavor.

And we tell you how to prepare it. With each piece of meat, we include cooking instructions to help you make the best even better. And finally we guarantee it. If you don't think every bite is every bit as good as we say it is, just return the label and we'll give you your money back.

The Chicago Beef Co. We do all this because it's in our best interest for you to know as much about great quality beef as possible. After all, that's what we have to sell. You've never bought meat like this before.

But we don't stop there. Our beef is portion controlled. You never buy too much or too little. So there's no waste, no excess fat, no gristle. And we vacuum seal it for quality and fresh, full beef flavor.

And we tell you how to prepare it. With each piece of meat, we include cooking instructions to help you make the best even better. And finally we guarantee it. If you don't think every bite is every bit as good as we say it is, just return the label and we'll give you your money back.

The Chicago Beef Co. We do all this because it's in our best interest for you to know as much about great quality beef as possible. After all, that's what we have to sell. You've never bought meat like this before.

More than three billion cards exchanged at Christmas

Most of the traditions of the Christmas season have evolved over the centuries from so many obscure sources and different cultures that their exact origins are almost impossible to trace.

But there is one outstanding exception: the exchange of greeting cards. This social custom, which is now almost universally observed, is one of the youngest of our holiday traditions.

The very first card, authorities now agree, is the celebrated Cole-Horsley, designed and printed in London in 1843. Only a dozen of the original 1,000 copies are known to exist and two of these, including the only unsigned and unposted specimen, are part of the Hallmark Historical Collection, the world's largest private repository of greeting cards and related memorabilia.

When not on display in museums and similar institutions, the collection is filed in a specially-constructed vault at Hallmark Cards in Kansas City, Mo.

Sir Henry Cole, a wealthy London gentleman, and founder of the Victoria and Albert Museum, asked his friend, John C. Horsley, noted artist and member of the Royal Academy, to design the now-famous card as an unusual means of expressing his kind wishes to friends at the holiday season.

This was the golden age of Christmas in England, a time when the holidays were observed with greater reverence and more elaborate celebrations than in any period before or since.

The personal exchange of good wishes, visiting homes to toast a friend's good health, carol-singing, bringing in the Yule log, and great family dinners were all in vogue.

The year that Sir Henry's card appeared, incidentally, was also the year in which another of his friends, Charles Dickens, published "A Christmas Carol," the immortal story of Ebenezer Scrooge, Bob Cratchit and Tiny Tim.

The first Christmas card had three panels. The large center panel showed a family dinner gathering and the two side panels illustrated the still popular holiday charities of feeding the hungry and clothing the needy. Beneath the illustrations was the universal greeting: "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

An American antiquarian and international authority on greeting cards, Carroll A. Means, of Woodbridge, Conn., was instrumental in the research that proved the Cole-Horsley to be the first Christmas card. In 1959, Means was commissioned to institute a search for copies of the original.

That year he traced one specimen through the family of Sir Rowland Hill, founder of penny postage in England, and two years later, Means brought the second Cole-Horsley to this country, the unsigned specimen.

Christmas cards were first offered "to the trade" by an English publishing house in the 1860's. They carried such designs as jolly old gentlemen (who might have been the forebears of Santa Claus), plum puddings, holly and mistletoe.

At this point, the production of cards coincided with use of ornamental paper and color reliefs. They were usually either lithographed in copper-plate engravings or colored by hand, as was the Cole-Horsley Lithographs were crudely stenciled in color, cut out and pasted on the cards, and plain embossed reliefs were tinted. The cards attest to the Victorian trend toward embellishment. "Frosting" was a new method of decoration.

It was originally produced by a substance made from fine glass blown into bubbles and then burst.

At the end of the 19th Century, a decoration known as "jeweling" became popular. This effect was obtained from a thin film of copper which was heated after being chemically treated.

Lace paper was also used extensively. And ultimately, just about every other means of decoration was used including natural grass, seaweed, dried flowers, crewel-work, velvet and chenille, and anything else that could be adhered to paper.

The first Christmas cards were introduced in America in 1875 by Louis Prange of Boston, a German immigrant. They were much admired at the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition and proved to be an immediate success.

Except for a brief period in the early 1900's when post cards enjoyed a spate of popularity, the exchange of greeting cards, and especially Christmas greetings, has developed steadily in this country into an established social custom.

In recent years, an estimated three billion cards are sent each Christmas season in America. These gay missives, composed of myriads of color, design and expression, play an important role in creating annually the festive spirit of the holiday season at home and also serve to reunite distant friends and relatives.

THE DAISY Christmas kid — A rootin' tootin' cowboy play set, the Daisy Kid comes equipped with a double set of 7½-inch single shot die cast metal cap pistols. In an eye-catching package, all that's needed is a ribbon bow to make it ready for Christmas morning. Genuine leather holsters in either russet or black add to the set's appeal, and Daisy, Subsidiary of Walter Kidde & Company Inc. rounds out the combo with a cotton bandana, leather cuffs with rawhide thongs and a holster belt.

Party idea for tots

For a children's holiday party make festive place cards by covering paper cups with green crepe paper. Turn them upside down and cut a hole large enough to insert a candy cane.

Drape tinsel around the top and paste the child's name on the side.

SNO-THROS

Where Winter comes on strong, Ariens comes on stronger

. . . with eight two-stage walk behind Sno-Thros to choose from. Simple to operate and easy to maneuver, all will chew into snow and throw it up to 25 feet away. Low speeds are great for heavy, wet snows while high speeds make short work of light, dry snowfalls.

Pre-season sale prices are now in effect thru November 30, 1977. Prices start at $349.95 for the 270SC 2.7 H.P., 20" width subcompact, elec. start optional.

Also available:

4 H.P., 20" clearing width
5 H.P., 20" clearing width
6 H.P., 24" clearing width
7 H.P., 24" clearing width
8 H.P., 24" clearing width
8 H.P., 32" clearing width, deluxe
10 H.P., 32" clearing width, deluxe

All Sno-Thros set up and delivered, ready to go at no extra charge.

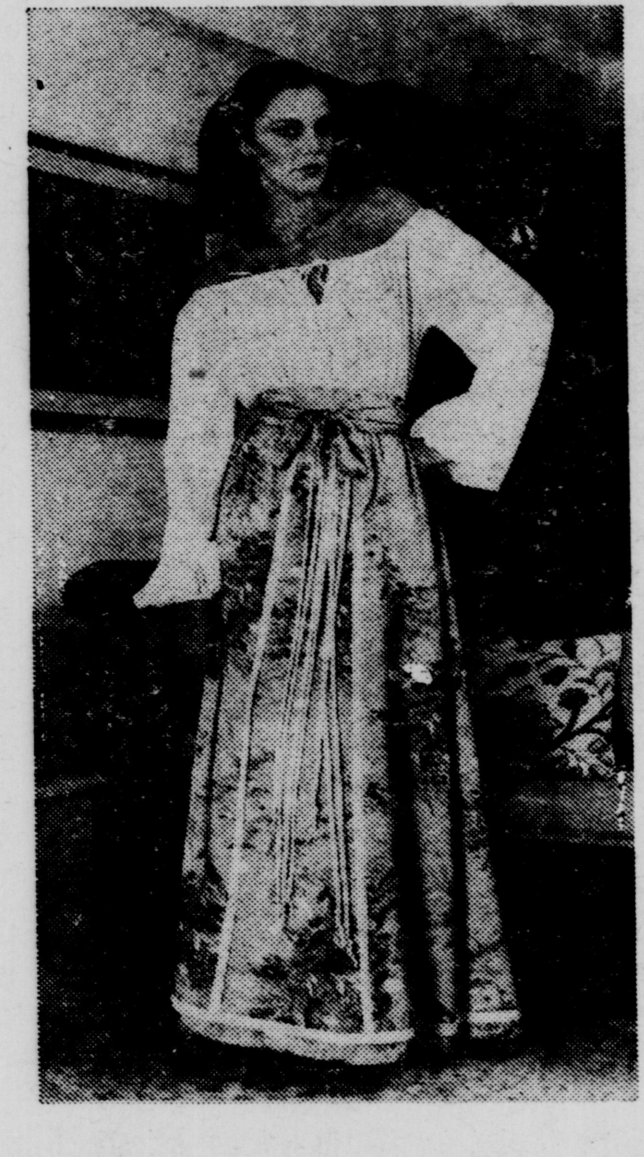
SOFT is the direction in which fashion is turning for holiday and resort. And from bright young creator Chessa Davis comes a perfect expression of this mood in skirt and blouse dressing for late day. The skirt — pale printed satin fluted with chiffon streamers — floats out gracefully below a chiffon peasant-necklined blouse, colored to match the streamers. For dual potential each piece can go it alone with another companion.



Choose toys carefully

Don't give a toy with a part small enough for the child to fit into any body cavity — ears, nose, mouth — say safety experts.

You've seen seven inch side burns pulled over the top, or the hair on the back of the head is pulled forward. This is what we mean when we say the ''Great American Cover Up''. We at LifeLike have decided there's a better way. We call it the custom ''Sculptured Filler''™ It's custom designed to fill just that one annoying spot or spots without giving a ''heavy'' look. The ''Sculptured Filler'' is expertly matched with human hair to blend with your own and fit your exact needs. Copyright © 1977

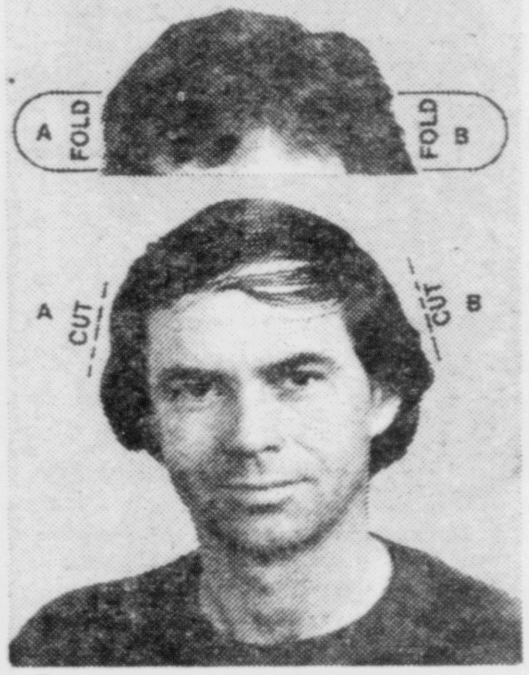
"THE GREAT AMERICAN COVER UP"



You've seen seven inch side burns pulled over the top, or the hair on the back of the head is pulled forward. This is what we mean when we say the ''Great American Cover Up''. We at LifeLike have decided there's a better way. We call it the custom ''Sculptured Filler''™ It's custom designed to fill just that one annoying spot or spots without giving a ''heavy'' look. The ''Sculptured Filler'' is expertly matched with human hair to blend with your own and fit your exact needs. Copyright © 1977

REDD FOXX talking character doll . . . get ready for laughs and enjoy both sides in the life of one of America's favorite comedians. Redd comes all dolled up as an entertainer in a tuxedo with a high-buttoned shirt and buckled shoes. Turn him over and relax with Redd in his own Foxxy-motif beach shirt, shorts and sandals. Everyone will crack a smile as they pull his ring to hear any of nine quips recorded in Redd Foxx's own voice.

Don't neglect eyes

Researchers have compiled the following suggestions to help you avoid these dampers on holiday fun:

Have proper lighting for the job at hand. When you're addressing cards during the day, sit near a window, with light coming over your left shoulder. At night, you need at least the amount of light projected by a 100-watt bulb 15 inches above your work.

This direct illumination should be supplemented with general background lighting, for maximum eye comfort. Avoid confined patches of glaring light — they are hard on the eyes. Don't try to work by the light of a Christmas tree. The effect puts you in a holiday mood — but also punishes the eyes.

Stop for periodic rest breaks. Relax your eyes by lifting them and focusing on distant objects for a few seconds.

Sweet dreams go on

Want to help someone dream of Christmas cheer? New sheets and pillowcases will keep them thinking of you all through the year and maybe help them dream of next year's white Christmas.

WHEN IT COMES to vintage tin, it's hard to beat the popularity of the early Fords. The "Deuce" roadster is at the top of the list among dedicated street rodders. Monogram's big model of the '32 Ford Street Rod is 1/8 the size of an actual car. The kit is molded in black, off-white and clear with plated parts, black rubber-like tires and colorful "flame" decals. The finished model is highly detailed including the V-8 engine with ignition wires, cooling hoses and fuel lines. The top can be on or off, hood removes, windshield folds down and steering wheel actually works.

Select her gift with love

NEW YORK — (NEA) — All you need to select a gift for the girls in your life — from grandma to girlfriend — is the unbeatable combination of thoughtfulness and love. Money, of course, helps a bit, too.

If you know your "girl" there's something that will please her just waiting to be bought.

When money and time are not problems, you can shop at your leisure for the "reals." Real jewelry — diamonds, gold and a wide variety of precious stones, real furs — mink, chinchilla and sable. And crowded counters won't be your lot.

Perfume — always a successful gift — can be costly or moderately priced. Try to find out her preference. But if you can't, buy what you like and ask her to wear it for you. She'll like the whole idea.

For those with moderate budgets there are electric curlers, decorative cord shavers, cosmetic kits, handsome evening bags.

Sweaters are a big fashion item this year, especially sweater sets. And the colors are lovely and varied. Scarves, too, are high on the fashion gift-list.

Sports have become more and more important in todays living. Give her togs or equipment for the active sport she most enjoys.

Handbags for day and evening are always welcome. But keep an eye on what type she carries — small and compact or big and roomy.

Costume jewelry makes a wonderful Christmas gift. There is even a new kind of jewelry for little girls that gives off an aroma when the surface is scratched.

There's a lot to choose from. You can't come out a loser. So make out those lists and set forth with confidence.

How many bulbs?

Those who are new at selecting lights for their holiday tree decorations can follow this rule of thumb to determine the number of standard bulbs required:

Three times the height times the width (in feet) equals number of standard bulbs. Double for midgets. For example, for a three foot tree, use 15 standard bulbs or 35 midgets.

Flying friends to feast at Yule

Berries are a treat for many birds. Bunch sprigs of berries into clusters and tie them on the tree with red waterproof ribbons. Bright red holly or dogwood berries, pewter gray barberry, brilliant orange mountain ash, slate blue juniper or dark red sumac can be used. To give the birds a real holiday treat, tie on tiny bunches of fresh grapes.

Keep bread and cracker crumbs, stale corn bread, squash and pumpkin seeds, pieces of suet and bacon fat.

The remnants of poultry dressing, cereals that are no longer crisp, stale potato chips or the few peanuts left in a can can also be used. To make the pudding, melt the suet and bacon fat, add some peanut butter and crumble and stir in the other ingredients.

Some of this mixture can be put in star-shaped pudding molds to harden. When they are solid, remove the molds, run a piece of heavy florist's wire through each and make a loop to hang on the tree. This pudding can also be put in pine cones. Choose cones with spaces between the scales and fill the crevices solidly with the pudding mixture. Then hang them on the tree.

Rid tree of needle drop with correct treatment

There is no reason for needle-drop to be a problem. Methods are available for treating trees so that needles will remain fresh throughout the holiday season.

Not too long ago bedsheets were spread under Christmas trees to catch needles as they dropped, sometimes a few days after the tree was brought in the house and almost always before the holidays were over.

Several treatments are available. Trees treated with a solution of micronized iron will remain fresh and green longer and will be less of a fire hazard. Christmas greens can be treated the same way. The compound is mixed with water, corn syrup and household bleach, and the solution is poured in the water reservoir of the tree stand.

Also — on the market now is a fire-resistant spray for natural Christmas trees that prevents needle drop, according to the manufacturer. These products are sold at garden supply stores.

In addition to using one of these products, do take steps to prevent indoor heat and dry air from causing excess evaporation of moisture from your tree. Always buy a fresh tree — one with pliable needles that are firmly attached to the stem.

After you get if home, saw off at least one inch from the cut end. It's necessary for water or the solution to be absorbed from the cut end of the tree trunk and reach the branches for a tree to remain fresh and needles to stay on.

Locally grown "cultivated" Christmas trees that are produced on tree farms are usually fresher than those cut and shipped in.

THE "FUN O'CLOCK" makes learning to tell time seem like giggly, merry fun! Clock hands and a digital readout show the time, surrounded by "Rube Goldberg"-like action of marbles dropping, bells ringing, noise and movement. Preschoolers can see gears and falling marbles through the clear plastic back of the "Fun O'Clock" — from Mattel!

Keep safe — even if it's slower

Safety experts urge parents to be especially aware of the rules of the road when driving with children over the holidays.

It's a time of frenzy and sometimes in a hurry a parent will run a stop sign or thinking of other things, absent-mindedly break other traffic rules.

Pets are perfect idea

Everyone has people on their list who, more or less, are candidates for the same gifts year after year. Change the habit — there's a whole new world of gift ideas waiting for you at your local pet shop.

Naturally, the only requirement for this unique type of gifting is that the hard-to-gift person owns a pet or is a likely candidate for one.

Pet owners are pet lovers and a gift for their pet is greatly appreciated. Just be sure to make out the gift tag to both of them. That's one way to provide an interesting twist to "hum-drum" Christmas gifting.

If you want to select a pet for that difficult-to-please person, be careful.

There are many things to consider, not the least of which is the intended recipient's desire for a pet. A gift certificate might be the best bet here.

But just because you've decided not to give a live parrot or hamster, the pet store still holds hundreds of ideas down every aisle, at every counter and the best reason is the budget-pleasing price tag on many of the suggestions.

Sportsmen are easy buy

Everyone knows that Santa (alias Dad, or that special man) is very busy around Christmas time. But what does he do throughout the year?

With an increase in the leisure time on the hands of today's men, smart holiday gift givers are sure to find many ideas in local sport shops or departments.

Tennis courts claim the fancy of many a jolly off-season Santa. Gifts here include metal tennis rackets, white outfits, shoes, and canisters of balls.

For the Santa who prefers the greens of golf courses, his favorite fans can fill out his club set, or present him with a new bag, umbrella — multi-colored — shoes, gaily-colored hats, jackets, golf balls, tees or a practice net.

If Santa's a schusser, skis, boots, poles, goggles, gloves and wool caps are some gift suggestions.

Fishing for an idea? For the angler, lures, reels, rods, line, hooks, sinkers, tackle boxes and waterproof clothing will bring a thankful smile and might even improve his catch.

A new rifle, powerful scope, ammo, carrying case, cleaning kit or hunting apparel are gift-giving ideas for hunters.

For the outdoorsman, gas stoves, tents, cooking utensils, boats and many other accessories fill out the list.

Some gifts can really bowl Santa over — such as a bowling ball, carrying case, shoes and glove.

If some of the men on the list really don't seem to be the Olympic decathalon, or even the sportsman type, then perhaps books on various sports, their histories and exciting biographies are possibilities as gifts.

Give your dog holiday treat

The traditional roast turkey dinner that provides the center of attraction in so many American households now has its special counterpart in menu planning for the family dog!

Supermarket dog food shelves throughout the country have added a canned version of the holiday roast turkey.

The availability of the new canned turkey dinners for the family pet points up an important tip from dog care specialists: if your dog is fed leftovers from the family bird, be sure to remove those splintery bones that represent a potential threat to hungry pets.

Either way, "Fido" can have his own dinner treat this year.

Make fire logs with newspaper

For those who don't know about those newspaper logs, these are made by rolling batches of newspapers into log form then tying them loosely in three places with heavy twine. They can be treated so they burn with differing colors. Copper sulphate gives off green flames; calcium chloride, orange, copper chloride, blue; and potassium chloride, purple.

These solutions have to be made outdoors and should be put only in wooden pails or earthen crocks. The ration is a pound of chemical to a gallon of water.

If you want many of the colors you have many pails or start fresh with each chemical. Wear rubber gloves. Allow logs to soak for a day or two, then dry thoroughly. The end result is spectacular!

New Year's is oldest holiday

New Year's Day is our oldest holiday and both primitive and civilized people have noted its arrival with some kind of festivity. Numerous traditions and customs have become associated with New Year's Day; therefore we moderns engage in some practices that are reminiscent of antiquity.

New Year's Day is the most important January holiday, and the only one the entire world observes, regardless of race or religious beliefs. The greeting "Happy New Year" in various languages has been most often heard around the globe.

It could be "Feliz Ano Nuevo" in Spanish, "Leshanah Tovah" in Hebrew, "Glueckliches Neu Jahr" in German, "Godt Nytt Aar" in Norwegian — to name a few.
